Ross Residents Argue For Refilling Of Lake

Oppose County Takeover

Ross residents packed the meeting room of the Town Hall last night to voice opposition to any plan to convert Phoenix Lake to intensive recreational use.

They said they wanted the area returned to its condition before the state condemned the dam at the Marin Municipal Water District's reservoir.

No one, however, would say he wished to see his tax increased a dime to allow the town to take over control of the lake area.

OTHER VIEW

Lone opponent to leaving the lake area as it is was Erik Holtman of Allen Avenue. He said the lake area should be developed so it could be used by children. He complained that many people who object to development of the area never go there.

The Boy Scouts or similar organizations could help pay for the development, he said, and the lake could be used for swimming, sail boats and row boats. He said the project would be a start toward preventing juvenile delinquency.

"Is it better to have traffic to Phoenix Lake or is it better to have hoodlums down on the streets fighting?" he asked. "I hear about the parking problem, and maybe there will be vandalism, but I think it's a wonderful opportunity to do something right and proper."

Residents and the councilmen said the plan could not be taken seriously. In case anyone did take it that way, the council unanimously passed a resolution

Blasts, Fires Rip Two Boston Hotels

BOSTON (UPI) — Grim searchers hunted for more bodies today in icy rubble caused by devastating explosions which ripped through two hotels in Boston's honky-tonk district last night, killing at least nine persons and injuring 58 others.

The series of blasts and flames triggered by them roared through the Paramount and Plymouth hotels, a strip joint, a bar and a coffee shop.

Some 150 persons fled the hotels into 14-degree cold intensified by strong winds.

The blasts made a 30-foot crater in busy Boylston Street.

A fire department official, pointing to the hole, said: "We will have to pump out a lot of water before we can find out whether there are other bodies in there."

A two-phase investigation was begun into the cause of the blast, tentatively attributed to illuminating gas. The state fire marshal's office opened an inquiry parallel to that ordered by the Boston Gas Co.

A spokesman for the utility said the main along Boylston Street between Tremont and Washington Streets was closed, cutting service to the nearby hotel Touraine.

There had been no reports of leaks prior to the explosions, the spokesman said.

The Paramount and Plymouth hotels were located in the heart of Boston's sin and sex strip, three blocks from the scene of the November, 1942, Coconut Grove holocaust which claimed 492 lives.

Senator Says LBJ Backed Taft-Hartley

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., charged today that President Johnson completely reversed his own position in urging repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law's "right to work" provision.

Allott made the accusation as Democratic leaders called the Senate into its first Saturday meeting of the new session.

The speedup was aimed at running down the filibuster which is keeping the repeal proposal from being formally brought before the Senate for action. But it appeared as futile as other hopes for turning back the determined opposition.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., was expected to take the floor today along with Allott.

In his prepared speech Allott said that as a House member in 1947, Johnson in effect voted three times for the Taft-Hartley Law; for the House bill, for the final compromise worked out by House-Senate conferees, and to override President Truman's veto.

However, the Colorado Republican charged, the President promised "big labor" in 1964 he would work for 14-B repeal.

Besides chiding the President, Allott said unions should do a little soul searching on their own.

The senator said for the unions to "blame 'right to work' laws for their own failure is indulging in scapegoatism and serves no useful purpose."

In the first major speech for the bill, Sen. Wayne L. Morse, D-Ore., told the Democratic leadership yesterday it had better go all out to pass the legislation to assure stable labor relations in event of any big Asian war.

Launches Attack On LBJ's Reply To 16 'Doves'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wayne Morse, D-Ore., told the Senate today he will try to force a test vote on President Johnson's claimed authority to conduct "an undeclared and illegal war" in Viet Nam.

Morse, a bitter critic of administration policies in Asia and Latin America, said he will introduce a resolution Monday intended to rescind the broad authority to the President voted by Congress in August 1964.

The resolution — approved then by all members of Congress except Sens. Morse and Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska — authorized the President to take any necessary action, including use of armed forces, in Southeast Asia.

'Fly-In' Stirs Commotion In Empty Greenbrae Field

By STEPHEN COOK

Lee A. Dickinson, a prosperous young Kentfield executive, added a line to the history book of social protest yesterday afternoon.

He staged a fly-in.

Dickinson, who lives at 432 Woodland Road, Kentfield, travels extensively in his business. He owns and flies his own airplane, which he has had based in both Sonoma and Alameda counties, but never in Marin.

"The airports here are atrocious," he said. That, in fact, was the basis of his protest.

Shortly after 1 p.m. yesterday, Dickinson circled a demonstrator model of a new plane he plans to buy over a rock-strewn and rutted field next to the Bon Air shopping center in Greenbrae. He banked once, then brought the craft in for a bumpy, but safe, landing.

Shoppers and nearby children on a day off from school swarmed up to and around the plane immediately. "What's wrong? It looked frightful the way you came—pfft-down, just like that," said one agitated woman shopper.

Motorists who saw the plane circle and land thought it was in trouble and called the California Highway Patrol.

Dickinson had warned Larkspur police and fireman of his plans, but neglected to call the patrol. Three of its cars rolled up and the patrolmen began to query the pilot on the legality of his landing.

Dickinson laughed and explained that he had aviation authorities' permission to land on the field.

"I knew it was going to stir people up," he said. "But with all this bickering and all these expensive studies about where to put a county airport, I just wanted to point up something most people don't realize—the airplane is a very practical piece of machinery. All you need to land one is a big lot."

Dickinson said the county needs an airport and it must be better than the one at Novato.

"Novato is in no better condition than this field here," he said, gesturing at rocks and ruts. "You can't taxi because there are deep ruts. In the winter, the planes are bogged down in mud. When you do take off, you have to head right

Campers Are A Nuisance, Storer Told

Directors of the Bolinas Community Inc. yesterday assured County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer that they still find overnight campers in the area a nuisance.

"They drive through here in the summer in camper trucks and park overnight on the main street. Since there are no sanitation facilities, they often use the streets," declared vice president James Dougan.

Storer had written to the group asking if they were still interested in having a county ordinance passed which would prohibit overnight parking.

"We decided to assure him that our interest in this remains strong," Dougan added.

The Bolinas residents also moved to ask county supervisors to make Terrace Avenue, which has been slipping away over Brighton Cliff, a one-way street. Spring Avenue, the remaining access to the Bolinas Mesa, would be opened to public use, Dougan explained.

Rains, Wind Cover Marin

The rain came down in earnest on Marin County today after scattering a sprinkle here and there overnight.

By 11 a.m. the rainfall reading in San Rafael was .26 of an inch and more than .19 of an inch had been dumped on Sausalito.

The forecast calls for the storm clouds to hang around through tomorrow bringing occasional rain and slightly cooler temperatures.

Small craft warnings for southerly winds 20 to 35 knots were in operation in the bay area.

Rainfall figures in the 24 hours up to 8 a.m. today included San Anselmo .18, Bolinas .14, and Novato .08.

Troops Drag Viet Cong Out Of Hiding – At Cost

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division elements, sent to find and destroy the Viet Cong near Bong Son, 300 miles north of Saigon, reported tonight they had found him, fought him and smashed him, though at some considerable cost.

The cavalrymen helicoptered into two Communist nests on the coastal plains Friday and got stung with heavy ground fire that stretched American wounded along a 75-foot long trench.

But AP correspondent Bob Poos, who covered the action, said the Americans killed 159 Viet Cong and captured 50 more, mostly wounded.

The head-on collision was reminiscent of the Ia Drang Valley battle with the North Vietnamese regulars in which the cavalry distinguished itself in November and since which the Hanoi troops have managed to keep their whereabouts largely secret.

The attack was part of a multi-prong drive by the American forces to search out and destroy the insurgents in the central coast and highlands while Washington debates whether to resume bombing the North or refrain from it to give Hanoi a further chance to talk peace terms.

Further south, in Phu Yen Province, the 101st Airborne Brigade, which experienced heavy contact yesterday encountered only sporadic and scattered small arms fire. The paratroopers counted eight Viet Cong killed but a spokesman said there may have been many more.

Judge Won't Declare Love Letters Mistrial

Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson yesterday denied a motion to declare a mistrial in the assault trial of San Quentin Prison inmate Robert Gene Glover, 33, and scheduled further testimony before the jury starting at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

The motion had been made on grounds that Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Shaw, prosecuting, acted in bad faith in demanding in open court some 500 love letters the defendant had written to Mrs. Dolores Dutra, 30.

Glover's attorney, William O. Weissich, declared that if he refused to deliver the letters, the jury might feel the letters contained admission of guilt. If he turned over the letters, he contended there might be self-incrimination for his client.

Glover, a Folsom prisoner being held at San Quentin, was granted the new trial for assault on a fellow prisoner by a First District Court of Appeals under the so-called Dorado decision that a prime suspect must be advised of his right to remain silent and to obtain counsel.

He allegedly stabbed San Quentin inmate Henry L. Wolfenden, 28, with a 10-inch sharpened brass rod Sept. 18, 1963, in a classroom of the prison's adjustment center. Wolfenden was injured twice in the chest, and once each in the left arm and right leg.

Mrs. Dutra, Novato divorcee who is an assembly worker in an electronics firm, was on the original jury panel which found Glover guilty. They began a correspondence while he was in prison, she was divorced by her husband, Alfred, and she and Glover say they are now common law husband and wife.

Volunteers Face Touchy Reception, Educator Says

John H. Niemeyer of New York told a gathering of teachers and volunteer workers today that schools have plenty of use for non-professionals, but that volunteers should not expect to be greeted with open arms.

Speaking at a conference on "the school, the teacher, and the volunteer," at the College of Marin, Niemeyer warned that professional educators are touchy about dealing with laymen who believe they can teach.

However, he went on to cite the Head Start program last summer in Mississippi which taught 12,000 children using 12 professional educators.

Niemeyer, a member of the Project Head Start steering committee and an official of the HARYOU program in the Harlem section of New York City, said volunteers from the community have proved to be invaluable.

HARYOU, with 24 schools, deals with 34,000 children. He said 85 per cent of the children in junior high school grades are illiterate and will be permanently unemployable under present conditions. Volunteers in an experiment with 20 fifth grade students who were called "uneducable" were able to teach them all to read in eight weeks.

He said the one-to-one relationship between a student and a volunteer who comes to the school regularly is the most important aspect, and added that in Marin County where poverty is less of a problem, such a relationship still is a problem.

Bel Marin Residents Get Action On County, District Complaints

Complaints by residents of Bel Marin Keys north of Hamilton Air Force Base began to get results at the end of this week.

Roger A. Hicks of 40 Montego Key, who anounced Wednesday that he intended to run for the Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board but did not know how to go about it, received details yesterday.

He had earlier written Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the district, asking the time of district meetings, the date of the election and how to file.

Jordan replied that the date for the next meeting of the board, which has never met on a regular basis, has not been set. But he promised he would personally notify the Bel Marin Keys Homeowners Assn. of the date.

Jordan further said that the election will be April 12 and that filing closes at noon Feb. 17. He said that filing papers can be picked up any time before then at the district office—which is the Bel Marin Keys subdivision office.

Hicks said he checked yesterday afternoon, soon after receiving Jordan's letter, but the papers were not there yet.

Present directors are Jack H. West, his wife and Jack H. West Jr., developers of Bel Marin Keys. Jordan said that there has not been an election since the district was formed in 1961.

Hicks said complaints over lack of lighting on the approach road to the tract, aired at an association meeting Wednesday night, also brought a prompt reply from Donald R. Frost, director of the county Department of Public Works.

Frost said the county does not furnish street lighting, but it might be furnished by the Novato Lighting District or the CSD through annexation.

These went in yesterday, Hicks said.

He had earlier written Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the district, asking the time of district meetings, the date of the election and how to file.

Jordan replied that the date for the next meeting of the board, which has never met on a regular basis, has not been set. But he promised he would personally notify the Bel Marin Keys Homeowners Assn. of the date.

Jordan further said that the election will be April 12 and that filing closes at noon Feb. 17. He said that filing papers can be picked up any time before then at the district office—which is the Bel Marin Keys subdivision office.

Hicks said he checked yesterday afternoon, soon after receiving Jordan's letter, but the papers were not there yet.

Present directors are Jack H. West, his wife and Jack H. West Jr., developers of Bel Marin Keys. Jordan said that there has not been an election since the district was formed in 1961.

Hicks said complaints over lack of lighting on the approach road to the tract, aired at an association meeting Wednesday night, also brought a prompt reply from Donald R. Frost, director of the county Department of Public Works.

Frost said the county does not furnish street lighting, but it might be furnished by the Novato Lighting District or the CSD through annexation.

These went in yesterday, Hicks said.

Union Boss Mike Quill Dies

NEW YORK (UPI)—Michael J. Quill, the blustery union boss who called the transit strike which disrupted the life of the city and its eight million people, died in his bed last night of a heart attack. He was 60.

Quill

Quill had a 10-year history of heart trouble. Just three days after the transit strike began Jan. 1, when he was ordered to civil jail for contempt of court, the Irish-born labor leader collapsed of what his doctor called "congestive heart failure."

He was hospitalized through the remainder of the 12-day strike and released only Monday. He was his usual fiery, sharp-tongued self at a news conference the next day.

Quill's death came when he was at the height of popularity among the Transit Authority's 36,000 employees. He had just won for those workers a new contract estimated to cost the city $60 million, regarded one of the best settlements the union ever reached.

But the quick-tempered, quick-witted Quill was not so popular with the millions of subway and bus riders, nor with some government leaders.

But as the news of his death spread, some of the same officials who had harshly criticized Quill had only praise for him.

In San Francisco, the attorney general said the State Legislature adopted 41 of 48 measures he helped introduce.

Lynch was appointed attorney general by Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1964 to succeed Stanley Most, whom Brown named to the State Supreme Court. Lynch had been San Francisco district attorney.

Common Market Buys Half Loaf

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — The European Common Market today surrendered to half of French President Charles de Gaulle's demands but refused to give him veto power over the bloc.

Ministers of the six member nations voted unanimously to adopt De Gaulle's demands to strip the market executive commission of much of its supra-national power.

But West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg balked at giving De Gaulle the veto power that is half his price for reviving the stricken market.

Thus the threat of collapse still loomed over the market.

Loafing Students Face Draft

Hershey said the guidelines would be similar to those employed during the Korean War when a student's score in a deferment test or his class standing determined his draft status.

The Hershey announcement, which also will affect high school students, will bring an end to the near blanket deferment of college students which had been in effect.

Unruh Not Overdoing Friendship With Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, has declined to join 45 of his Democratic colleagues in the lower house in signing a letter urging Gov. Brown to run for a third term.

Three other Democratic assemblymen also didn't sign the letter, which was released Friday by Assembly Majority Leader Jerome R. Waldie, D - Antioch.

Unruh declined comment. He has feuded with Brown but has repeatedly promised to support the governor.

An aide said the speaker "feels that it is incumbent upon the governor to make his own decisions whether to run and he probably can reach that decision without any help from me."

The governor is expected to announce Tuesday.

Waldie said, "I personally think Jesse would have been better off going in on it because he will go with the governor eventually."

"I think he should have joined and I'm sorry he didn't," Waldie said.

He said he was sure Unruh "will absolutely support and work for" Brown's campaign.

And he said the fact that most Democratic assemblymen disagreed with Unruh over signing the letter did not mean there was a split in the majority party in the lower house.

In the letter, the assemblymen pledged their assistance "in every way possible in order to assure the success" of the Brown campaign.

They said Brown should run again because "the problems still facing the state require the same progressive and responsible approach you have heretofore charted . . ."

Other legislators refusing to sign the letter were: Pauline Davis of Portola, Tom C. Carrell of San Fernando and Don A. Allen of Los Angeles.

Carrell declined comment. Allen said he'd let the governor make up his own mind. Mrs. Davis wasn't available for comment, but she has been critical of the governor in the past.

Brown, in response to the letter, declared he was "grateful for the warm expression of support from the Democratic assemblymen from California . . ."

Drugs Part Of Campus Life, Top Criminologist Warns

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Illegal use of the hallucination-producing drug (LSD) has become so widespread on some college campuses that it is "a part of daily life and daily conversation," a leading criminologist said Friday.

"Drug culture has become common on certain high school and university campuses," said Nathan Adler, lecturer in criminology at the University of California at Berkeley.

The criminologist told the 19th Annual Convention of the California State Psychological Association that up to 10 per cent of the student body at some San Francisco Bay Area high schools and colleges use either LSD or marijuana.

"Few are the students who are not exposed to its users and proselytizers . . . students are rated and located in the campus system as straight or hip, square or cool," he said.

The biggest danger, Adler said, is not that the drug users are criminals, although LSD is an experimental drug that has not been licensed for general use, but its unknown nature.

Adler said use of the drug may trigger psychotic conditions that in turn may lead to violent acts.

Union Hall Target Still Not Found

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police continued to look today for the intended target in a union hall shooting that left an innocent bystander dead and another wounded.

The target, a man identified only as Padilla, fled the crowded San Francisco Labor Temple Friday in the confusion that followed the shooting.

Police said Padilla was the potential victim of suspect Albert Brown, 29, who was arrested shortly after the incident.

Brown allegedly fired at Padilla but the bullet struck two men who stood in the line of fire. Dennis Griffin, 45, was hit in the left side and killed outright. Guido Prato, 58, was struck in the arm by the same bullet after it passed through Griffin.

About 520 men were in the hall at the time for the regular Friday meeting of unemployed members of Local 261 of the Laborers Union.

Christmas Seal Drive Lags 1964's Income

The Christmas Seal Campaign in Marin County raised $39,821 in the first 55 days of this year's campaign up to Jan. 21, compared with $40,158 collected up to Jan. 22 last year.

So far, 27 California campaigns exceed their last year's final total and Marin County's figure represents 94.12 per cent of the amount raised in the previous campaign.

Ho Chi Minh Looses Angry Blast Against U.S. Efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States may have heard Ho Chi Minh's last word on the peace initiative. It was not good.

U.S. experts today were studying a long and angry-sounding letter the North Vietnamese president sent the leaders of Russia, Red China and other Communist countries.

The timing of the letter may have said as much as the words.

It was dated last Sunday and broadcast in English by Hanoi Radio yesterday. The broadcast was heard at a time when the Johnson administration had clearly indicated it was disappointed with the results of its peace initiative and was nearing a decision on resuming the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Ho did not directly mention the 37-day-old pause in the bombing. But he did charge the United States with sending "espionage" flights, over his country "in preparation for new air attacks."

He took an apparently uncompromising line on all major negotiating points and appeared to be summing up Hanoi's position in its hardest terms.

He called President Johnson's peace arguments "impudent." He accused the United States of air attacks against Laos, and "armed provocations" against Cambodia.

The Communist leader accused the United States of a "scorched earth policy . . . burning all, destroying all, killing all, using napalm bombs, poison gases and toxic chemicals to burn down villages and massacre the civilian population in vast areas of South Viet Nam."

Horse Takes Chinatown Spotlight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tonight's the night for the big Chinese parade celebrating the new year 4664—the Year of the Horse. So a 2,400 - pound horse will lead the marchers.

But the celebration, stirring up mixed pride and anger, still will feature the 125 - foot - long papier-mache dragon.

The pride was born over years of observance by the largest Chinatown community in the United States. The anger — which even touched off a bit of unsuccessful picketing — is over a re-routing of the parade which takes it away from narrow Grant Avenue through the heart of Chinatown.

Too much of a fire hazard, the city ruled, for festivities which include firecrackers.

The two-hour procession will be led by a giant black Percheron stallion, Sir Deval, ridden by Jerry P. Booker who will wear the garb of a Manchu warrior.

Thieves Get $500 In Slot Racing Store

Thieves stole $500 worth of miniature auto engines, tires and other parts from Kings Raceways, 25 Corte Madera Avenue, Mill Valley, last night while manager Charles E. Fisher was out to dinner, police reported today.

The model racetrack is just across from the Mill Valley Police Department. Police said entry was made through an unlocked rear window.

U.S. Willing To Guard Non-nuclear Nations

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States is prepared in principle to promise protection to nations which agree not to develop atomic arsenals of their own, American officials said today.

They indicated that guarantees of such protection against "nuclear blackmail" would be a feature of the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons which the United States hopes can be produced by the disarmament conference here.

The officials added, however, that the question of guarantees is a very complicated one which will require careful planning and extensive consultations.

They said Russian cooperation would be required to make such safeguards acceptable to "non-aligned" nations which might balk at accepting "one-sided" guarantees.

Some non-nuclear nations have expressed hesitation to sign the proposed treaty even if the United States, Russia and Britain, can agree on its terms.

The arms conference, which resumed here Thursday, has agreed to deal with the problem as a matter of urgency.

The prospects of an early agreement are still very slender because Russia insists that negotiations must proceed on its terms.

Parcel Post Rate Boost Is Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien wants higher parcel post rates and simplified regulations for the services to put it on a break-even basis.

In letters yesterday to House Speaker John W. McCormack and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, O'Brien said the fourth class mail service could lose $107 million this year under present regulations, and asked for congressional approval of the changes.

He called for an increase of eight cents in parcel post rates, plus a 12 per cent increase in rates for fourth class catalogs, and simplification of the size and weight rules for parcel post mailings.

Proposing that a limit of 40 pounds and 100 inches be established for parcels handled in first class post offices, O'Brien suggested retention of the 70-pound limit for small post offices.

The postaster said too that a three-year moratorium was near an end on enforcement of a law requiring parcel post service to operate within four per cent of the break-even point.

ICE PALACE

Water trickling from a large fountain in Detroit's Belle Isle Park formed this huge ice formation in sub-zero temperatures this week as more than 24 northern states were hit with a record-breaking cold snap. Strong northerly winds drove the subzero cold as far south as the Texas Panhandle, leaving nearly a foot of snow in portions of Mississippi and Alabama. At least 32 deaths were blamed on the weather.

The criminologist told the 19th Annual Convention of the California State Psychological Association that up to 10 per cent of the student body at some San Francisco Bay Area high schools and colleges use either LSD or marijuana.

"Few are the students who are not exposed to its users and proselytizers . . . students are rated and located in the campus system as straight or hip, square or cool," he said.

The biggest danger, Adler said, is not that the drug users are criminals, although LSD is an experimental drug that has not been licensed for general use, but its unknown nature.

Adler said use of the drug may trigger psychotic conditions that in turn may lead to violent acts.

Union Hall Target Still Not Found

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police continued to look today for the intended target in a union hall shooting that left an innocent bystander dead and another wounded.

The target, a man identified only as Padilla, fled the crowded San Francisco Labor Temple Friday in the confusion that followed the shooting.

Police said Padilla was the potential victim of suspect Albert Brown, 29, who was arrested shortly after the incident.

Brown allegedly fired at Padilla but the bullet struck two men who stood in the line of fire. Dennis Griffin, 45, was hit in the left side and killed outright. Guido Prato, 58, was struck in the arm by the same bullet after it passed through Griffin.

About 520 men were in the hall at the time for the regular Friday meeting of unemployed members of Local 261 of the Laborers Union.

Brown was not a member of the union.

Ho Chi Minh Looses Angry Blast Against U.S. Efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States may have heard Ho Chi Minh's last word on the peace initiative. It was not good.

U.S. experts today were studying a long and angry-sounding letter the North Vietnamese president sent the leaders of Russia, Red China and other Communist countries.

The timing of the letter may have said as much as the words.

It was dated last Sunday and broadcast in English by Hanoi Radio yesterday. The broadcast was heard at a time when the Johnson administration had clearly indicated it was disappointed with the results of its peace initiative and was nearing a decision on resuming the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Ho did not directly mention the 37-day-old pause in the bombing. But he did charge the United States with sending "espionage" flights, over his country "in preparation for new air attacks."

He took an apparently uncompromising line on all major negotiating points and appeared to be summing up Hanoi's position in its hardest terms.

He called President Johnson's peace arguments "impudent." He accused the United States of air attacks against Laos, and "armed provocations" against Cambodia.

The Communist leader accused the United States of a "scorched earth policy . . . burning all, destroying all, killing all, using napalm bombs, poison gases and toxic chemicals to burn down villages and massacre the civilian population in vast areas of South Viet Nam."

Horse Takes Chinatown Spotlight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tonight's the night for the big Chinese parade celebrating the new year 4664—the Year of the Horse. So a 2,400 - pound horse will lead the marchers.

But the celebration, stirring up mixed pride and anger, still will feature the 125 - foot - long papier-mache dragon.

The pride was born over years of observance by the largest Chinatown community in the United States. The anger — which even touched off a bit of unsuccessful picketing — is over a re-routing of the parade which takes it away from narrow Grant Avenue through the heart of Chinatown.

Too much of a fire hazard, the city ruled, for festivities which include firecrackers.

The two-hour procession will be led by a giant black Percheron stallion, Sir Deval, ridden by Jerry P. Booker who will wear the garb of a Manchu warrior.

U.S. Willing To Guard Non-nuclear Nations

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States is prepared in principle to promise protection to nations which agree not to develop atomic arsenals of their own, American officials said today.

They indicated that guarantees of such protection against "nuclear blackmail" would be a feature of the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons which the United States hopes can be produced by the disarmament conference here.

The officials added, however, that the question of guarantees is a very complicated one which will require careful planning and extensive consultations.

They said Russian cooperation would be required to make such safeguards acceptable to "non-aligned" nations which might balk at accepting "one-sided" guarantees.

Some non-nuclear nations have expressed hesitation to sign the proposed treaty even if the United States, Russia and Britain, can agree on its terms.

The arms conference, which resumed here Thursday, has agreed to deal with the problem as a matter of urgency.

The prospects of an early agreement are still very slender because Russia insists that negotiations must proceed on its terms.

Parcel Post Rate Boost Is Sought

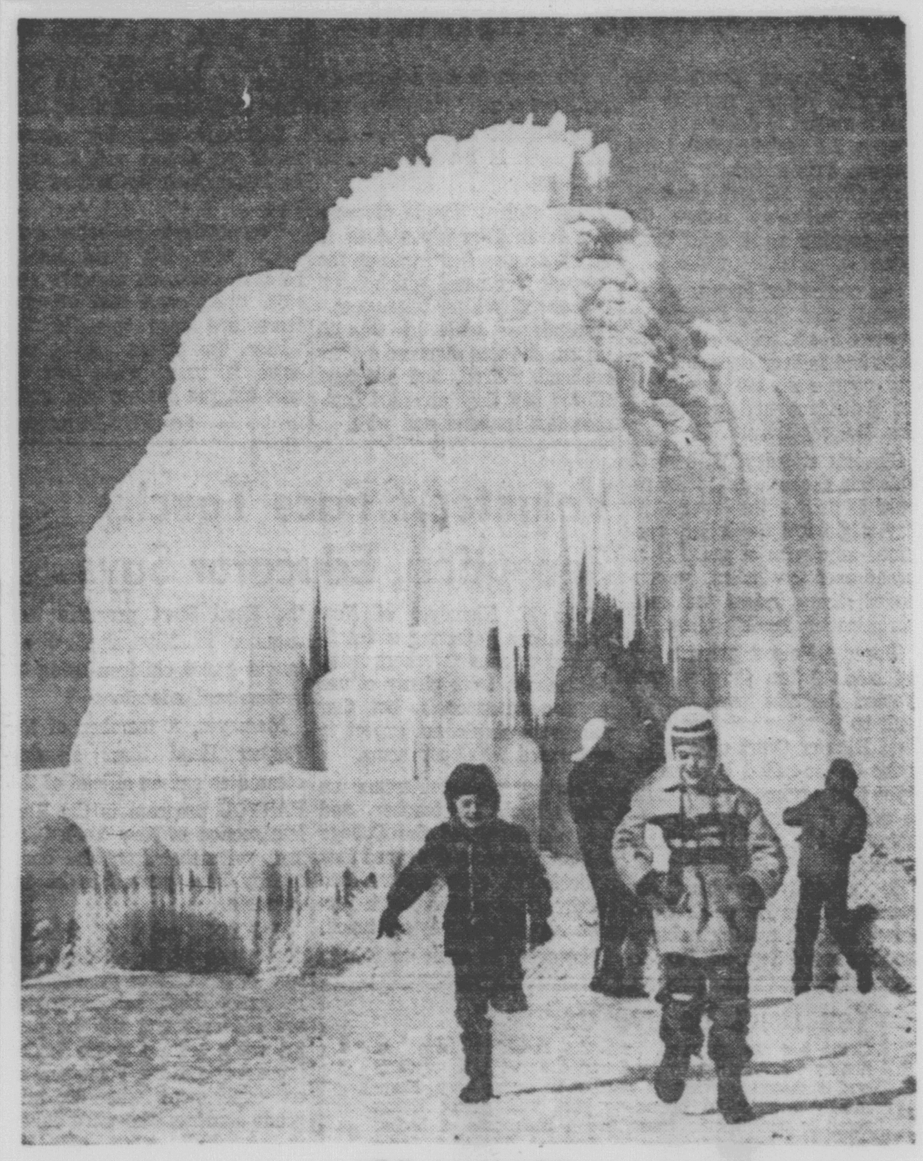
WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien wants higher parcel post rates and simplified regulations for the services to put it on a break-even basis.

In letters yesterday to House Speaker John W. McCormack and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, O'Brien said the fourth class mail service could lose $107 million this year under present regulations, and asked for congressional approval of the changes.

He called for an increase of eight cents in parcel post rates, plus a 12 per cent increase in rates for fourth class catalogs, and simplification of the size and weight rules for parcel post mailings.

Proposing that a limit of 40 pounds and 100 inches be established for parcels handled in first class post offices, O'Brien suggested retention of the 70-pound limit for small post offices.

The postaster said too that a three-year moratorium was near an end on enforcement of a law requiring parcel post service to operate within four per cent of the break-even point.



ICE PALACE

Water trickling from a large fountain in Detroit's Belle Isle Park formed this huge ice formation in sub-zero temperatures this week as more than 24 northern states were hit with a record-breaking cold snap. Strong northerly winds drove the subzero cold as far south as the Texas Panhandle, leaving nearly a foot of snow in portions of Mississippi and Alabama. At least 32 deaths were blamed on the weather.

Brazilian Coed Finds Tam High 'Simpatico'

By WENDY JACOBS
Tamalpais High School

Arriving for a six-month stay in the United States this month was Silvia Eisenstein, who has come to Tamalpais High School in the Youth For Understanding student exchange program from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

This pert coed with friendly, alert eyes and an ingratiating manner has been kept very busy observing Tamalpais High School and meeting her new classmates.

"I think I am really at home at Tam," Silvia said. "I think that they (Tam students) are very simpatico. You Americans have theez word; yes, no?" She explained, "Simpatico means somebody very warm and interested in you."

Silvia is staying with the Anshall Nelson family at 261 Ricardo Road, Mill Valley. She has already become very fond of her "sisters", Sue Nelson, a Tamalpais sophomore, and Debbie Nelson, a recent Tamalpais graduate.

In spite of the short time since her arrival, Silvia had a few comparisons to make between school in Rio de Janeiro and Marin.

In Brazil, when one reaches colegio, the Brazilian equivalent of high school, he has a choice of three basic courses: scientific, classical, or normal. Silvia has been studying the scientific course, which includes mathematics, physics, chemistry, English, biology, geography, and Portuguese.

Unlike the American system of taking most courses for one year periods, Silvia has to study all of her courses for four years. In the fourth year of colegio, all students have to take a teacher training course.

At home in Rio de Janeiro, Silvia lives very close to the ocean. She said going to the beach is a favorite activity "I like very much." She also likes to see live theater, which is vary popular in Rio de Janeiro.

Silvia is planning to add some post cards of Marin and San Francisco to her postcard collection.

In Rio de Janeiro, Silvia has seen many American movies and worked as a receptionist and translator at the Rio de Janeiro Film Festival. Thus, she felt that she had a fairly accurate impression of Americans. But, when asked about her previous idea of San Francisco, Silvia replied. "I did not know more about San Francisco than the Golden Gate Bridge and 'I Left My Heart in San Francisco'."

Eager to take part in everything American, Silvia has been sampling American food. And she complains in typically American fashion, "I'm getting fat."

Rapid Transit Hits Stalemate On Subway Bids

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The board of directors of the embattled Bay Area Rapid Transit District yesterday failed to reach a decision on whether to accept or reject a controversial $61 million low bid for two Oakland subway stations.

A last-minute motion was passed instead to hold the bid for option for another 15 days. The bid is $13 million higher than engineers' estimates for the job.

The district has conceded that it will need another $187 million to complete planned construction because of inflation.

The board did agree to approve an $89.8 million contract —largest in the contract to date —for construction of its transbay tube.

The figure is about $9 million over engineer estimates, but directors indicated that they thought the state would help out.

Solano Prison Inmate Hears Forgery Charge

Harry Thomas Sherlock, 36, an inmate at the California Medical Facility in Vacaville, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a forgery charge.

Plea entry is Feb. 11. Sherlock allegedly forged a $131.63 check last Nov. 15 with intent to defraud Bank of America, San Anselmo branch.

Banker Charges FBI 'Planted' Loans Rumor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Don C. Silverthorne, former president of the defunct San Francisco National Bank, said Friday the FBI had "planted" a report of a loan the banker allegedly made to his co-defendent, William S. Bennett.

Silverthorne faced cross-examination by prosecution attorney James Brosnahan for the first time. The banker and Bennett, a Peninsula real estate developer, are on trial in federal court on fraud charges stemming from the collapse of the bank one year ago.

Brosnahan asked Silverthorne if he had told FBI agents that he had made a $150,000 loan to Bennett for the purpose of paying fees to money brokers for new deposits.

"That statement is untrue," Silverthorne said. "It's planted."

The trial will resume Monday morning before a jury of seven women and five men.

PEACE

The President said "it is increasingly clear that we have had only a hostile response to the present pause in bombing North Viet Nam." But he pledged "unflagging pursuit of peace" and gave no indication when a decision on resuming the air strikes would be made.

Morse said he would ask that his resolution go to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for a thorough investigation of U.S. policies in both Asia and Latin America.

Urging Johnson to fire both Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Morse told the Senate that he would give all senators a "chance to be counted" on whether they want to "continue to give war-making powers to the President in Asia."

Such a grant is unconstitutional Morse said, adding that was why he opposed the August 1964 resolution now cited by the President. Johnson cited the resolution yesterday in his letter replying to Morse and 15 other senators who urged that the bombing lull continue.

"What disappoints me in the President is he wants to continue an executive war," Morse said. He also said only Congress can declare war.

Morse said he and other critics of the Viet Nam war had been smeared as "aiding and abetting the enemy."

This will not deter him, Morse said, from seeking a complete Senate inquiry into U.S. policies in Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic and adjoining areas.

Morse said Rusk told the Foreign Relations Committee Friday that the 1964 "resolution had not been rescinded."

"I propose to give the Senate a chance to rescind it," he said.

Morse said that 1964 resolution was directly related only to the Bay of Tonkin incident when U.S. vessels were fired upon.

He said the grant did not give the President authority "to go ahead and do anything he wanted" to involve us in war without a declaration.

"I refused to give the President any such unchecked power," Morse continued.

Johnson's letter of reply was sent to Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., a principal author of the letter in which the 16 senators said, "We believe you should have our collective judgment before you when you make your judgment" on resuming the bombing.

Tidelands Urged To Help Transit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty proposed yesterday that taxes from tideland oil operations in California be used to develop rapid transit in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"People ought to recognize the importance of these two great economic centers in the state," Yorty told newsmen after an address to the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"We can't afford to have them strangled and become unproductive," he added.

Year-Round Schools

SANTA CRUZ (UPI)—George Christopher, Republican candidate for governor, suggested last night that proposals for operating schools 11 months a year should be seriously studied.

Steiner Street in San Francisco is named for a pioneer who delivered water from house to house.

Almonte Official Raps Back At Complaints

The chairman of the Almonte Sanitary District board yesterday termed George W. Blackwell's attack of the board as "vicious, unnecessary and completely uncalled for."

Robert A. Alexander replied to charges by Blackwell that district directors are "milking" Almonte taxpayers with high charges for service while paying themselves $25 a month wage. He said Blackwell was "grossly in error" in saying the district has not seen fit to act on proposals for a possible merger of neighboring sanitary districts.

"The board is now, always has been and always will be interested in any development to assure savings to the taxpayers our our district," Alexander insisted.

Alexander said he had heard statements that a merger would result in savings. "We would hope this could be proven to be the case," he said, "but, to date, we have seen no evidence to support this."

Almonte board members have agreed to pay for a study of a sanitary district for the Richardson Bay drainage basin.

Mill Valley City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer recently requested the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission to study several proposals, including a merger of Almonte, Alto, Homestead and Kay Park sanitary districts.

Almonte directors are awaiting a proposed contract with Mill Valley to process Almonte sewage.

At present, said Alexander, the district's tax rate is only five cents higher than that of Mill Valley.

"Blackwell should know it is improper to compare various costs and charges between districts. Each has its own different problems with respect to age, topography, and peculiarities of the particular district."

As for directors' pay, Alexander said he feels it is logical and "serves a good purpose," by creating a feeling of responsibility. Board members seldom miss meetings, and do their homework, he said.

The district rents office space from a board member. Alexander said it serves the district's needs. The board, he said, formerly met in a "completely unsatisfactory facility" with a leaking roof.

Blackwell had suggested a grand jury investigation of the district was in order to find out if directors were handling funds properly.

Alexander said the board had "nothing to hide" and would welcome a probe. District expenditures, he added, "are records in the public domain, and are available to anybody at any time."

ROSS

saying it was violently opposed.

On the question of Phoenix Lake, Mayor Frederick S. Allen said the water district no longer needs the reservoir for water supply, but has agreed to repair the dam, for about $200,000. He said the water district is seeking someone else to maintain the lake and nearby park facilities.

The county has designated the lake and surrounding watershed clear to Deer Park in Fairfax as a top priority item for a county park program, said Councilman Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. He feared there would be intensive development, including camping, by the county.

Martinelli predicted that there would be a major traffic problem for Ross, even though the main access is now planned to be from Fairfax, off the proposed Highway 17 freeway.

Allen said the town might be able to lease the area from the water district, thus precluding the county, but that the town would have to bear the cost of the lease and maintenance.

He added that the county will have access to state and federal money for the area, but that Ross might not.

Some money might be available for maintenance of the dam, itself, as a flood control project, Allen said. Councilman Roy Farrington Jones noted that on Jan. 4, although the lake had been empty and the drain at the bottom open, the heavy rain filled the reservoir to overflowing.

If the lake had been full, or the dam not there, he said, there would have been a much worse flood problem in Ross than there was.

Attorney James Fletcher of 295 Bret Harte Road, San Rafael, a former member of the County Park and Recreation Commission, said he did not feel the lake could be used for swimming because it was unsafe. He said he was not sure about boating.

He agreed with residents that camping should not be allowed.

Allen said he felt the town could not afford to manage the lake, but hoped a joint powers arrangement with the water district and the county might be worked out.

Judge Dissolves Grape Strikers Picketing Ban

VISALIA (UPI)—A temporary court order which had banned picketing in behalf of striking San Joaquin Valley vineyard workers at the ports of San Francisco, Oakland and Stockton has been dissolved by a superior court judge.

Judge Meredith Wingrove of Kings County, who took over the case after the Tulare County judge who issued the order was challenged by the pickets' lawyer, said yesterday that the picketing was neither violent nor illegal.

The temporary order had been obtained Dec. 14 by the Di Giorgio Corp. after pickets appeared at the ports to convince longshoremen not to handle grapes from the firm's struck Kern County vineyards.

The order also had the effect of wiping out charges against several pickets who had been arrested at the ports for violating the temporary restraining order by picketing.

Candace Rests; Trial Jury Set

MIAMI (UPI) — Candice Mossler rested in bed today, hoping to recover from a migraine headache attack before prosecutors begin their murder case against her and Melvin Lane Powers, her nephew and alleged lover.

Mrs. Mossler, 45, suffered the severe attack of headaches and nausea Thursday and had to leave the courtroom where she is on trial with 29-year-old Powers for the June 30, 1964 slaying of her husband, millionaire Jacques Mossler.

Prosecution and difense attorneys agreed on a jury before noon yesterday, in the 10th day of the Dade County Circuit Court trial, after questioning 135 prospective jurymen.

for that mountain. It's very inadequate."

"I am tired of driving to Oakland or Petaluma to get to my plane," he said. "Because I berth it in Oakland, I paid $150 in personal property taxes to Alameda County last year. This year, because I am buying a new plane, the figure will probably run to much more than $200."

Dickinson, dressed in suit and tie, climbed back into the plane, saying over his shoulder that he thinks the county airport should be located at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Until that airport is built, he said, "I think I'll just have to advertise for a little piece of land in the Larkspur-Corte Madera area that I can use as an airfield."

A West Point graduate, Sliney was twice winner of the Silver Star for combat action in the China-Burma-India theater. He retired from the Army in 1949. He is a native of Wyoming and a 20-year California resident.

He was first acting commander of the China-Burma-India Theater Veterans of San Francisco, and was a member of the China Tiffin Club, made up of persons who have lived in China.

Burial wil be in San Francisco National Cemetery in the Presidio.

DOUGLAS WILSON

Wilson, who had suffered from muscular dystrophy since he was four years old, was having dinner at the restaurant with a brother, Lt. Edwin Wilson of Travis Air Force Base, and a sister, Dianne Wilson, 18.

Assistant coroner William C. Bradley said Douglas Wilson had finished the meal when he collapsed in his wheelchair, apparently unable to breathe. Bradley said Wilson often had attacks of this kind.

He was taken to Hamilton Air Force Base hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Wilson was the son of Air Force Col. Meredith Wilson, 71, who is at present undergoing treatment for an illness in Letterman Hospital, San Francisco.

ALONZO ROBINETT

A 13-year-old San Anselmo boy, depressed since the death of a brother seven weeks ago, hanged himself at his home last night as his family was watching television, assistant coroner William C. Bradley reported today.

Alonzo Lee Robinette was found by his 18-year-old sister, Lonita, in a sitting position in his bedroom at 18 Austin Avenue. A necktie was tight around his neck and attached to a closet door knob.

The family and neighbors reported the boy had been despondent since his brother, Robert Robinette, 29, died from a brain injury in the Los Angeles area Dec. 2.

"The two brothers were very close and the younger brother felt the loss a great deal," said Bradley.

The boy, his sister and his parents, Del and Jesse Robinette, were watching television about 9:20 p.m. when the boy left and went into the bedroom.

Twenty-five minutes later, the sister was passing the bedroom, saw the light on and looked in.

San Anselmo firemen tried in vain to revive the boy. He was pronounced dead by Bradley at 10:05 p.m.

Alonzo, a seventh grade student at Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, is survived by his parents, his sister and a brother, Thomas Del Robinette of Fairfax.

An autopsy was scheduled today at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo, and funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Rapid Transit Hits Stalemate On Subway Bids

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The board of directors of the embattled Bay Area Rapid Transit District yesterday failed to reach a decision on whether to accept or reject a controversial $61 million low bid for two Oakland subway stations.

A last-minute motion was passed instead to hold the bid for option for another 15 days. The bid is $13 million higher than engineers' estimates for the job.

The district has conceded that it will need another $167 million to complete planned construction because of inflation.

The board did agree to approve an $89.8 million contract —largest in the contract to date —for construction of its transbay tube.

The figure is about $9 million over engineer estimates, but directors indicated that they thought the state would help out.

Solano Prison Inmate Hears Forgery Charge

Banker Charges FBI 'Planted' Loans Rumor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Don C. Silverthorne, former president of the defunct San Francisco National Bank, said Friday the FBI had "planted" a report of a loan the banker allegedly made to his co-defendent, William S. Bennett.

Silverthorne faced cross-examination by prosecution attorney James Brosnahan for the first time. The banker and Bennett, a Peninsula real estate developer, are on trial in federal court on fraud charges stemming from the collapse of the bank one year ago.

Brosnahan asked Silverthorne if he had told FBI agents that he had made a $150,000 loan to Bennett for the purpose of paying fees to money brokers for new deposits.

"That statement is untrue," Silverthorne said. "It's planted."

The trial will resume Monday morning before a jury of seven women and five men.

The President said "it is increasingly clear that we have had only a hostile response to the present pause in bombing North Viet Nam." But he pledged "unflagging pursuit of peace" and gave no indication when a decision on resuming the air strikes would be made.

Morse said he would ask that his resolution go to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for a thorough investigation of U.S. policies in both Asia and Latin America.

Urging Johnson to fire both Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Morse told the Senate that he would give all senators a "chance to be counted" on whether they want to "continue to give war-making powers to the President in Asia."

Such a grant is unconstitutional Morse said, adding that was why he opposed the August 1964 resolution now cited by the President. Johnson cited the resolution yesterday in his letter replying to Morse and 15 other senators who urged that the bombing lull continue.

"What disappoints me in the President is he wants to continue an executive war," Morse said. He also said only Congress can declare war.

Morse said he and other critics of the Viet Nam war had been smeared as "aiding and abetting the enemy."

This will not deter him, Morse said, from seeking a complete Senate inquiry into U.S. policies in Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic and adjoining areas.

Morse said Rusk told the Foreign Relations Committee Friday that the 1964 "resolution had not been rescinded."

"I propose to give the Senate a chance to rescind it," he said.

Morse said that 1964 resolution was directly related only to the Bay of Tonkin incident when U.S. vessels were fired upon.

He said the grant did not give the President authority "to go ahead and do anything he wanted" to involve us in war without a declaration.

"I refused to give the President any such unchecked power," Morse continued.

Johnson's letter of reply was sent to Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., a principal author of the letter in which the 16 senators said, "We believe you should have our collective judgment before you when you make your judgment" on resuming the bombing.

Tidelands Urged To Help Transit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty proposed yesterday that taxes from tideland oil operations in California be used to develop rapid transit in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"People ought to recognize the importance of these two great economic centers in the state," Yorty told newsmen after an address to the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"We can't afford to have them strangled and become unproductive," he added.

Almonte Official Raps Back At Complaints

The chairman of the Almonte Sanitary District board yesterday termed George W. Blackwell's attack of the board as "vicious, unnecessary and completely uncalled for."

Robert A. Alexander replied to charges by Blackwell that district directors are "milking" Almonte taxpayers with high charges for service while paying themselves $25 a month wage. He said Blackwell was "grossly in error" in saying the district has not seen fit to act on proposals for a possible merger of neighboring sanitary districts.

"The board is now, always has been and always will be interested in any development to assure savings to the taxpayers our our district," Alexander insisted.

Alexander said he had heard statements that a merger would result in savings. "We would hope this could be proven to be the case," he said, "but, to date, we have seen no evidence to support this."

Almonte board members have agreed to pay for a study of a sanitary district for the Richardson Bay drainage basin.

Mill Valley City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer recently requested the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission to study several proposals, including a merger of Almonte, Alto, Homestead and Kay Park sanitary districts.

Almonte directors are awaiting a proposed contract with Mill Valley to process Almonte sewage.

At present, said Alexander, the district's tax rate is only five cents higher than that of Mill Valley.

"Blackwell should know it is improper to compare various costs and charges between districts. Each has its own different problems with respect to age, topography, and peculiarities of the particular district."

As for directors' pay, Alexander said he feels it is logical and "serves a good purpose," by creating a feeling of responsibility. Board members seldom miss meetings, and do their homework, he said.

The district rents office space from a board member. Alexander said it serves the district's needs. The board, he said, formerly met in a "completely unsatisfactory facility" with a leaking roof.

Blackwell had suggested a grand jury investigation of the district was in order to find out if directors were handling funds properly.

Alexander said the board had "nothing to hide" and would welcome a probe. District expenditures, he added, "are records in the public domain, and are available to anybody at any time."

ROSS

saying it was violently opposed.

On the question of Phoenix Lake, Mayor Frederick S. Allen said the water district no longer needs the reservoir for water supply, but has agreed to repair the dam, for about $200,000. He said the water district is seeking someone else to maintain the lake and nearby park facilities.

The county has designated the lake and surrounding watershed clear to Deer Park in Fairfax as a top priority item for a county park program, said Councilman Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. He feared there would be intensive development, including camping, by the county.

Martinelli predicted that there would be a major traffic problem for Ross, even though the main access is now planned to be from Fairfax, off the proposed Highway 17 freeway.

Allen said the town might be able to lease the area from the water district, thus precluding the county, but that the town would have to bear the cost of the lease and maintenance.

He added that the county will have access to state and federal money for the area, but that Ross might not.

Some money might be available for maintenance of the dam, itself, as a flood control project, Allen said. Councilman Roy Farrington Jones noted that on Jan. 4, although the lake had been empty and the drain at the bottom open, the heavy rain filled the reservoir to overflowing.

If the lake had been full, or the dam not there, he said, there would have been a much worse flood problem in Ross than there was.

Attorney James Fletcher of 295 Bret Harte Road, San Rafael, a former member of the County Park and Recreation Commission, said he did not feel the lake could be used for swimming because it was unsafe. He said he was not sure about boating.

He agreed with residents that camping should not be allowed.

Allen said he felt the town could not afford to manage the lake, but hoped a joint powers arrangement with the water district and the county might be worked out.

Judge Dissolves Grape Strikers Picketing Ban

VISALIA (UPI)—A temporary court order which had banned picketing in behalf of striking San Joaquin Valley vineyard workers at the ports of San Francisco, Oakland and Stockton has been dissolved by a superior court judge.

Judge Meredith Wingrove of Kings County, who took over the case after the Tulare County judge who issued the order was challenged by the pickets' lawyer, said yesterday that the picketing was neither violent nor illegal.

The temporary order had been obtained Dec. 14 by the Di Giorgio Corp. after pickets appeared at the ports to convince longshoremen not to handle grapes from the firm's struck Kern County vineyards.

The order also had the effect of wiping out charges against several pickets who had been arrested at the ports for violating the temporary restraining order by picketing.

Candace Rests; Trial Jury Set

MIAMI (UPI) — Candice Mossler rested in bed today, hoping to recover from a migraine headache attack before prosecutors begin their murder case against her and Melvin Lane Powers, her nephew and alleged lover.

Mrs. Mossler, 45, suffered the severe attack of headaches and nausea Thursday and had to leave the courtroom where she is on trial with 29-year-old Powers for the June 30, 1964 slaying of her husband, millionaire Jacques Mossler.

Prosecution and difense attorneys agreed on a jury before noon yesterday, in the 10th day of the Dade County Circuit Court trial, after questioning 135 prospective jurymen.

"I am tired of driving to Oakland or Petaluma to get to my plane," he said. "Because I berth it in Oakland, I paid $150 in personal property taxes to Alameda County last year. This year, because I am buying a new plane, the figure will probably run to much more than $200."

Dickinson, dressed in suit and tie, climbed back into the plane, saying over his shoulder that he thinks the county airport should be located at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Until that airport is built, he said, "I think I'll just have to advertise for a little piece of land in the Larkspur-Corte Madera area that I can use as an airfield."

DOUGLAS WILSON

Wilson, who had suffered from muscular dystrophy since he was four years old, was having dinner at the restaurant with a brother, Lt. Edwin Wilson of Travis Air Force Base, and a sister, Dianne Wilson, 18.

Assistant coroner William C. Bradley said Douglas Wilson had finished the meal when he collapsed in his wheelchair, apparently unable to breathe. Bradley said Wilson often had attacks of this kind.

He was taken to Hamilton Air Force Base hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Wilson was the son of Air Force Col. Meredith Wilson, 71, who is at present undergoing treatment for an illness in Letterman Hospital, San Francisco.

ALONZO ROBINETT

A 13-year-old San Anselmo boy, depressed since the death of a brother seven weeks ago, hanged himself at his home last night as his family was watching television, assistant coroner William C. Bradley reported today.

Alonzo Lee Robinette was found by his 18-year-old sister, Lonita, in a sitting position in his bedroom at 18 Austin Avenue. A necktie was tight around his neck and attached to a closet door knob.

The family and neighbors reported the boy had been despondent since his brother, Robert Robinette, 29, died from a brain injury in the Los Angeles area Dec. 2.

"The two brothers were very close and the younger brother felt the loss a great deal," said Bradley.

The boy, his sister and his parents, Del and Jesse Robinette, were watching television about 9:20 p.m. when the boy left and went into the bedroom.

Twenty-five minutes later, the sister was passing the bedroom, saw the light on and looked in.

San Anselmo firemen tried in vain to revive the boy. He was pronounced dead by Bradley at 10:05 p.m.

Alonzo, a seventh grade student at Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, is survived by his parents, his sister and a brother, Thomas Del Robinette of Fairfax.

An autopsy was scheduled today at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo, and funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Some Children Better Off Raised In An Institution

By GENE SCHROEDER

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan State University psychologist says some children may be better off if they are raised in an institution rather than in their own homes.

The observation was made by Dr. Albert Rabin, MSU professor of psychology, who compared at first hand the personality of children brought up in Israeli Kibbutz cooperatives with children reared at home.

In Kibbutz communities, Rabin told a seminar of science writers this week, children generally are turned over to a cooperative nursery shortly after birth, with a nurse in charge of each group of four or five children.

Parents visit the child frequently, and as he grows up the child visits them — but does not live at home.

Rabin said his studies of the Kibbutz-reared child alongside the Israeli child reared in the conventional family setting showed that from the age of 10 through adolescence and then army life, those raised in the cooperative displayed higher intellectual development.

In the first year, he said, there was a slight lag on the part of the Kibbutz child.

The advantage of the cooperative system in raising children, Rabin reported, is that the natural parents can devote loving attention to the child while the nurses and teachers are responsible for handling the discipline.

"Kibbutz parents are much in the same position as grandparents in our society," he said. They just give love and affection and "they are not involved in any storm-and-stress period."

Rabin said he felt that the lessons learned from the Kibbutz communities might be applied in this country to cases where millions of dollars are being paid in aid to dependent children whose fathers have deserted the family.

"We might do better by putting this money into a program separating these children from their biological mothers," he said, adding that many of the fatherless children are living in a family which is not a family.

Rabin said he would like to see members of the Domestic Peace Corps devote two or three years to parental work "to give these kids a better chance in life" away from their usual slum-ridden environment.

SEW SIMPLE

Home Sewing More Exciting With Use Of Unusual Colors

Color, color, everywhere. This is not the season to be practical and stick to dull, drab colors. There's nothing like changing a drab winter into a lively one by your choice of clothes this time of year. Watch the many unusual color combinations used by designers. Then get up all your courage and do the same. It not only makes sewing more fun, but also gives you such a lift. Just watch the compliments.

Mrs. Christine Hazelwood, Abilene, Tex., wins a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for the following suggestion:

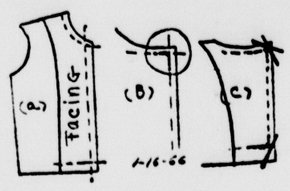
"Yes, you can hand-down sweaters from boys to girls. It's easy and it sure saves money. Sew up the original buttonhole with small stitches, and sew the buttons on top. Make machine buttonholes on the opposite front edge. If you place a piece of tissue paper on top and another under the sweater, stitching the buttonholes through the papers, the front edges won't stretch out of shape."

A new pattern I am making has a panel in the center of the skirt which is cut on a bias. After carefully stitching the seams, the center panel hangs lower at the center and seems to draw up at each seam. I tried not to stretch either seam when I stitched it.

Mrs. M. L. L.

Dear Mrs. M. L. L.:

This is one time when we must forget "trying not to stretch" the seams because of the bias construction. Instead of stitching this type of skirt from the hemline up to the waist, stitch from the waist down to the hem. It will be necessary to pull the bias slightly as you pin your seams together before stitching. This will make the center panel slightly longer, however, it can be cut off when hemming.



It is always a good idea to let any bias section hang a few days before construction. Then, it won't stretch anymore. Once it has stretched, you never try to ease this section into a shorter one. Don't be discouraged, often you will have to re-do this seam to achieve perfection.

How in the world do you stitch a nice corner? The neck edge and the corner at the hem of my jacket always look thick and rounded.

Mrs. E. C. C.

Dear Mrs. E. C. C.:

The difficulty is trying to pivot your stitching at the corner. Your eye is not always accurate enough to form a perfect right angle needed for a square corner.

(a) Stitch on the seamline and continue to the outer edge of fabric. Next, stitch your cross seam from the cut edge and continue on seamline. This will form a perfect corner.

(b) With a very short length machine stitch, reinforce this stitched corner 1 inch from corner (over previous stitching). Take one or two very small stitches across corner, and continue 1 inch further on the cross-seam.

(c) Clip the extra fabric from both sides of corner by cutting diagonally very close to stitching to remove excess fabric.

(d) Press all seams open carefully on your Tailor Trix Board. Turn garment right side out and carefully work the corner out, using a large needle in the seam. Do not use a sharp object to turn corners and do not pull on one thread as it will pull a hole in the corner. Try this method and you will have a lovely flat corner every time.

This is a perfect time to be thinking of your sewing tips. Send them to me, Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal. An old trick to you may be a new one to someone else. Share your ideas and you may win a Tailor Prix Pressing Board.

Parents visit the child frequently, and as he grows up the child visits them — but does not live at home.

Rabin said his studies of the Kibbutz-reared child alongside the Israeli child reared in the conventional family setting showed that from the age of 10 through adolescence and then army life, those raised in the cooperative displayed higher intellectual development.

In the first year, he said, there was a slight lag on the part of the Kibbutz child.

The advantage of the cooperative system in raising children, Rabin reported, is that the natural parents can devote loving attention to the child while the nurses and teachers are responsible for handling the discipline.

"Kibbutz parents are much in the same position as grandparents in our society," he said. They just give love and affection and "they are not involved in any storm-and-stress period."

Rabin said he felt that the lessons learned from the Kibbutz communities might be applied in this country to cases where millions of dollars are being paid in aid to dependent children whose fathers have deserted the family.

"We might do better by putting this money into a program separating these children from their biological mothers," he said, adding that many of the fatherless children are living in a family which is not a family.

Rabin said he would like to see members of the Domestic Peace Corps devote two or three years to parental work "to give these kids a better chance in life" away from their usual slum-ridden environment.

SEW SIMPLE

Home Sewing More Exciting With Use Of Unusual Colors

Color, color, everywhere. This is not the season to be practical and stick to dull, drab colors. There's nothing like changing a drab winter into a lively one by your choice of clothes this time of year. Watch the many unusual color combinations used by designers. Then get up all your courage and do the same. It not only makes sewing more fun, but also gives you such a lift. Just watch the compliments.

Mrs. Christine Hazelwood, Abilene, Tex., wins a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for the following suggestion:

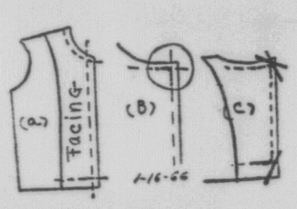
"Yes, you can hand-down sweaters from boys to girls. It's easy and it sure saves money. Sew up the original buttonhole with small stitches, and sew the buttons on top. Make machine buttonholes on the opposite front edge. If you place a piece of tissue paper on top and another under the sweater, stitching the buttonholes through the papers, the front edges won't stretch out of shape."

A new pattern I am making has a panel in the center of the skirt which is cut on a bias. After carefully stitching the seams, the center panel hangs lower at the center and seems to draw up at each seam. I tried not to stretch either seam when I stitched it.

Mrs. M. L. L.

Dear Mrs. M. L. L.:

This is one time when we must forget "trying not to stretch" the seams because of the bias construction. Instead of stitching this type of skirt from the hemline up to the waist, stitch from the waist down to the hem. It will be necessary to pull the bias slightly as you pin your seams together before stitching. This will make the center panel slightly longer, however, it can be cut off when hemming.



It is always a good idea to let any bias section hang a few days before construction, Then, it won't stretch anymore. Once it has stretched, you never try to ease this section into a shorter one. Don't be discouraged, often you will have to re-do this seam to achieve perfection.

How in the world do you stitch a nice corner? The neck edge and the corner at the hem of my jacket always look thick and rounded.

Mrs. E. C. C.

Dear Mrs. E. C. C.:

The difficulty is trying to pivot your stitching at the corner. Your eye is not always accurate enough to form a perfect right angle needed for a square corner.

(a) Stitch on the seamline and continue to the outer edge of fabric. Next, stitch your cross seam from the cut edge and continue on seamline. This will form a perfect corner.

(b) With a very short length machine stitch, reinforce this stitched corner 1 inch from corner (over previous stitching). Take one or two very small stitches across corner, and continue 1 inch further on the cross-seam.

(c) Clip the extra fabric from both sides of corner by cutting diagonally very close to stitching to remove excess fabric.

(d) Press all seams open carefully on your Tailor Trix Board. Turn garment right side out and carefully work the corner out, using a large needle in the seam. Do not use a sharp object to turn corners and do not pull on one thread as it will pull a hole in the corner. Try this method and you will have a lovely flat corner every time.

This is a perfect time to be thinking of your sewing tips. Send them to me, Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal. An old trick to you may be a new one to someone else. Share your ideas and you may win a Tailor Prix Pressing Board.

Dior's Collection Stirs Controversy

PARIS (UPI) — Dior's 1920 Charleston dresses and the ultra short skirts of Paris stirred up a controversy among American buyers. Some of them gave the style a flat thumbs down.

A survey showed that so far the favorite spring collection for most buyers was the zippy "sophisticated baby" look of designer Michel Goma at the House of Jean Patou.

The Dior show traditionally is patronized heavily by U.S. store and factory representatives who regard it as the main reason for their business trip to the Paris collection show.

But remarks by buyers emerging from the Dior showing indicated that designer Marc Bohan's short "bathtub gin" dresses with low-slung belts, blousy bust-hiding tops and pleated skirts may never make it to Seventh Avenue and the mass market.

"No woman will wear those dresses, they don't do anything for the body," said one New York store buyer. Another commented, "Women don't have thin hips like Dior models. The low belt and hip pockets and pleats just make hips look wider."

"They'll never sell," one American manufacturer added.

A Chicago buyer called the Dior show "frankly disappointing." A furrier described it as "good but not outstanding." But the buyers emphasized that although they may not go for the 1920 Charleston line there were plenty of more conventional sheaths, little suits and coats in the huge collection that would be purchased.

Buyers pay from $800 at small houses to $2,000 at Dior to see the shows. The price of entry can be applied to purchases, so the price, called a "caution," insures that anybody who enters will buy something.

Samuel Archibalds Will Host Luncheon Tomorrow In Ross

By MOLLY MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Archibald will entertain about 30 relatives and friends tomorrow afternoon with luncheon in their Ross home. Guests of honor will be her son, Donald Ham, who is in town on business from Paris and Sens, France, and her nephew, Kim Ham, visiting from Lima, Peru. Donald and his family will visit again this summer from their home in France, where he is manager for FMC Corp.

Also present at the affair will be Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Miller of Piedmont, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ham of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ham of Menlo Park, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Churchill of Hollister, Dr. and Mrs. Roswell Ham of Walnut Creek, Mrs. Marion Scott of San Rafael, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morrison of Sonoma.

COL. AND MRS. Clayton B. Claassen of Tiburon leave Tuesday for Colorado, where they will attend the wedding of their son, Clayton B. Claassen Jr. and Dianne MacCornack in Boulder, Colo., on Feb. 12. Their younger son, Fred, a student at Menlo College, will fly out in time to be his brother's best man. The Claassens are giving a large rehearsal dinner honoring the couple at the Cherry Hills Country Club in Denver Feb. 11. The party will have a Hawaiian motif, with flower leis to be flown over for the occasion. A Hawaiian orchestra and singing group will entertain. The Tiburon couple have accepted invitations for a number of parties for the betrothed pair to be given by friends in Denver and Boulder.

HONOREE AT A birthday dinner recently at the West End Villa in San Rafael was Mrs. Wendell Parks, who attended with her husband. Hosting the party were Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Dennis, who had as their other guests the Leo J. Harrisons, William Farrenkopfs, Mrs. Frances Casey and the Misses Katherine and Margaret Clancy and Patrick Casey.

THE NEWLY formed "Overstuffed Set" is not a group of Marin women worrying about the accumulation of post-holiday poundage, but a small group of friends who meet weekly for luncheon, then help one another with upholstery projects. The trim gals, who want to trim chairs, became acquainted when they all took a class in upholstery work. They found it so much fun that they wanted to continue their association. Included in the group are the Mesdames D. Douglas Dwyer, Tiburon; Ivan Van Winkle, San Anselmo; Frederic Weisenheimer and Les Tusup of Mill Valley, and Leo Garlock, Novato. They met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Tusup for luncheon.

NEWLYWED Col. and Mrs. Allen E. Buchanan of Hamilton Air Force Base were feted at a champagne reception given by Mr. and Mrs. John Hahn and Mr. and Mrs. William Moriarty at the latters' home in Tiburon. The bride is the former Mrs. Jeanne Basher of Belvedere.

Among the party guests were Gen. and Mrs. Rollin Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Tremmel of Orinda, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frederick Nelson, Maj. and Mrs. George Ritchey, Maj. and Mrs. Al Frazier, Capt. Charles Hayes, Irv Links and Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Horsman, all of Novato; Messrs. and Mesdames Fred Casella, Vernon Girtler, Irving Lipschultz, Milton Schwartz and Mrs. Lee Perley, of the Tiburon area; and the Don Wamsleys, Mrs. Mary Jane Williford and William Weeks of San Rafael. Coming from Fresno were the new Mrs. Buchanan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. DeJarnatt, and her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Mischler.

She is the mother of two sons, one a television director in Hollywood and one serving with the U.S. Army, and Colonel Buchanan has a son and daughter in Marin. The couple plan a wedding trip to Hawaii in March.

Tiburon Club Plans Family Crab Feast

The Tiburon Peninsula Club will hold a Crab Feast for members and their families Friday. Children will be served at 6 p.m. and see a movie. Adults will dine at 7 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schneider are chairmen, Mrs. Charles W. Pruett and Mrs. Jim James will assist and Mrs. Janet Blethen is reservations chairman.

Suspects Tripped By Auto Search

Two Fresno men who came to the sheriff's office in San Rafael to ask about their missing car wound up in jail shortly after midnight today, charged with a Nicasio burglary.

Deputies earlier had arrested a third suspect, Stanley Shrout, 28, of 51 Valencia Street, San Rafael, who was discovered hiding in brush near the summer home of John G. Ziel on the Nicasio-San Geronimo Road, Nicasio.

Inspector Kenneth Irving reported a window had been smashed and six guns were missing from the Ziel home.

Arrested at the sheriff's office were Dallas Earl Edwards, 21, and Robert Wayne Davis, 18. Shrout remained in jail in lieu of $2,750 bail today. Bail had not been set for the other two.

The break-in was discovered about 8 p.m. by Deputy Russell Hunt, who noticed a car he did not recognize parked in front of the Ziel house and decided to check. He saw three men leave by the rear door.

Other officers were called and scoured the countryside, finding Shrout. After checking with Ziel, officers found three rifles, two shotguns and a pistol had been taken. These were not found.

The car was impounded and taken to a garage.

DRAMA REVIEW

Cove Players Offer Sparkling Revival

By KARL BARRON

The re-activated Cove Players are off to an auspicious start with a new theater, and a new production of a time-tested winner—Lawrence Roman's bawdy Telegraph Hill comedy, "Under The Yum Yum Tree."

It opened Thursday under veteran Dan Totheroh's assured direction, and will play today at 8:30 p.m. and tomorrow at 5 p.m. at the Main Street Theater, 41 Main, Tiburon. It is scheduled for the following two weekends, Thursday through Saturday, at 8:30 p.m. Continuance of the Sunday performance will depend upon this week's attendance.

The play, which ran professionally in San Francisco for three years, centers around the attempt of Robin Austin, a University of California student, to maintain a platonic relationship with her boy friend, Dave Manning, while they share the apartment of her aunt, Irene Wilson. The plot is complicated by their landlord, a goatish madman known as "just Hogan." It's a show filled with laugh situations, depending on a fast pace —which Totheroh's cast maintains with few lags.

Topping the cast is John Peebles as Dave. Last seen as Shoeless Joe in "Damn Yankees' at Hamilton Air Force Base, Peebles turns in a totally different characterization. It is filled with wry humor, bits of very funny breathy passion, and flawless timing.

Lionel Stott's Hogan makes the most of a preposterous character, milking every possible laugh. He is especially good as he staggers about, hungover, with one pants leg rolled up, searching for his socks. We felt that Stott turned in a far funnier job than did Russell Nype in the San Francisco production.

Robin is played by a cute snub-nosed blonde named Carolyn Purse, who, with a little more experience, should be an actress to watch. Her comedy bits, notably a drunk scene, are very good, while her serious moments seem a bit strained. This is no great detriment, as Yum Yum has few serious moments.

Rounding out the cast is Maudee Willcutt as Irene. Through she looks the part, and reads her lines well, Miss Willcutt lacks the dryness of delivery that the character needs in order to put across the laughs. It's not a bad characterization, but many good lines fail to carry out the author's humorous intent.

The Main Street Theater deserves a word. On the second floor of Tiburon Tommy's, it can truly be called a "bandbox theater." The stage is set in one corner, and grouped on two sides of it are seats for 101 patrons. The whole thing is in miniature, and is totally charming.

The setting by Mary Hueston and Drue Gensler is carried out to scale, just allowing the actors room to get about, and lending still more charm to the production.

If it is assured laughs you're looking for, that address is 41 Main Street, Tiburon.

Drake Students Prepare For Trip With Seminars

A group of 20 Sir Francis Drake High School students who will tour Europe this summer have been holding fortnightly seminars with exchange students at the Dominican College and members of the College of Marin International Relations Club.

Usually the students meet in a Marin home, but the next seminar will be at a North Beach restaurant in San Francisco for an Italian dinner. The meeting, Feb. 12, will follow a day of attending the Model United Nations session at the University of California in Berkeley.

Drake English teacher John Tassone, who will lead the tour, is in charge of the informal meetings. The last session, Monday, was held at the home of Eric Jorgensen, a native of Denmark, at 220 Fawn Drive, San Anselmo. Jorgensen's daughter, Jeanne, will be on the tour.

The group saw a film on the United Nations and discussed whether West Germany should be included in that body.

Teachers Told To Keep Up On Space Age

An audience of Marin County schoolteachers yesterday heard Dr. Wesley Crum, dean of education at Central Washington State College, describe a meal which he once enjoyed in Seattle.

Every different kind of food had been flown to the city by airplane, he told the teachers. Afternoon classes had been canceled so they could attend the institute at San Rafael's Dominican College on aero-space education.

Crum also said that American Airlines tallied one of the biggest phone bills in the country last year.

Then he noted that astronauts fly at 17,500 miles per hour.

Finally, Crum told the teachers they must learn all they can about flying and space because if they don't, their students may come to school someday and know more than they do.

Marinites Help Hong Kong Child

Dr. and Mrs. George C. Wilson Jr. of 37 Marguerite Drive, Mill Valley, have financially "adopted" Yuen Kwok Hung, a 12-year-old Hong Kong boy, through the Foster Parents Plan of New York.

The boy's family left China in 1934. His 62-year-old father cannot find work and his mother earns $31.58 a month in a plastics factory. They live in an overhead loft, for which they pay $1.75 a month plus electricity and water charges.

An industrious fourth grader, the youngster was fifth last year in a class of 49. He hopes to go to work someday as a clerk, then work his way up.

Main To Boast Chinese Parade

For those unable to make it to San Francisco's Chinatown tonight for the Chinese New Year parade, a miniature version of the colorful parade will start at 2 p.m. Feb. 6 at the Town and Country Village shopping center in Strawberry.

Grand marshal will be Yin-Shou Che, consul general in San Francisco from Nationalist China. He will be accompanied by this year's Miss Chinatown, Jacquelyn Chun of Honolulu.

Shops in the center will be decorated with paper dragons, flying fish, Chinese lamps and signs denoting the Year 4664, Year of the Horse. The St. Mary's Drum Corps will perform.

Marine In Vietnam

Marine Cpl. Michael T. Rains, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rains of 255 C Street, San Rafael, is providing air defense for the Chu Lai, Viet Nam, Marine Expeditionary Airfield, as a member of Battery "C" of the Second Light Anti-Aircraft Missile Battalion, a unit of the First Marine Aircraft Wing.

Lake Balkash in Asia is one of the world's deepest lakes. In spots it is 5,000 feet deep.

Session Slated In Novato On Little League Problem

A special meeting of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission will be held at 7:15 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House to review plans for a Little League baseball park on the Rancho School site.

The Little League has proposed building a $10,000 ball diamond on the school site, which it will turn over to the city parks and recreation department for maintenance under the city-school recreation agreement.

The city is proposing to buy additional land on which the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce has offered to construct rest rooms and a tiny tot playground.

At 8 p.m., immediately following the meeting of the parks and recreation commission, the Novato City Council has scheduled a public hearing on the parks and recreation phase of the Novato master plan, in the same room of the Novato Community House.

This plan will be presented by Walter Horschler of the Marin County planning department.

More factory workers live in Brooklyn, N.Y., than in Pittsburgh and Detroit combined.

Marinites On Ship

Two Marin sailors have reported for duty aboard the aircraft carrier Kearsage, now undergoing overhaul at Long Beach. They are Fireman Apprentice David M. Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Normand B. Black of 27 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, and Fireman Apprentice Robert L. Hills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Hills of 580 Pinewood Drive, Marinwood.

Session Slated In Novato On Little League Problem

A special meeting of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission will be held at 7:15 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House to review plans for a Little League baseball park on the Rancho School site.

The Little League has proposed building a $10,000 ball diamond on the school site, which it will turn over to the city parks and recreation department for maintenance under the city-school recreation agreement.

The city is proposing to buy additional land on which the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce has offered to construct rest rooms and a tiny tot playground.

At 8 p.m., immediately following the meeting of the parks and recreation commission, the Novato City Council has scheduled a public hearing on the parks and recreation phase of the Novato master plan, in the same room of the Novato Community House.

This plan will be presented by Walter Horschler of the Marin County planning department.

MORE COUNCIL CANDIDATES APPEAR

Mrs. Owen Tries Again In Sausalito

MARSHA OWEN
Will run again

In Sally Stanford's newly published autobiography, "The Lady of the House," she writes, "I ran for the seat on the city council and damn near made it both times . . .

"I really consider it a wonderful honor to have received so many votes during those elections (1962 and 1964) and I will run again and again until I make it."

Yesterday, nomination papers were taken out at city hall for Miss Stanford under her legal name, Mrs. Marsha Owen, announcing her candidacy in the April 12 election.

Miss Stanford, 62, is a restaurateur and has owned and operated the Valhalla Inn at 201 Bridgeway in Sausalito for almost 18 years. She lives at 207 Bridgeway.

Asked what her platform will be, Miss Stanford replied, "business administration would be a good idea. What else is there?"

JOSEPH F. BONOMOLO

ROBERT JOHNSON
In race again

Two More Take Papers For Novato Vacancies

Two Novato men yesterday took out nomination papers as candidates for the Novato City Council.

Robert Johnson, 46, of 1414 Hill Street and Joseph F. Bonomolo of 201 San Felipe Way brought the total of candidates in the April 12 election to four. Mayor Robert D. Carrow and Mrs. Lucille Cannon have both announced that they will not seek another term.

He is a native of New York City and grew up there. He has lived in California for the past 27 years and owned a garage in San Francisco for 12 years prior to moving to Novato a year ago. He owns the Richfield Service Station in the Novato Fair Shopping Center. He is the president of the Novato Fair Merchants Assn.

A businessman all of his life, he stated that as a businessman he is interested in the growth of Novato. He can see lots of needs in the community, not only for the children and teenagers, but also for the adults.

He has been the treasurer for the Marin Federation of Improvement Clubs when he represented Los Ranchitos in the association. He is also a member of the Italian Catholic Federation.

He and his wife Celeste have five children, Frank, Gracetta, Tipton, Toni, and Carla and two grandchildren.

Johnson has been an unsuccessful candidate for the council twice before. He has been a member of the Novato Planning Commission since it was formed immediately after incorporation, and is the only member of the original commission still serving. He was planning commission chairman for two years.

He was a city council candidate when Novato was incorporated, and again four years ago.

He is a civil engineer at Hamilton Air Force Base. He is president of Tile Layer's Union Local 19 of San Francisco and a member of the Marin County Building and Construction Trades Council. He belongs to Masonic Lodge 24 in Yakima, Wash., his birthplace, and to the Presbyterian Church in Novato.

He and his wife Nancy have six children.

Mrs. Mathews Will Seek Second Belvedere Term

MRS. SARAH G. MATHEWS
Part of the team

Mrs. Mathews, 47, who lives at 53 Peninsula Road with her husband, Dr. Benton D. Mathews, was first elected to the council in 1962. She is the first Belvedere candidate to take out papers for this year's election.

As a resident of the Belvedere Lagoon area, Mrs. Mathews said she wants to stay on the council until the flooding and silting problems of the area are solved.

Mrs. Mathews said she feels the affairs of Belvedere are "running fairly smoothly and that the present council is functioning well as a team."

"But we still have some house cleaning to do — such as keeping the water out of our cellar. And speaking of house cleaning, I think it's healthy to have at least one woman on the council." She is the only woman on it.

She contended Belvedere should be working more closely with the city of Tiburon. "I feel almost as strongly about the problems of Tiburon as I do about our own," she said.

Mrs. Mathews has four children, Jody, 11, William, 13, Peter, 22, and Stephen, 24. She is president of the women's auxiliary of the San Francisco Yacht Club and is active in the League of Women Voters.

Two Charged With Drake Cycle Theft

Two San Francisco men, already in jail in San Francisco on a charge of auto theft, were rebooked at Marin County Jail by San Anselmo police yesterday, charged with the Jan. 19 theft of a motorcycle from a Sir Francis Drake High School student.

David Ray Sterio, 22, and Louis Leo Sterio, 20, were held in lieu of $1,100 bail. They were charged with the theft of a motorcycle owned by Bernard E. Kaholokula of 124 Allen Avenue, San Anselmo, from the school parking lot.

Police said they received a tip the Sterio brothers and another man were responsible for the theft, and that the cycle had been taken away in a car. San Francisco police made the arrest, saying the car involved was also stolen.

A third suspect, and the motorcycle, are still being sought, San Anselmo police said.

Wheels Stolen

Two tires and wheels, worth $82.02, were removed from a car parked in the lot of Ames Ford Sales, 619 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, owners reported to police yesterday.

Mexico Clamps Down On Foreign Banking

By DANIEL JAMES
Advance News Service

MEXICO CITY — Mexico is once again causing jitters among foreign investors, this time with three legislative bills which prohibit the participation of foreign capital in Mexican banking and financial institutions.

Though cautious in their initial reaction, United States and other foreign interests here have made it clear that they do not like the new legislation.

The First National City Bank, the only American bank with branches in Mexico, admitted cautiously through spokesman Richard P. Backus that "we might have some problems" as a result of the new bank legislation.

The three bills were proposed by the president of Mexico, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, in a message to the Mexican congress.

Although Backus added that the legislation "isn't aimed at us," it is reported in this city's financial circles that it was motivated by the bank's purchase of a controlling interest in the Bank of Honduras last October. Mexican leaders are said to fear that the giant American bank might someday have similar designs on banking institutions in this country, which they feel should remain in Mexican hands.

Another factor behind the proposed legislation is said to be the recent purchase by the Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. of a large block of shares in the Bank of London and South America, an old institution with major interests in Mexico and other Latin countries. The Bank of London and South America acts for many big international corporations in Latin America.

President Diaz Ordaz noted "the insistence of foreign interests in obtaining greater participation in our financial machinery" in his message to congress accompanying the bills.

Coming after what appeared to be discriminatory executive action early this year against American companies controlling Mexican sulphur production, the new restrictions are regarded with particular regret by American and other foreign interests in this country.

Mexican financial leaders insist that there is no cause for alarm.

The president of the Mexican Bankers Assn., Manuel Espinosa Iglesias, declared that the president's action "was necessary" because of the danger that Mexican banking institutions might be swallowed up by much larger foreign ones. But the new banking proposals "do not . . . mean that Mexico's banking system will ignore or turn its back on the always welcome experience and initiative" of foreign capital.

The law's application would be up to Treasury Secretary Antonio Ortiz Mena, who is widely regarded as a conservative in money matters and enjoys close ties with international financial institutions.

Meanwhile, ultranationalist and leftist forces are trying to make sure that the legislation strikes a serious blow at foreign interests.

Raul A. Ollervides, head of the ultranationalistic National Confederation of Manufacturing Industries, issued a statement demanding legislation to regulate all foreign investment in Mexico. That has been the demand of the confederation for years, and it is strongly supported by the Communists and other leftist groups.

One of the loudest supporters of such a restriction is the leftwing weekly, "Siempre," which for months has been running a series of articles purporting to demonstrate that American capital has a virtual stranglehold over the Mexican economy.

Novato Girl Tells Of Try At Kidnaping

An 11-year-old Campfire Girl told Novato police yesterday that a scar-faced man tried to kidnap her as she was selling mints in front of a supermarket yesterday.

Terree Michelle Falk, 455 Corte Norte, Novato, said she was outside the Safeway Store in Novato Fair Shopping Center at about 5:40 p.m. when she was grabbed by a scar-faced man.

She said the man took her arm and dragged her several yards. He said something like, "Come with me and get in my car," the girl told police.

She managed to break free. The man ran in one direction, the girl in another, said police.

Terree described the man as aged about 40 with a vertical scar on the left side of his face. He was dressed in a plaid shirt or jacket, gray-khaki pants and wore high work boots.

Youth Found Innocent

Vincent Blair Melovich, 18, of 424 Pine Street, Sausalito, was found innocent yesterday by Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court on a charge of possession of marijuana.

The youth, defended by Roger P. Garety, was accused of having the weed in a car in which he was riding in Sausalito last May 27.

MORE COUNCIL CANDIDATES APPEAR

Mrs. Owen Tries Again In Sausalito

MARSHA OWEN
Will run again

In Sally Stanford's newly published autobiography, "The Lady of the House," she writes, "I ran for the seat on the city council and damn near made it both times . . .

"I really consider it a wonderful honor to have received so many votes during those elections (1962 and 1964) and I will run again and again until I make it."

Yesterday, nomination papers were taken out at city hall for Miss Stanford under her legal name, Mrs. Marsha Owen, announcing her candidacy in the April 12 election.

Miss Stanford, 62, is a restaurateur and has owned and operated the Valhalla Inn at 201 Bridgeway in Sausalito for almost 18 years. She lives at 207 Bridgeway.

Asked what her platform will be, Miss Stanford replied, "business administration would be a good idea. What else is there?"

JOSEPH F. BONOMOLO

ROBERT JOHNSON
In race again

Two More Take Papers For Novato Vacancies

Robert Johnson, 46, of 1414 Hill Street and Joseph F. Bonomolo of 201 San Felipe Way brought the total of candidates in the April 12 election to four. Mayor Robert D. Carrow and Mrs. Lucille Cannon have both announced that they will not seek another term.

He is a native of New York City and grew up there. He has lived in California for the past 27 years and owned a garage in San Francisco for 12 years prior to moving to Novato a year ago. He owns the Richfield Service Station in the Novato Fair Shopping Center. He is the president of the Novato Fair Merchants Assn.

A businessman all of his life, he stated that as a businessman he is interested in the growth of Novato. He can see lots of needs in the community, not only for the children and teenagers, but also for the adults.

He has been the treasurer for the Marin Federation of Improvement Clubs when he represented Los Ranchitos in the association. He is also a member of the Italian Catholic Federation.

He and his wife Celeste have five children, Frank, Gracetta, Tipton, Toni, and Carla and two grandchildren.

Johnson has been an unsuccessful candidate for the council twice before. He has been a member of the Novato Planning Commission since it was formed immediately after incorporation, and is the only member of the original commission still serving. He was planning commission chairman for two years.

He was a city council candidate when Novato was incorporated, and again four years ago.

He is a civil engineer at Hamilton Air Force Base. He is president of Tile Layer's Union Local 19 of San Francisco and a member of the Marin County Building and Construction Trades Council. He belongs to Masonic Lodge 24 in Yakima, Wash., his birthplace, and to the Presbyterian Church in Novato.

He and his wife Nancy have six children.

Mrs. Mathews Will Seek Second Belvedere Term

MRS. SARAH G. MATHEWS

Mrs. Mathews, 47, who lives at 53 Peninsula Road with her husband, Dr. Benton D. Mathews, was first elected to the council in 1962. She is the first Belvedere candidate to take out papers for this year's election.

As a resident of the Belvedere Lagoon area, Mrs. Mathews said she wants to stay on the council until the flooding and silting problems of the area are solved.

Mrs. Mathews said she feels the affairs of Belvedere are "running fairly smoothly and that the present council is functioning well as a team."

"But we still have some house cleaning to do — such as keeping the water out of our cellar. And speaking of house cleaning, I think it's healthy to have at least one woman on the council." She is the only woman on it.

She contended Belvedere should be working more closely with the city of Tiburon. "I feel almost as strongly about the problems of Tiburon as I do about our own," she said.

Mrs. Mathews has four children, Jody, 11, William, 13, Peter, 22, and Stephen, 24. She is president of the women's auxiliary of the San Francisco Yacht Club and is active in the League of Women Voters.

Police said they received a tip the Sterio brothers and another man were responsible for the theft, and that the cycle had been taken away in a car. San Francisco police made the arrest, saying the car involved was also stolen.

Mexico Clamps Down On Foreign Banking

By DANIEL JAMES
Advance News Service

MEXICO CITY — Mexico is once again causing jitters among foreign investors, this time with three legislative bills which prohibit the participation of foreign capital in Mexican banking and financial institutions.

Though cautious in their initial reaction, United States and other foreign interests here have made it clear that they do not like the new legislation.

The First National City Bank, the only American bank with branches in Mexico, admitted cautiously through spokesman Richard P. Backus that "we might have some problems" as a result of the new bank legislation.

The three bills were proposed by the president of Mexico, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, in a message to the Mexican congress.

Although Backus added that the legislation "isn't aimed at us," it is reported in this city's financial circles that it was motivated by the bank's purchase of a controlling interest in the Bank of Honduras last October. Mexican leaders are said to fear that the giant American bank might someday have similar designs on banking institutions in this country, which they feel should remain in Mexican hands.

Another factor behind the proposed legislation is said to be the recent purchase by the Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. of a large block of shares in the Bank of London and South America, an old institution with major interests in Mexico and other Latin countries. The Bank of London and South America acts for many big international corporations in Latin America.

President Diaz Ordaz noted "the insistence of foreign interests in obtaining greater participation in our financial machinery" in his message to congress accompanying the bills.

Coming after what appeared to be discriminatory executive action early this year against American companies controlling Mexican sulphur production, the new restrictions are regarded with particular regret by American and other foreign interests in this country.

Mexican financial leaders insist that there is no cause for alarm.

The president of the Mexican Bankers Assn., Manuel Espinosa Iglesias, declared that the president's action "was necessary" because of the danger that Mexican banking institutions might be swallowed up by much larger foreign ones. But the new banking proposals "do not . . . mean that Mexico's banking system will ignore or turn its back on the always welcome experience and initiative" of foreign capital.

The law's application would be up to Treasury Secretary Antonio Ortiz Mena, who is widely regarded as a conservative in money matters and enjoys close ties with international financial institutions.

Meanwhile, ultranationalist and leftist forces are trying to make sure that the legislation strikes a serious blow at foreign interests.

Raul A. Ollervides, head of the ultranationalistic National Confederation of Manufacturing Industries, issued a statement demanding legislation to regulate all foreign investment in Mexico. That has been the demand of the confederation for years, and it is strongly supported by the Communists and other leftist groups.

One of the loudest supporters of such a restriction is the left-wing weekly, "Siempre," which for months has been running a series of articles purporting to demonstrate that American capital has a virtual stranglehold over the Mexican economy.

Novato Girl Tells Of Try At Kidnaping

An 11-year-old Campfire Girl told Novato police yesterday that a scar-faced man tried to kidnap her as she was selling mints in front of a supermarket yesterday.

Terree Michelle Falk, 455 Corte Norte, Novato, said she was outside the Safeway Store in Novato Fair Shopping Center at about 5:40 p.m. when she was grabbed by a scar-faced man.

She said the man took her arm and dragged her several yards. He said something like, "Come with me and get in my car," the girl told police.

She managed to break free. The man ran in one direction, the girl in another, said police.

Terree described the man as aged about 40 with a vertical scar on the left side of his face. He was dressed in a plaid shirt or jacket, gray-khaki pants and wore high work boots.

Youth Found Innocent

Vincent Blair Melovich, 18, of 424 Pine Street, Sausalito, was found innocent yesterday by Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court on a charge of possession of marijuana.

The youth, defended by Roger P. Garety, was accused of having the weed in a car in which he was riding in Sausalito last May 27.

Beard Shoots For Wire-To-Wire Lucky Golf Victory

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Golf's Kentucky sharpshooter Frank Beard aimed at a wire-to-wire victory in the $57,000 Lucky International Open tournament as he shot into today's third round.

The 26-year-old must keep on target even though he led by three strokes through 36 holes. For no fewer than 33 golfers have broken par to the midway point.

Tom Weiskopf was 137. The half dozen at 138 were Rocky Thompson, Terry Dill, Joe Taylor, Al Mengert, George Bayer and Joe Campbell.

Arnold Palmer blazed a 66 for his second round yet was back at 139 along with Miller Barber, also a 66 shooter, Dudley Wysong and Jay Dolan.

Gone is Don Massengale, the winner of last Sunday's Bing Crosby Tournament. He shot only a 148 and it took 145 or better to stay in the Lucky for the final two rounds.

Gene Littler, who won in 1962 with 274, didn't make the cut with a 146. Neither did Al Besselink nor Paul Harney with the same score. Canadian Al Balding, with 147, also was cut.

Beard, who recovered from a critical siege of sleeping sickness in 1964, hit only two bad shots, hooks from the tee on the sixth and 11th holes.

His putting was superb, with birdie putts of 12 feet at the third hole, eight at the fourth, 18 at the eighth and eight at the ninth. He capped the round with subpar holes at the 16th and 17th, needing relatively short putts of six and four feet.

"I was hitting the ball well and I hope I can keep it up," he said.

Beard won $40,377.96 last year and $3,165 this month so he's no stranger at the payoff window.

He termed the improvement in the Harding Park course amazing, but the weatherman, in addition to the groundskeeper, must get credit. An expected Pacific storm veered off, giving the Bay Area two days of bright, sunny and almost windless weather.

Beard started early on Friday and came in with his fat lead that none in the field could reduce. He had led three golfers by a stroke after the first round and only one of them—Mowry—stayed in close contention.

Jerry Steelsmith sagged to a 75-142 and Harold Kneece dropped to 73-140.

Palmer and Billy Casper already have won 1966 tournaments and each stayed high in the Lucky standings. Arnie had 139 and Casper finished his second round in an 11-player jam at 140.

Just one amateur survived the cut, 20-year-old Guy Bill of Oakland, who shot a 71-143. Bill has been the low amateur in the past two Lucky tournaments.

Some Teams Fight, Some Don't; Tars Rated 16th In California

SAN RAFAEL Recreation basketball league game between the Emporium and McGraw-Hill teams was abruptly halted in the third quarter the other night when players started fighting.

The three other games on the schedule were quite orderly, probably because they involved teams representing the San Francisco Theological Seminary, the Marin County Sheriff's Department, the United States Marine Corps and Paradise Pharmacy.

THEIR GREAT 88-78 victory over Santa Rosa two weeks ago has vaulted Marin's Tars to 16th place in the California Junior College Sportswire's basketball ratings. Santa Rosa is rated 17th.

AS FRANK SINATRA would tell you, "It Was A VERY Good Year," and so it was for Jeff Thorner, director of student activities at Terra Linda High School.

Jeff is one of THOSE red hot Southern California sports fans (don't you just hate them?) who really struck it rich last year, what with the Dodgers and the UCLA football and basketball teams winning just about everything in sight.

The rebel in our midst also has named his cat "Dodger," even though the feline is neutral.

WHEN HE addressed the Marvelous Marin Breakfast Club last week, Cal's new track coach Sam Bell had words of praise for ex-San Rafael High star Mike Shafer. "We think," said Bell, "he'll be an EXCEPTIONALLY fine half-miler."

Bell also apologized for what he says will be "a very thin" Cal cinder squad this year because his predecessor, Brutus Hamilton, "did not believe in recruiting."

However, he went on, "We're going to change that philosophy," which was music to the ears of Old Blues in the audience. Bell indicated he plans to build a cinder power at Cal through a recruiting system and lots of hard work, because, "We compete in the best collegiate track conference in the U.S., which is the best track country in the world."

FRANK SULLIVAN, a transplanted Marinite who attended both Tam and San Rafael high schools back in the 1930's, sends us a note from Sacramento about the football exploits of his son, Bob.

The proud pop enclosed a clipping which told about Bob, a split end on the American River J.C. team, catching 96 passes for 1,596 yards and 15 TDs the past two years, earning him a berth on the Junior College All-American squad.

Pretty remarkable when you consider he stands only 5-foot-9 and weighs 160.

Frank Sullivan says sons Nos. 2 and 3, Mike and Terry, "are on the heels of Bob and will be heard from in the near future."

FORMER WORLD light heavyweight king Archie Moore, the Old Mongoose himself, is living in Vallejo and is employed by American Savings and Loan Assn. He heads up a "school" for boys in moral and physical self defense at his Country Club Crest home.

Venturi's Painful Comeback

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ken Venturi, the courageous U.S. Open golf champion of 1964, continues along his comeback route with success and pain.

"I'm playing here because this is my home town and I wanted to," said the determined professional who suffered a circulatory ailment shortly after shaking a prolonged slump to win big money and the national title two years ago.

Asked if he had feeling in his hands, Venturi answered: "When my hands are red, there is feeling. When they get cold and blanch, they'll be numb in about 20 minutes. Like having your fingers on ice . . . not real painful but cold. It stings when the feeling comes back."

Venturi termed the ailment a nerve injury, one hard to heal. Asked if he would have to live with it the rest of his competitive golfing life, he replied:

"It could be something that I'll have to live with, but as far as golf goes, it won't be long. If I have to go through what I did yesterday, it's just too darn tough."

HAND WARMERS

Venturi carries special chemical handwarmers and works to keep the circulation going. He has undergone surgery trying to correct the ailment. Fortunately, the weather has been mild on his first two rounds of the Lucky.

He doesn't plan to play in cold weather but declares, "I'm going to play all I can in the summer."

Venturi also admitted he's aiming at the U.S. Open of 1966 which will be played at the San Francisco Olympic Club, just across Lake Merced from Harding Park.

"I only hope I can play as well through the year as I have in my first two tournaments — here and down South," the golfer said.

In the Los Angeles Open, Venturi carded a 71-70-74-69—284 to collect $637.50 in addition to the $225 he made in the pro-amateur.

U.S. GIRLS COP TITLE; ASHE WINS SEMIFINAL

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Americans Nancy Richey and Carole Graebner won the Australian Women's Doubles Tennis championship today, and Arthur Ashe advanced to the final in men's singles play.

Miss Richey of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, defeated defending champions Margaret Smith and Lesley Turner of Australia 6-4, 7-5.

Ashe of Richmond, Va., ousted Australian Fred Stolle 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, 10-8 and will play Roy Emerson of Australia for the title Monday. Emerson gained the final by beating fellow countryman John Newcombe 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

The American girls got ahead in the first set when they crashed through Miss Smith's service to lead 5-4. They gained one set point in the next game with Miss Graebner serving, but the Australians saved this after the longest rally seen on the center court this tournament.

At the next point, Mrs. Graebner fell heavily chasing the ball but got up unhurt. When the Americans gained the third set point Mrs. Graebner sent down a hard first service and Miss Richey smashed a winner off Miss Smith's return.

The Australian team led 3-0 in the second set with a break of Richey's service, but the Americans levelled 3-3 after cracking Miss Turner's service with hard volleys by Miss Richey.

At 5-5, Miss Smith double faulted and netted three times to give the Americans the lead and they raced 40-0 on Mrs. Graebner's services. The Australians saved 1-0 in the match point then Miss Richey smashed a winner for the title.

Ashe won after he recovered from a lapse in the second set when he played badly and gained only one point of the last 22 in the set.

Then he came back in the third set after making his third change of racquets. From then on he used one racquet for serving and another for receiving.

Seals Drop 5-2 Battle To Canucks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Seals will try for their first Western Hockey League victory under new ownership tomorrow when they play the Vancouver Canucks at the Cow Palace.

Third-place Vancouver beat fifth-place San Francisco 5-2 Friday night after the change in owners was announced.

Mel Swig, San Francisco real estate man, said he was withdrawing from active direction of the Seals. The new corporation includes actor-singer Bing Crosby and others in San Francisco and New York.

The Seals led 2-1 in the second period last night. Then Vancouver's Bob McCusker tied the score at 11:03.

Gordon Vejprava, Phil Maloney and Larry Popein each scored in the third period to put Vancouver far ahead.

Al Nicholson and Jean Picard scored the goals for the Seals.

FINALS ON TV

The final three holes of play in the Lucky International Golf Tournament will be telecast throughout California and Nevada beginning at 3 p.m. tomorrow on KTVU, Channel 2.

Seals' New Owners Eye Major League

A new ownership group of the San Francisco Seals Western Hockey League team has announced plans to seek a National Hockey League franchise next month.

Mel Swig, San Francisco real estate man, announced sale of his interest in the Seals yesterday. Swig said the new group headed by George Fleharty of the Shasta Corp. and Bing Crosby will try to get a NHL franchise for the San Francisco Bay Area.

It was announced that Fleharty and Barry Van Gerbig of New York, representing Crosby interests, plan to be in New York Feb. 7 to present a formal application to the NHL board of governors.

A group including both Swig and Fleharty and Crosby interests, applied for an NHL franchise for San Francisco nearly a year ago.

A Seals spokesman said the team will continue in the WHL through the 1966-67 season. It has not been determined where the Seals will play next season or the following year, if a NHL franchise is obtained.

Fleharty said his group would like the Seals to remain in the Cow Palace but the NHL has rejected the arena as unfit for major league hockey.

The Cow Palace management now is seeking $300,000 from the state legislature for improvements.

Swig became majority owner of the Seals about two years ago when he bought stock from Coleman Hall, a Vancouver, B. C. hotel man. He said other business and community interests would not permit him to run the Seals as a major league team.

"This development requires full time direction of the Seals," Swig said.

About a year ago Fleharty bought stock in the Seals, reportedly to the extent of about 50 per cent. Fleharty and the Crosby interests have offered minority shareholders a chance to take part in the NHL franchise move or sell their stock.

The NHL plans to add six new teams in a separate division by the 1967-68 season. San Francisco was one of the cities chosen.

A $10,000 guarantee of good faith must accompany a NHL franchise bid. The final purchase price is about $2 million.

Feud May Go To Supreme Court

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP)—The National League, asserting that a Wisconsin court order binds the Braves to Milwaukee as a hostage, has told the club to stay put in Atlanta—a decision that eventually could bring the most controversial franchise shift in baseball history before the U.S. Supreme Court

However, while the battle lines have sharpened because the disputing parties now are diametrically opposed, there still is no clear answer when the problem will be resolved, and what will be the situation when the regular season opens on April 12.

The latest development in the tug-of-war over the Braves came yesterday when National League President Warren Giles said the assembled club owners had authorized the Braves to fulfill their obligation to Atlanta by playing in the Southern city this season.

The move, in effect, challenged a Wisconsin court order that instructed the Braves to prepare to play in Milwaukee this year. But it clarified the legal skirmishing somewhat by putting the parties in opposing trenches and also apparently put an end to any off-stage maneuvers that might lead to a compromise settlement.

Giles, in revealing the owners' decision after a three-hour meeting, said the National League intends to comply with the order of a Georgia court which said the Braves must fulfill their contract with the Atlanta Stadium Authority.

Giles said the league believes the Wisconsin court has no power to grant "the very extraordinary and unprecedented injunctions requested by the Wisconsin attorney general which would require the Braves to remain in Milwaukee and to be held there as hostage until the National League expands under a plan dictated by the court.

"The National League intends vigorously to defend (resist) the Wisconsin action and has complete confidence that it will ultimately prevail."

League At Odds With The Judge

That left the National League at cross currents with Judge Elmer Roller of Milwaukee County Circuit Court, who just 24 hours before had ordered the Braves to prepare to play their 1966 home games in Milwaukee rather than Atlanta.

By choosing to "comply" with the Georgia court order — Giles said the National League did not intend to "defy" Judge Roller — the league opened the case to possible review by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Legal observers point out that when lower courts in two states issue conflicting orders, the case usually is appealed to the supreme courts in the states. If it can not be resolved on that level, then the matter could be put before the U.S. Supreme Court.

While that clarified the legal avenues open to the battling parties, the National League's decision probably wiped out the slim chance for immediate expansion and very likely ended any chance for a compromise that would give Milwaukee a franchise in the future in exchange for releasing the Braves now.

Meanwhile, Judge Roller rejected a plea by the National League to delay the trial of Wisconsin's antitrust suit until June 1. It is under the antitrust suit that the state is trying to prevent the Braves from abandoning Milwaukee as a major league city.

Judge Roller ordered the trial to start the morning of March 7. At the same time he refused comment on Giles' statement.

While Roller would not comment, one state official, who asked not to be identified, said sharply:

"If what I hear is true and they are defying an order of the court, I assume an attempt will be made in court very soon to try to enforce the order.

'Wisconsin Will Not Be Defied'

"I have some feeling that the courts of Wisconsin will not be quote — defied — closed quote."

Judge Roller's jurisdiction in the case has been upheld in a decision by a U.S. District Court late last year. However, National League attorneys have promised to challenge the decision that a state court can regulate baseball, first in an appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court, then to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

But there is some question whether a higher court will take the case before it is heard and decided in Judge Roller's court. And as long as Roller has jurisdiction he has broad injunctive powers that Wisconsin officials feel will be honored in other states.

The same officials contend the powers are binding under the U. S. Constitution's full faith and credit clause which extends validity of state court rulings to all other states.

Under the powers, a court in another state — New York, for example — could be asked by Wisconsin to order the Mets not to play the Braves in Atlanta. Compliance by New York, or any state with a National League team, would hopelessly tangle the baseball schedule.

The National League, on the other hand, contends the full faith and credit clause, is not applicable in this case.

'Expansion Is Not Feasible Now'

The National League also feels strongly that its legal point of view will be vindicated. Giles said so flatly in his statement while disagreeing with Judge Roller, who said that expansion was feasible now.

Giles statement, in part, said:

"The National League in November, 1964, before the Milwaukee suit was filed, authorized the Braves to move to Atlanta provided they fulfill their contract in Milwaukee ending in 1965 and provided they entered into a 25-year lease in Atlanta to be approved by the league.

"This they did. The league likewise expects the Braves to comply with the Atlanta lease as ordered by the Georgia court.

"The league is confident that it will prevail in its legal position that the members of the National League were legally entitled in the exercise of their experienced judgment to authorize the transfer of the Braves to Atlanta.

"Expansion in 1966 is not feasible, and operation in 1966 or at any time of an 11-club league would be a disaster for everyone."

Louis F. Carroll, counsel for the National League, said he would not care to anticipate the time and the place of any final settlement of the issue when he was asked to elaborate on Giles' prepared statement.

Venturi's Painful Comeback

"I'm playing here because this is my home town and I wanted to," said the determined professional who suffered a circulatory ailment shortly after shaking a prolonged slump to win big money and the national title two years ago.

Asked if he had feeling in his hands, Venturi answered: "When my hands are red, there is feeling. When they get cold and blanch, they'll be numb in about 20 minutes. Like having your fingers on ice . . . not real painful but cold. It stings when the feeling comes back."

Venturi termed the ailment a nerve injury, one hard to heal. Asked if he would have to live with it the rest of his competitive golfing life, he replied:

"It could be something that I'll have to live with, but as far as golf goes, it won't be long. If I have to go through what I did yesterday, it's just too darn tough."

HAND WARMERS

Venturi carries special chemical handwarmers and works to keep the circulation going. He has undergone surgery trying to correct the ailment. Fortunately, the weather has been mild on his first two rounds of the Lucky.

He doesn't plan to play in cold weather but declares, "I'm going to play all I can in the summer."

Venturi also admitted he's aiming at the U.S. Open of 1966 which will be played at the San Francisco Olympic Club, just across Lake Merced from Harding Park.

"I only hope I can play as well through the year as I have in my first two tournaments — here and down South," the golfer said.

In the Los Angeles Open, Venturi carded a 71-70-74-69—284 to collect $637.50 in addition to the $225 he made in the pro-amateur.

U.S. GIRLS COP TITLE; ASHE WINS SEMIFINAL

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Americans Nancy Richey and Carole Graebner won the Australian Women's Doubles Tennis championship today, and Arthur Ashe advanced to the final in men's singles play.

Miss Richey of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, defeated defending champions Margaret Smith and Lesley Turner of Australia 6-4, 7-5.

Ashe of Richmond, Va., ousted Australian Fred Stolle 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, 10-8 and will play Roy Emerson of Australia for the title Monday. Emerson gained the final by beating fellow countryman John Newcombe 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

The American girls got ahead in the first set when they crashed through Miss Smith's service to lead 5-4. They gained one set point in the next game with Miss Graebner serving, but the Australians saved this after the longest rally seen on the center court this tournament.

At the next point, Mrs. Graebner fell heavily chasing the ball but got up unhurt. When the Americans gained the third set point Mrs. Graebner sent down a hard first service and Miss Richey smashed a winner off Miss Smith's return.

The Australian team led 3-0 in the second set with a break of Richey's service, but the Americans levelled 3-3 after cracking Miss Turner's service with hard volleys by Miss Richey.

At 5-5, Miss Smith double faulted and netted three times to give the Americans the lead and they raced 40-0 on Mrs. Graebner's services. The Australians saved 1-0 in the match point then Miss Richey smashed a winner for the title.

Ashe won after he recovered from a lapse in the second set when he played badly and gained only one point of the last 22 in the set.

Then he came back in the third set after making his third change of racquets. From then on he used one racquet for serving and another for receiving.

Seals Drop 5-2 Battle To Canucks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Seals will try for their first Western Hockey League victory under new ownership tomorrow when they play the Vancouver Canucks at the Cow Palace.

Third-place Vancouver beat fifth-place San Francisco 5-2 Friday night after the change in owners was announced.

Mel Swig, San Francisco real estate man, said he was withdrawing from active direction of the Seals. The new corporation includes actor-singer Bing Crosby and others in San Francisco and New York.

The Seals led 2-1 in the second period last night. Then Vancouver's Bob McCusker tied the score at 11:03.

Gordon Vejprava, Phil Maloney and Larry Popein each scored in the third period to put Vancouver far ahead.

FINALS ON TV

The final three holes of play in the Lucky International Golf Tournament will be telecast throughout California and Nevada beginning at 3 p.m. tomorrow on KTVU, Channel 2.

Seals' New Owners Eye Major League

A new ownership group of the San Francisco Seals Western Hockey League team has announced plans to seek a National Hockey League franchise next month.

Mel Swig, San Francisco real estate man, announced sale of his interest in the Seals yesterday. Swig said the new group headed by George Fleharty of the Shasta Corp. and Bing Crosby will try to get a NHL franchise for the San Francisco Bay Area.

It was announced that Fleharty and Barry Van Gerbig of New York, representing Crosby interests, plan to be in New York Feb. 7 to present a formal application to the NHL board of governors.

A group including both Swig and Fleharty and Crosby interests, applied for an NHL franchise for San Francisco nearly a year ago.

A Seals spokesman said the team will continue in the WHL through the 1966-67 season. It has not been determined where the Seals will play next season or the following year, if a NHL franchise is obtained.

Fleharty said his group would like the Seals to remain in the Cow Palace but the NHL has rejected the arena as unfit for major league hockey.

The Cow Palace management now is seeking $300,000 from the state legislature for improvements.

Swig became majority owner of the Seals about two years ago when he bought stock from Coleman Hall, a Vancouver, B. C. hotel man. He said other business and community interests would not permit him to run the Seals as a major league team.

"This development requires full time direction of the Seals," Swig said.

About a year ago Fleharty bought stock in the Seals, reportedly to the extent of about 50 per cent. Fleharty and the Crosby interests have offered minority shareholders a chance to take part in the NHL franchise move or sell their stock.

The NHL plans to add six new teams in a separate division by the 1967-68 season. San Francisco was one of the cities chosen.

A $10,000 guarantee of good faith must accompany a NHL franchise bid. The final purchase price is about $2 million.

Feud May Go To Supreme Court

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP)—The National League, asserting that a Wisconsin court order binds the Braves to Milwaukee as a hostage, has told the club to stay put in Atlanta—a decision that eventually could bring the most controversial franchise shift in baseball history before the U.S. Supreme Court

However, while the battle lines have sharpened because the disputing parties now are diametrically opposed, there still is no clear answer when the problem will be resolved, and what will be the situation when the regular season opens on April 12.

The latest development in the tug-of-war over the Braves came yesterday when National League President Warren Giles said the assembled club owners had authorized the Braves to fulfill their obligation to Atlanta by playing in the Southern city this season.

The move, in effect, challenged a Wisconsin court order that instructed the Braves to prepare to play in Milwaukee this year. But it clarified the legal skirmishing somewhat by putting the parties in opposing trenches and also apparently put an end to any off-stage maneuvers that might lead to a compromise settlement.

Giles, in revealing the owners' decision after a three-hour meeting, said the National League intends to comply with the order of a Georgia court which said the Braves must fulfill their contract with the Atlanta Stadium Authority.

Giles said the league believes the Wisconsin court has no power to grant "the very extraordinary and unprecedented injunctions requested by the Wisconsin attorney general which would require the Braves to remain in Milwaukee and to be held there as hostage until the National League expands under a plan dictated by the court.

"The National League intends vigorously to defend (resist) the Wisconsin action and has complete confidence that it will ultimately prevail."

League At Odds With The Judge

That left the National League at cross currents with Judge Elmer Roller of Milwaukee County Circuit Court, who just 24 hours before had ordered the Braves to prepare to play their 1966 home games in Milwaukee rather than Atlanta.

By choosing to "comply" with the Georgia court order — Giles said the National League did not intend to "defy" Judge Roller — the league opened the case to possible review by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Legal observers point out that when lower courts in two states issue conflicting orders, the case usually is appealed to the supreme courts in the states. If it can not be resolved on that level, then the matter could be put before the U.S. Supreme Court.

While that clarified the legal avenues open to the battling parties, the National League's decision probably wiped out the slim chance for immediate expansion and very likely ended any chance for a compromise that would give Milwaukee a franchise in the future in exchange for releasing the Braves now.

Meanwhile, Judge Roller rejected a plea by the National League to delay the trial of Wisconsin's antitrust suit until June 1. It is under the antitrust suit that the state is trying to prevent the Braves from abandoning Milwaukee as a major league city.

Judge Roller ordered the trial to start the morning of March 7. At the same time he refused comment on Giles' statement.

While Roller would not comment, one state official, who asked not to be identified, said sharply:

"If what I hear is true and they are defying an order of the court, I assume an attempt will be made in court very soon to try to enforce the order.

'Wisconsin Will Not Be Defied'

"I have some feeling that the courts of Wisconsin will not be quote — defied — closed quote."

Judge Roller's jurisdiction in the case has been upheld in a decision by a U.S. District Court late last year. However, National League attorneys have promised to challenge the decision that a state court can regulate baseball, first in an appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court, then to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

But there is some question whether a higher court will take the case before it is heard and decided in Judge Roller's court. And as long as Roller has jurisdiction he has broad injunctive powers that Wisconsin officials feel will be honored in other states.

The same officials contend the powers are binding under the U. S. Constitution's full faith and credit clause which extends validity of state court rulings to all other states.

Under the powers, a court in another state — New York, for example — could be asked by Wisconsin to order the Mets not to play the Braves in Atlanta. Compliance by New York, or any state with a National League team, would hopelessly tangle the baseball schedule.

The National League, on the other hand, contends the full faith and credit clause, is not applicable in this case.

'Expansion Is Not Feasible Now'

The National League also feels strongly that its legal point of view will be vindicated. Giles said so flatly in his statement while disagreeing with Judge Roller, who said that expansion was feasible now.

Giles statement, in part, said: "The National League in November, 1964, before the Milwaukee suit was filed, authorized the Braves to move to Atlanta provided they fulfill their contract in Milwaukee ending in 1965 and provided they entered into a 25-year lease in Atlanta to be approved by the league.

"This they did. The league likewise expects the Braves to comply with the Atlanta lease as ordered by the Georgia court.

"The league is confident that it will prevail in its legal position that the members of the National League were legally entitled in the exercise of their experienced judgment to authorize the transfer of the Braves to Atlanta.

"Expansion in 1966 is not feasible, and operation in 1966 or at any time of an 11-club league would be a disaster for everyone."

Louis F. Carroll, counsel for the National League, said he would not care to anticipate the time and the place of any final settlement of the issue when he was asked to elaborate on Giles' prepared statement.

UCLA, Stanford Lose; USF Wins

Loyola '5' Surprises The Bruins

By The Associated Press

It's cold in Chicago and so were the UCLA Bruins as they tried unsuccessfully to play their way back up the national basketball ratings.

The 10th-ranked Bruins lost to seventh-rated Chicago Loyola last night in overtime, 102-96. It was the fifth loss against 10 victories for the NCAA defending champion Uclans.

In other non-conference action involving Pacific Athletic Conference teams, Oregon downed visiting Portland, 77 - 62; Washington whipped touring Hawaii, 111-52, and Stanford ran into an Arizona whirlwind, to lose, 94-54.

Southern Cal stopped off in San Francisco where USF — co-leader of the West Coast Athletic Conference at 3-0 with University of the Pacific—topped the Trojans, 81-73.

Another WCAC team, Pepperdine, lost a torrid battle to the University of San Diego, 83-81, in a game where the lead changed hands in final minutes almost every 30 seconds.

In today's action, Hawaii is at Washington, California visits San Jose State, Arizona State hosts Stanford, Southern Cal is at Santa Clara, Gonzaga at Washington State and University of Pacific at San Francisco State.

San Jose and Santa Clara are both WCAC members, while Washington State belongs to the PAC, but none of today's games will affect conference standings.

BALL STEALERS

In Chicago, UCLA was paced by sophomore Mike Warren who made 25 points. But the Bruins were unable to keep up the pressure against the ball-stealing Ramblers when the chips were down.

Loyola's Jim Coleman led both teams with 29 points. He tied the game 94-94 with 30 seconds remaining. Then the Ramblers quickly pumped in eight points in the five extra minutes to swell their season record to 14-1.

The USF Dons scored their 30th straight home court victory on the rebounding of Joe Ellis, the shooting of Irwin Mueller and the floor play of Russ Gumina — a trio that shares team captain chores. Mueller hit for 25, Ellis for 23 and Gumina for 19. John Block led the Trojans with 25.

In Tucson, Arizona got hot right away with a 24-6 lead in the opening 10 minutes and stayed warm, dropping in a strong 61 per cent from the floor. The Wildcats had five players in double figures led by Bob Hansen with 19 points. Bob Bedell led the Indians with 15.

Terra Linda, Drake Win Thrillers

Tam Upset By Trojans At Buzzer

And even Trojan forward John Ahern might have been surprised when he saw his 30-foot shot drop through the cords after the buzzer had sounded to give the Terra Linda hoopsters a thrilling 56-54 victory over the visitors from Tam.

Terra led by as much as 12 points in the first half, but then Tam rallied and cut the margin to five points at the end of the third quarter.

The Indians' managed to take the lead in the final period, but after a furious exchange of buckets, the Terra Linda hoopsters knotted it up at 48-all.

With about 55 seconds left to play, 5-10 guard Fred Daniele kept the Trojans in the game with 3 out of 4 clutch free tosses, setting the stage for Ahern's shot in the last 3 seconds.

Trojan Brian Perron's 20 points paced the winners' offense, followed by Daniele with 11 and 5-7 guard Craig Hill with 8.

Steven Johnson scored 14 points for the Indians, and Steve Woodward topped the visitors scoring with 15 points on 6 buckets and 3 free throws.

Honor Jackson led all rebounders with 9, but Terra Linda took team honors 37-32 as Perron and Daniele each had 8 for the victors.

The Trojans connected for 44 per cent from the floor and shot a very hot 71 per cent from the field as compared to 34 per cent from the floor for Tam and 55 per cent from the give-away line.

Bucs Shade Marin In Overtime

Will Curley sank a 20-foot jumper with only three seconds left in an overtime period to give the Drake Pirates a 48-46 triumph over the Marin Catholic Wildcats last night at Marin Catholic.

Except in the first period when the Drake quint vaulted out to a 12-3 lead, it was a give-and-take battle all the way.

The Pirates had to rally to tie it at the wire, sending the game into an overtime period, and Curley's 20-footer iced it to keep the Pirates in the main stream of the Marin Athletic League basketball race.

The Drake cagers played the overtime period without the services of forward Chet Carlisle who fouled out with five minutes and fifty-six seconds left in regulation play. Bob Tobin, Drake's 6-5 boardsweeper, grabbed 12 rebounds and played the entire overtime period with 4 fouls, as did Marin's Mike Lasater and Pat Waltz. Tobin also scored 10 points.

LOMBARDI STARS

Marin center Bob Lombardi led all rebounders with 13 but the Drake quint dominated the boards, 35-32.

Forward Jerry Sprout led Pirate scorers with 13 points, tying with 'Cat Ches Bornia for game high honors, while Bill Ingram chipped in 12 markers for the visitors and Lasater and Lombardi tallied 9 and 10 points respectively for the home team.

The Drake boys canned 18 of 63 from the field for a weak 29 per cent, and the Marin cagers hit for 35 per cent. But from the free throw line it was Drake 56-27 per cent.

Drake statistician Tony Press noted that in the Pirates' last eight games against Marin Catholic, five of them have been decided by two points or less.

TOM CORDER SETS PACE AS

Novato Tops San Rafael...

Tom Corder's well-rounded 22-point performance paced the Novato Hornets to a 68-44 victory over the San Rafael Bulldogs last night at Novato.

The 6-1 forward canned 7 from the field to lead all scorers while guard John Dolinsek chalked up 16 for the Novato quint on 6 from the floor and 4 charity tosses and topped all rebounders with 10.

Leading 35-22 at the half, the Novato cagers came back onto the court and started doing the same thing again, hitting on shot after shot, while the hungry San Rafael boys just could not find the range. Evidence of this is that they made only 17 of 64 from the field for 27 per cent. Novato tallied a sizzling 56 per cent, (25x45).

Other boys who played well for the Hornets were Ev Fritz with 13 points on 5 baskets and 3 free throws, and Al Parsons who chipped in with 7 markers and pulled down an identical number of rebounds.

Novato led in rebounds as a team, 26-22.

Guard Joe Cunningham played another sturdy all-around game for the Bulldogs, scoring 12 points on 6 buckets to lead the visitors' offense, while Dick Draney and Jeff Allen each had 11.

Finals Tomorrow In All-Star Keg

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Defending champion Dick Weber and Nelson Burton Jr., both of St. Louis, held commanding leads in the men's section of the All-Star Bowling Tournament going into today's final day of match play.

Weber, a three time champion of the event, boosted his advantage to 254 pins over Bob Strampe of Detroit in six matches yesterday. Weber started the day only 14 points ahead on Strampe, early preliminary champion.

The 23-year-old Burton added 82 pins to his lead over Bill Johnson of New Orleans, La. The young St. Louis bowler, whose father is in the Bowling Hall of Fame, carried a 298-point advantage into the final day of qualifying.

The women's section was much closer than the men's yesterday.

Miss Abel was 27 pins ahead of Loa Boxberger of Russell, Kan., and Mrs. Duval held a 33 point advantage over Joan Winsch of South Bend, Ind.

The men's field of 16 also is split into two divisions, American and National. Division standings are figured on total pins plus a bonus of 50 for each game won.

When the 22nd round of head-to-head competition is completed tonight the two division leaders will qualify for tomorrow's championship series.

All previous scores will be dropped and the $15,000 first prize will go to the winner of one three-game set.

The women use the same format but will be shooting for a $5,000 first prize.

Terra Linda, Drake Win Thrillers

And even Trojan forward John Ahern might have been surprised when he saw his 30-foot shot drop through the cords after the buzzer had sounded to give the Terra Linda hoopsters a thrilling 56-54 victory over the visitors from Tam.

Terra led by as much as 12 points in the first half, but then Tam rallied and cut the margin to five points at the end of the third quarter.

The Indians' managed to take the lead in the final period, but after a furious exchange of buckets, the Terra Linda hoopsters knotted it up at 48-all.

With about 55 seconds left to play, 5-10 guard Fred Daniele kept the Trojans in the game with 3 out of 4 clutch free tosses, setting the stage for Ahern's shot in the last 3 seconds.

Trojan Brian Perron's 20 points paced the winners' offense, followed by Daniele with 11 and 5-7 guard Craig Hill with 8.

Steven Johnson scored 14 points for the Indians, and Steve Woodward topped the visitors scoring with 15 points on 6 buckets and 3 free throws.

Honor Jackson led all rebounders with 9, but Terra Linda took team honors 37-32 as Perron and Daniele each had 8 for the victors.

The Trojans connected for 44 per cent from the floor and shot a very hot 71 per cent from the field as compared to 34 per cent from the floor for Tam and 55 per cent from the give-away line.

Bucs Shade Marin In Overtime

Will Curley sank a 20-foot jumper with only three seconds left in an overtime period to give the Drake Pirates a 48-46 triumph over the Marin Catholic Wildcats last night at Marin Catholic.

Except in the first period when the Drake quint vaulted out to a 12-3 lead, it was a give-and-take battle all the way.

The Pirates had to rally to tie it at the wire, sending the game into an overtime period, and Curley's 20-footer iced it to keep the Pirates in the main stream of the Marin Athletic League basketball race.

The Drake cagers played the overtime period without the services of forward Chet Carlisle who fouled out with five minutes and fifty-six seconds left in regulation play. Bob Tobin, Drake's 6-5 boardsweeper, grabbed 12 rebounds and played the entire overtime period with 4 fouls, as did Marin's Mike Lasater and Pat Waltz. Tobin also scored 10 points.

LOMBARDI STARS

Marin center Bob Lombardi led all rebounders with 13 but the Drake quint dominated the boards, 35-32.

Forward Jerry Sprout led Pirate scorers with 13 points, tying with 'Cat Ches Bornia for game high honors, while Bill Ingram chipped in 12 markers for the visitors and Lasater and Lombardi tallied 9 and 10 points respectively for the home team.

The Drake boys canned 18 of 63 from the field for a weak 29 per cent, and the Marin cagers hit for 35 per cent. But from the free throw line it was Drake 56-27 per cent.

Drake statistician Tony Press noted that in the Pirates' last eight games against Marin Catholic, five of them have been decided by two points or less.

TOM CORDER SETS PACE AS

Novato Tops San Rafael...

Tom Corder's well-rounded 22-point performance paced the Novato Hornets to a 68-44 victory over the San Rafael Bulldogs last night at Novato.

The 6-1 forward canned 7 from the field to lead all scorers while guard John Dolinsek chalked up 16 for the Novato quint on 6 from the floor and 4 charity tosses and topped all rebounders with 10.

Leading 35-22 at the half, the Novato cagers came back onto the court and started doing the same thing again, hitting on shot after shot, while the hungry San Rafael boys just could not find the range. Evidence of this is that they made only 17 of 64 from the field for 27 per cent. Novato tallied a sizzling 56 per cent, (25x45).

Other boys who played well for the Hornets were Ev Fritz with 13 points on 5 baskets and 3 free throws, and Al Parsons who chipped in with 7 markers and pulled down an identical number of rebounds.

Novato led in rebounds as a team, 26-22.

Guard Joe Cunningham played another sturdy all-around game for the Bulldogs, scoring 12 points on 6 buckets to lead the visitors' offense, while Dick Draney and Jeff Allen each had 11.

UCLA, Stanford Lose; USF Wins

Loyola '5' Surprises The Bruins

By The Associated Press

It's cold in Chicago and so were the UCLA Bruins as they tried unsuccessfully to play their way back up the national basketball ratings.

The 10th-ranked Bruins lost to seventh-rated Chicago Loyola last night in overtime, 102-96. It was the fifth loss against 10 victories for the NCAA defending champion Uclans.

In other non-conference action involving Pacific Athletic Conference teams, Oregon downed visiting Portland, 77 - 62; Washington whipped touring Hawaii, 111-52, and Stanford ran into an Arizona whirlwind, to lose, 94-54.

Southern Cal stopped off in San Francisco where USF — co-leader of the West Coast Athletic Conference at 3-0 with University of the Pacific—topped the Trojans, 81-73.

Another WCAC team, Pepperdine, lost a torrid battle to the University of San Diego, 83-81, in a game where the lead changed hands in final minutes almost every 30 seconds.

In today's action, Hawaii is at Washington, California visits San Jose State, Arizona State hosts Stanford, Southern Cal is at Santa Clara, Gonzaga at Washington State and University of Pacific at San Francisco State.

San Jose and Santa Clara are both WCAC members, while Washington State belongs to the PAC, but none of today's games will affect conference standings.

BALL STEALERS

In Chicago, UCLA was paced by sophomore Mike Warren who made 25 points. But the Bruins were unable to keep up the pressure against the ball-stealing Ramblers when the chips were down.

Loyola's Jim Coleman led both teams with 29 points. He tied the game 94-94 with 30 seconds remaining. Then the Ramblers quickly pumped in eight points in the five extra minutes to swell their season record to 14-1.

The USF Dons scored their 30th straight home court victory on the rebounding of Joe Ellis, the shooting of Irwin Mueller and the floor play of Russ Gumina — a trio that shares team captain chores. Mueller hit for 25, Ellis for 23 and Gumina for 19. John Block led the Trojans with 25.

In Tucson, Arizona got hot right away with a 24-6 lead in the opening 10 minutes and stayed warm, dropping in a strong 61 per cent from the floor. The Wildcats had five players in double figures led by Bob Hansen with 19 points. Bob Bedell led the Indians with 15.

Finals Tomorrow In All-Star Keg

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Defending champion Dick Weber and Nelson Burton Jr., both of St. Louis, held commanding leads in the men's section of the All-Star Bowling Tournament going into today's final day of match play.

Weber, a three time champion of the event, boosted his advantage to 254 pins over Bob Strampe of Detroit in six matches yesterday. Weber started the day only 14 points ahead on Strampe, early preliminary champion.

The 23-year-old Burton added 82 pins to his lead over Bill Johnson of New Orleans, La. The young St. Louis bowler, whose father is in the Bowling Hall of Fame, carried a 298-point advantage into the final day of qualifying.

The women's section was much closer than the men's yesterday.

Miss Abel was 27 pins ahead of Loa Boxberger of Russell, Kan., and Mrs. Duval held a 33 point advantage over Joan Winsch of South Bend, Ind.

The men's field of 16 also is split into two divisions, American and National. Division standings are figured on total pins plus a bonus of 50 for each game won.

When the 22nd round of head-to-head competition is completed tonight the two division leaders will qualify for tomorrow's championship series.

All previous scores will be dropped and the $15,000 first prize will go to the winner of one three-game set.

The women use the same format but will be shooting for a $5,000 first prize.

An Extra $7,000 For Lucky Kitty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With the Lucky International Golf Tournament in its second day officials announced yesterday a $7,000 increase in purses because of television revenue.

This means the professionals will divide $57,000 in addition to the $5,000 split for the pro-amateur prelude on Wednesday.

Top prize will be $8,500, an increase of $1,000; with $4,600 for second, $3,700 for third, $3,200 for fourth and scaled down to $200 for 45th place.

"This was made possible when we were informed we will receive $7,000 as our share of the Professional Golfers Assn. national tour television package," said tournament direction John J. Keane.

Foes Of Parallel Parking Have Doubtful Arguments

SAN RAFAEL'S COMMITTEE Against Parallel Parking (along Fourth Street) bases its opposition on a dozen published assertions.

ASSERTION NO. 1: "Parallel parking will destroy up to 139 parking spaces—irreplaceable during present busy periods."

This is misleading. Actually, the final plans and specifications prepared by the city's Department of Public Works show the elimination of only 89 parking spaces along Fourth between Lincoln and E streets. The loss of all 89 is NOT attributable to the proposed switch from diagonal to parallel parking. In many instances present diagonal parking places are nearer to intersections than city ordinances allow; some existing diagonal spaces need to be eliminated to conform to existing ordinance. It isn't fair to charge this to the proposed switch.

"Irreplaceable?" San Rafael will needs more off-street public parking lots and the need will—unless San Rafel's shopping district withers and dies — increase further in the future. In meeting that need it would not be impossible to provide another 80 or 90 spaces to replace those which would be lost in making Fourth Street a more desirable street for visiting shoppers to drive along.

ASSERTION NO. 2: "Destroy parking spaces that to replace with off-street parking would cost up to and possibly over $600,000."

Here the committee disproves its first contention that the spaces are "irreplaceable." Parking meter revenues are used to pay off the bonds issued to cover the cost of off-street parking developments. Revenues are running 'way ahead of original estimates resulting in surpluses that are becoming available for earlier action to provide more off-street parking.

ASSERTION NO. 3: "Increasing population — San Rafael is in one of the fastest growing areas in Northern California — will need this lost space almost immediately."

Fourth Street traffic congestion is in even more immediate need for relief than parking. During much of the day there are parking spaces available nearby. Some are to be found on cross streets within a block of Fourth, and the upper deck of the off-street lot at Third and Lootens still has vacancies much of the time.

ASSERTION NO. 4: "San Rafael is in a desperate struggle to survive in face of the new shopping centers, one of which now has 5,000-plus diagonal spaces and thus parallel parking (and with meters) might be a death blow at this time."

Off street parking lots should have diagonal parking. Through streets should not. The through streets leading to and/or through the new shopping centers do not provide diagonal on-street parking. Neither should San Rafael's main street through the business district.

ASSERTION NO. 5: "West area of Fourth Street has never had adequate parking for customers and will be hurt proportionately more than East Fourth, although all will suffer."

It is difficult to know exactly what is meant by this assertion, but if it is true, then all of Fourth Street would benefit from the improved traffic flow which parallel parking will bring.

ASSERTION NO. 6: "A seemingly reasonable estimate of loss of business by barring 139 cars from San Rafael during peak hours (would be) $75,000 to $100,000 per year."

This assertion erroneously assumes that cars not able to park on Fourth Street would not be able to fill the vacancies on cross streets or on the second deck of the lot at Third and Lootens. Further, it ignores the existence of shoppers who presently stay out of San Rafael because of downtown traffic — congestion which would be relieved by parallel parking.

ASSERTION NO. 7: "Less business, less taxes."

A decline in business attributable to over-congestion of traffic along Fourth Street would, of course, bring less sales tax revenue to the City; but the City might have to resort to increased property taxes to make up the losses. These facts and possibilities do NOT constitute an argument against parallel parking.

ASSERTION NO. 8: "Parallel parking will greatly increase and encourage double parking, especially by trucks."

This assertion has to assume that the police department and the municipal court cannot enforce the law—an assertion that the police and courts can be counted upon to dispute. If they couldn't enforce the law, we would need personnel changes, not repeal of the laws. This certainly has NOT been a major problem along B Street where congestive diagonal parking was finally abandoned several years ago to the benefit of all.

ASSERTION NO. 9: "Actual tests show parallel parking takes up to 10 times more time to park. As an example, although Fifth Street is narrower, traffic is often backed up more than two blocks while only one car parks parallel. Fourth Street is not that much wider, and cars trying to swing out and past would be a definite hazard."

To qualify for a driver's license, you must demonstrate proficiency at parallel parking. Any argument that it is too difficult or that some people aren't capable of it hardly seem worth considering. People who cannot park parallel are not really qualified drivers, according to state license requirements.

While parallel parkers may occasionally impede the flow of traffic along narrower Fifth Avenue, the delays are not so frequent as the delays on Fourth Street which result when a diagonal parker must back into oncoming traffic. On wider Fourth Street parallel-parked cars could pull out into the stream of traffic with much less delay to passing cars.

ASSERTION NO. 10: "With successful one-way streets functioning, people use Fourth Street for business and are accustomed to a slower pace."

People do use it principally for a street, not a parking lot, and traffic needs to keep moving if shoppers are to continue being attracted. This assertion, then, turns out to be in favor of parallel parking.

FINALLY, THERE ARE these two un-numbered assertions:

"Nine out of 10 women and men are opposed to parallel parking — especially in traffic." and

"Most people prefer diagonal parking."

You could as well say 999 out of a thousand people are opposed to traffic delays occasioned by diagonal parkers backing out into the traffic stream, or

Most people prefer that street traffic keep moving.

If there is a moral to all this, it must be simply that people should read petitions carefully and think about them thoroughly before signing.

HOUSE YIELDS TO TREES

Moving men came up with an unusual solution when several sturdy tree limbs blocked the house they were transporting through a Connecticut residential district.

Home-owners came out to prevent the movers from cutting down the obstructing branches that arched over the street.

So the movers finally chopped the corners off the house, leaving the trees intact.

Reasonable care should be taken to assure that plants and animals are not needlessly harmed or destroyed. How much more should each of us respect our fellow human beings, into whom God Himself has breathed the spirit of life that is destined to last forever.

It may take considerable effort, but make a sincere attempt to remember that each person without exception comes from the hand of the loving Maker of the Universe.

"Then the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life." (Genesis 2:7)

Atheism Held Spur To Totalitarianism

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In both parties the issue of Conservatism vs. Liberalism is a complex one, and at times not understood by the combatants themselves.

James Otis, who sparked the American Revolution, said that, "An omnipotent government destroys all distinction between right and wrong; that it overturns all morality, leads directly to skepticism and ends in atheism." Atheism leads to omnipotent civil government, because atheism has no place else to go. When atheism has destroyed the moral order, it must depend upon the omnipotent government to produce necessary civil order by establishing a ruthless police state. This is why every government controlled by atheistic communism is an absolute despotism. It has to be. Its atheism gives it no alternative. In other words we must choose the Laws of God or Communism.

The continuity of American freedom depends on our ability to enforce the constitutional limitations that are placed upon our government, but this ability is predicated in turn upon the people's willingness to enfore the moral laws of God against themselves.

Pollster Louis Harris in a poll last fall, found that 94 per cent of the American people feel that prayer should be restored to the schools.

When you vote in this year's election, you will be deciding, perhaps unknowingly, whether you wish this nation to continue down the road to atheism, or to have a nation guided by the Laws of God, as laid down by our Founding Fathers.

County Official Salaries High

Editor, Independent-Journal:

As a tax-payer of Marin County, I would like to complain about the high salaries being received by our public officials. I fail to see how they justify such extravagant wages. Taxes are terribly high in Marin, yet Marin has little more to offer than any other county in California except maybe more welfare recipients and higher paid public officials.

The actual laborers for the people of this county, the clerks, the engineers, the inspectors, and the accountants, are generally underpaid. I say it's about time to put a stop to $20,000; $22,000; and $24,000 a year jobs and allot the tax payers money to increasing the salary of the $4,000 and $5,000 a year job wage earners.

It's Important That Dean Rusk Remain In Position As No. 1

WASHINGTON—The report continues to filter through the press corridors of Washington that Dean Rusk will not be Secretary of State much longer.

Rumors feed on themselves in this town and many are baseless. There could hardly be more welcome or better news than to have this report about Rusk proved baseless.

It is not my job to pick—or to un-pick — Secretaries of state. But I want to get as near to the facts as possible.

I HAVE WATCHED at first hand the performance of eight secretaries of state from Cordell Hull to Dean Rusk.

Without attempting to rate these secretaries, I venture a report at a moment when the wise and courageous conduct of American foreign policy is vital.

Is Dean Rusk the greatest? That's irrelevant—but what is relevant is this:

That Dean Rusk is the right man in the right place at the right time and is proving it every day.

Some say that for personal reasons Mr. Rusk would like to leave. At great financial sacrifice to himself, he has just completed his fifth year in office and only eight others of the 52 secretaries of state have served as long. It has been a tumultuous and harrowing period—Berlin crises, the Bay of Pigs, the Cuban missile confrontation, the overthrow of Krushchev, the Sino-Soviet feud, the fighting between India and Pakistan, the Viet Nam war.

Some suggest that the President would be willing to accept Rusk's resignation, if Rusk presses it.

Only the President can say how things look from the vantage point of the Presidency. But a Washington correspondent can say how things look from a diferent vantage point. It looks this way.

The Johnson foreign policy team of Rusk, Under Secretary of State George Ball, and U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg has three unusually able men each in exactly the right slot and each using his special talents to the best advantage.

TO ALLOW this team to be broken up at this moment could hardly add strength to the conduct of foreign policy or better counsel to the President. More likely it would weaken both conduct and counsel—at least for an appreciable period.

It is not uncommon to have one man in the right place. But to have three men in the right places working together in harmony is something to behold.

Rusk brings these main qualities to the counsel of the President and to the conduct of policy; conviction, courage, and prudent care in how he would use America's vast power in a nuclear world. He is adept in dealing with Congress, he is a highly regarded professional among diplomats. He is articulate in public advocacy, as his answers on "Meet the Press" showed recently.

DEAN RUSK has been unwaringly right on Viet Nam from the beginning. The pressures to waver either in the search for peace or in the defense against the aggression will grow, not lessen. This is why Rusk is a tower of strength.

"He is No. 1 in the Cabinet and No. 1 with me." That was Mr. Johnson's estimate four months ago. The President holds this same view today, perhaps even more strongly.

Too Much Made Of Report On Negroes

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.

Last Spring, a report published by the U.S. Department of Labor and popularly known as the Moynihan Report, after its author, received a good deal of publicity in the press. Since then it has become difficult to read about or discuss the Negro's drive for full equality without encountering references to this report or without dealing with the questions it raises.

Briefly, the point of the report which is entitled "The Negro Family," is that as a consequence of slavery and oppression, the Negro family as an institution has deteriorated to the point where its pathological state threatens to engulf the gains Negroes may make in the future. Impressive-looking charts and graphs are presented to show that Negroes commit more crimes, have more illegitimate births, are more often unemployed, and are more often members of broken families.

UNFORTUNATELY, the report has been pressed into uses which its author, Daniel P. Moynihan, an eloquent advocate of civil rights, could not have foreseen. Both the popular press and other quarters, have seized upon parts of its findings and have distorted them to the point where the record must be set right.

First of all, the report isn't about the Negro family at all, it is about some Negro families. The picture of prevalent pathology it presents just does not fit reality and is a gross injustice to the overwhelming majority of Negro families, which are as stable as any in the nation.

FURTHER, the statistics it quotes leave out factors which put its findings in doubt. Nowhere among the many charts in the report is there a breakdown of comparative statistics which contrast figures for Negro families with those for white families of camparable income.

Figures which purport to show Negro crime and illegitimacy rates as higher than those of whites do not take into account such hidden factors as the police propensity for arresting Negroes more readily, and the ease with which better-off white families can conceal illegitimacy and abortions. Too often the figures which show such shocking disparity in family stability are the result of these "hidden" factors.

THE FINDINGS of the report, whatever the failings of its statistics, do give a picture of some of the social ills which affect many Negroes. However, family instability has been presented in the press and elsewhere as being the cause of Negro failure to achieve equality. This is a gross distortion. It is instead the result of patterns of discrimination which deny to Negro citizens the same chance to hold a job and earn a decent living that the white American has.

The real message of the report, obscured by the unfortunate emphasis on the distorted figures, is that unemployment among Negroes, twice the white rate and affecting perhaps 25 per cent of Negro men, has effects which go beyond the economic, harming the social fabric of family life.

THE POVERTY and unemployment which afflict disproportionate numbers of Negroes in the United States take a tremendous toll from the man who is jobless, the housewife who is forced into the labor market to make ends meet, and child denied the atmosphere he needs to grow up properly motivated.

The problems the Negro family faces today are caused by its economic disadvantages, which are in turn mainly the result of the discrimination and unequal treatment of today — not chiefly the result of slavery, as the report argues.

Foes Of Parallel Parking Have Doubtful Arguments

SAN RAFAEL'S COMMITTEE Against Parallel Parking (along Fourth Street) bases its opposition on a dozen published assertions.

ASSERTION NO. 1: "Parallel parking will destroy up to 139 parking spaces—irreplaceable during present busy periods."

This is misleading. Actually, the final plans and specifications prepared by the city's Department of Public Works show the elimination of only 89 parking spaces along Fourth between Lincoln and E streets. The loss of all 89 is NOT attributable to the proposed switch from diagonal to parallel parking. In many instances present diagonal parking places are nearer to intersections than city ordinances allow; some existing diagonal spaces need to be eliminated to conform to existing ordinance. It isn't fair to charge this to the proposed switch.

"Irreplaceable?" San Rafael will needs more off-street public parking lots and the need will—unless San Rafel's shopping district withers and dies — increase further in the future. In meeting that need it would not be impossible to provide another 80 or 90 spaces to replace those which would be lost in making Fourth Street a more desirable street for visiting shoppers to drive along.

ASSERTION NO. 2: "Destroy parking spaces that to replace with off-street parking would cost up to and possibly over $600,000."

Here the committee disproves its first contention that the spaces are "irreplaceable." Parking meter revenues are used to pay off the bonds issued to cover the cost of off-street parking developments. Revenues are running 'way ahead of original estimates resulting in surpluses that are becoming available for earlier action to provide more off-street parking.

ASSERTION NO. 3: "Increasing population — San Rafael is in one of the fastest growing areas in Northern California — will need this lost space almost immediately."

Fourth Street traffic congestion is in even more immediate need for relief than parking. During much of the day there are parking spaces available nearby. Some are to be found on cross streets within a block of Fourth, and the upper deck of the off-street lot at Third and Lootens still has vacancies much of the time.

ASSERTION NO. 4: "San Rafael is in a desperate struggle to survive in face of the new shopping centers, one of which now has 5,000-plus diagonal spaces and thus parallel parking (and with meters) might be a death blow at this time."

Off street parking lots should have diagonal parking. Through streets should not. The through streets leading to and/or through the new shopping centers do not provide diagonal on-street parking. Neither should San Rafael's main street through the business district.

ASSERTION NO. 5: "West area of Fourth Street has never had adequate parking for customers and will be hurt proportionately more than East Fourth, although all will suffer."

It is difficult to know exactly what is meant by this assertion, but if it is true, then all of Fourth Street would benefit from the improved traffic flow which parallel parking will bring.

ASSERTION NO. 6: "A seemingly reasonable estimate of loss of business by barring 139 cars from San Rafael during peak hours (would be) $75,000 to $100,000 per year."

This assertion erroneously assumes that cars not able to park on Fourth Street would not be able to fill the vacancies on cross streets or on the second deck of the lot at Third and Lootens. Further, it ignores the existence of shoppers who presently stay out of San Rafael because of downtown traffic — congestion which would be relieved by parallel parking.

ASSERTION NO. 7: "Less business, less taxes."

A decline in business attributable to over-congestion of traffic along Fourth Street would, of course, bring less sales tax revenue to the City; but the City might have to resort to increased property taxes to make up the losses. These facts and possibilities do NOT constitute an argument against parallel parking.

ASSERTION NO. 8: "Parallel parking will greatly increase and encourage double parking, especially by trucks."

This assertion has to assume that the police department and the municipal court cannot enforce the law—an assertion that the police and courts can be counted upon to dispute. If they couldn't enforce the law, we would need personnel changes, not repeal of the laws. This certainly has NOT been a major problem along B Street where congestive diagonal parking was finally abandoned several years ago to the benefit of all.

ASSERTION NO. 9: "Actual tests show parallel parking takes up to 10 times more time to park. As an example, although Fifth Street is narrower, traffic is often backed up more than two blocks while only one car parks parallel. Fourth Street is not that much wider, and cars trying to swing out and past would be a definite hazard."

To qualify for a driver's license, you must demonstrate proficiency at parallel parking. Any argument that it is too difficult or that some people aren't capable of it hardly seem worth considering. People who cannot park parallel are not really qualified drivers, according to state license requirements.

While parallel parkers may occasionally impede the flow of traffic along narrower Fifth Avenue, the delays are not so frequent as the delays on Fourth Street which result when a diagonal parker must back into oncoming traffic. On wider Fourth Street parallel-parked cars could pull out into the stream of traffic with much less delay to passing cars.

ASSERTION NO. 10: "With successful one-way streets functioning, people use Fourth Street for business and are accustomed to a slower pace."

People do use it principally for a street, not a parking lot, and traffic needs to keep moving if shoppers are to continue being attracted. This assertion, then, turns out to be in favor of parallel parking.

FINALLY, THERE ARE these two un-numbered assertions:

"Nine out of 10 women and men are opposed to parallel parking — especially in traffic," and

"Most people prefer diagonal parking."

You could as well say 999 out of a thousand people are opposed to traffic delays occasioned by diagonal parkers backing out into the traffic stream, or

Most people prefer that street traffic keep moving.

If there is a moral to all this, it must be simply that people should read petitions carefully and think about them thoroughly before signing.

McNamara's First Five Years

By DONALD ZYLSTRA
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara—now on the job five years—has accomplished what seven predecessors were unable to achieve.

For the first time in its 18-year existence, the defense department responds almost automatically to the wishes of a single civilian.

Despite mixed and often violent Washington opinion about McNamara and his merits, on one point there is complete agreement: The department of defense is being really "managed" for the first time—positively and in great detail.

For the past three years every new session of Congress has convened with fresh determination to "show the secretary of defense who's boss."

Never a man to neglect his homework, the secretary amazes Capitol Hill committees with a seemingly incontestable array of facts and figures. These facts are carefully marshalled — to prove the B-70 advanced bomber or another nuclear-powered carrier is unneeded.

Only in the matter of voting a more generous military pay rise than McNamara favored, and in establishing an arbitrary minimum number of reserve and national guard forces, has Congress prevailed, and then perhaps temporarily.

As McNamara begins his sixth year at his Pentagon desk, congressional committees are again preparing a frontal attack on several unpopular Pentagon moves.

Betting in Washington is still heavily on McNamara in this newest battle. But many observers believe he won't win as easily this time as in the past.

As defense secretary, McNamara has not only held the job longer than any other man, he obviously plans to exceed his own earlier estimate about how long he should stay. When he entered the Pentagon in January, 1961, he considered five years the limit. He might have left after establishing a record for tenure in the job, except for the unfinished Viet Nam problem.

The U.S. ability to conduct war in Southeast Asia and still maintain virtually a peacetime economy at home is cited as further proof of McNamara's planning genius.

McNamara has been repeatedly cast in the role of unofficial White House economic administrator. At the president's direction, he recently released thousands of tons of aluminum from defense stockpiles to prevent an increase in aluminum prices.

Similar action followed to hold the price line on copper. And part of an industry-announced price increase in structural steels was rolled back earlier this month, when McNamara threatened to divert defense steel orders to producers who held the price down.

A brilliant, dedicated administrator, the defense secretary continues to behave more like the president of a big industrial corporation than as the conventional, politically sensitive head of a cabinet department. Eager to continue re-shaping the Defense Department, McNamara unreservedly transferred his allegiance to President Johnson after President Kennedy's death.

So great is his stature in the Johnson administration that many Washington observers consider McNamara the nation's second most powerful man — possibly one of three or four most powerful men in the world today.

Although he frequently is accused of trampling on congressional prerogatives, McNamara is ironically the defense secretary who has done more than any other to make the defense department meet congressional concerns about efficiency.

Unlike previous approaches to defense reorganization, McNamara's far-reaching changes have all been accomplished without asking the legislators for a single change in the law.

Before 1961, defense budgeting had become largely a process of dividing available defense funds among the three armed services. Weapons and manpower "shopping lists" submitted by the three services were financed as far as the money would stretch. Often service requests for weapons were similar and quite competitive with one another.

McNamara set out to determine the threats to U.S. security — and then to acquire weapons and forces tailored to meet them.

Whether weapons and troops are furnished by the Air Force, Army or Navy, they are considered and funded in relation to the job they do. Under McNamara, this "package approach" to defense budgeting further blurred the once rigid distinctions among the functions of each of the armed forces.

In building U.S. defenses, McNamara and his associates have drawn plans five years ahead—readjusting them yearly as Congress provides annual installments of supporting funds. Growing needs of the war in Viet Nam have required raising the defense budget and increasing supplemental appropriations by Congress.

Despite Administration attempts to promote the impression of a vigorous, progressive policy, technical leaders foresee few bold technological advances of the type that produced Titan and Minuteman nuclear-tipped missiles, Polaris missile-firing submarines and Nike-Zeus Anti-missile missiles—all developed before McNamara's arrival.

Concern with "cost-effectiveness" has promoted unusual technical caution in the Pentagon. Prolonged studies and re-studies have delayed most technological advances in weaponry—so much that some McNamara critics say he authorizes only concepts whose performance seems 99.9 per cent assured.

Technological experts like Navy Adm. Hyman G. Rickover deplore Defense Department refusal to build and test advanced concepts such as improved nuclear reactors for ships.

McNamara's civilian chiefs of research and engineering, push research in new power plants, new guidance and navigation systems and new warheads. These advanced parts can be "brought together" in new military weapon systems when needed, they insist. Most military technicians and field commanders disagree.

Although both McNamara and Johnson have voiced public assurances that the United States can support both the Viet Nam war effort and "business as usual" — in defense development and elsewhere in government, recent deferment of military housing has raised doubts about McNamara's intentions to fund other development programs.

Despite McNamara's assurances that weapons development will be continued unimpaired, along with support of the Viet Nam conflict, speculation dwells heavily on the budget fate of a Nike-X anti-missile missile system; the Manned Orbiting Laboratory in space, and a proposed new nuclear-powered Navy aircraft carrier.

Barring unforeseen developments, the Pentagon will retain McNamara's management for at least six months more. During that time the secretary can be counted on to give the same detailed attention to Viet Nam as he did earlier to defense reorganization.

If any real change in McNamara policy seems needed from now on, it's up to Congress. And the legislators haven't compiled a very imposing opposition record to date.

Use Of Domestic Workers Brings Change In California Agriculture

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—A University of California report on California agriculture production and income for 1965 showed the chaotic conditions which occurred in many crops as the result in an attempted shift from imported Mexican bracero labor to domestic workers.

The report showed the overall value of farm production was up by $50 million from 1964. However, the total value of all crops dropped by $56 million, while the value of livestock increased by about $80 million.

Total value of fruit and nut crops decreased $87 million from 1964, the total value of vegetable crops was up $21 million, and total value of field crops was up about $10 million.

The report was prepared for the state board of agriculture by Dr. John W. Mamer, extension economist for the University of California at Berkeley.

The study selected 13 crops and showed that net income for three of these was up by $32.1 million from a year earlier but that net income for the other 10 was down $148 million.

Of the 13 crops, the value of production was up by $66.1 million, while the value of production was down $112.7 million for the other six. In many cases the actual tonnage of production was down but the costs rose to increase the production value over the previous year.

Production costs were up for for all 13 of the commodities, a total of $97.3 million.

Prunes: production down 10,000 tons; production value down $36.7 million; production costs up $3.9 million; net income down $3.6 million.

Late spring potatoes (Kern county): production up 3.7 cwt.; production vaue up $32.5 million; production costs up $14.5 million or 43 per cent; net income of $2 million.

Fall potatoes (Tulelake area): prices about half that for 1964 with production value down $4.6 million or 38 per cent; production costs up $640,000 or 13 per cent; net income down $5.2 million or 73 per cent.

Spring lettuce (Salinas area): price up 140 per cent; gross value up $12.1 million or 157.8 per cent; production up 207,000 cwt.; production costs up $1.5 million or 14 per cent; net income up $10.6 million.

Winter lettuce (Imperial Valley): price dropped 41.6 per cent; production up 346,000 cwt.; gross value of production down $17 million; production costs up $4 million; net income down $21 million.

Onions (late spring): price increased 130 per cent; production value up $4.3 million or 157.7 per cent; production costs up $850,000 or 30 per cent; net income up $3.5 million.

Grapes: price dropped 26.6 per cent; production up 805,000 tons; gross value down $13.9 million or 7.9 per cent; production costs up $34.9 million or 19 per cent; net income down $48.7 million.

Asparagus: production down 30.4 million or 19 per cent; gross value up $1.2 million; production costs up $3.6 million; net income down $2.4 million.

Strawberries: production down 52.5 million pounds; production value down $8 million or 32 per cent; production costs up $8.5 million; net income down $16.5 million.

Tomatoes for processing: production down 500,000 tons because of cut in acreage of nearly 19 per cent; production value up $10.5 million; production costs up $8.8 million; net income up $1.6 million.

Lettuce: production up 700,000 pounds; production value up $3.6 million; production costs up $1.1 million; net income down $2.5 million.

Lemons: production down 3.8 million boxes, or down nearly 22 per cent; production value down $4.8 million; production costs up $3.1 million; net income down $7.9 million.

Valencia oranges: production value down $27.7 million, or 38 per cent; production costs up $1.9 million; net income down $29.6 million.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

While many Americans wrestled this week with the agonizing question of bombing North Viet Nam, the terrible burden of decision rested with one man—President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Sources close to the White House appear to believe that Johnson is about to order a resumption of the bombing but the official position is that the President has not yet made up his mind.

Partisans and opponents of bombing, in and out of Congress, used various public means of expressing their views.

At a meeting in New York, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former ambassador to South Viet Nam, said he favored a renewal of the bombing. Maxwell, now a special adviser to the President, said this country "had shown friends and foes the sincerity of our peaceful purposes," and that now the reasons for the lull were "exhausted."

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also expressed himself in favor of resumed bombings.

In Washington, 15 Democratic senators sent a letter to Johnson urging him to continue the bombing lull. Senators J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and Majority Leader Mike Mansfield already are on record for continuation of the bombing pause.

Key Senators in favor of resumed bombing include Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Henry R. Jackson and John Stennis, also members of the committee.

While the public debate raged and undoubtedly had some effect on the President's thinking, the ultimate decision was his alone.

Around The World, Around The Clock:

SAIGON: The first heavy fighting since the end of the lunar truce was reported Friday in Viet Nam. It had been indicated earlier that commanders of some North Vietnamese and regular Viet Cong troops had been ordered to scale down their activities and avoid large battles with Americans and Allied forces.

CHAMONIX, France: An Air India jetliner crashed on a snow-covered ridge near the crest of three-mile high Mont Blanc killing all 117 persons aboard.

WASHINGTON: President Johnson sent Congress a record $112.8 billion budget for the coming fiscal year. It called for increased defense spending to $58.3 billion and more than $3 billion for Great Society programs.

Indonesia Luxury Floats Like An Iceberg In Slums

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The writer of this dispatch was for 18 months AP correspondent in Indonesia. Last week he was expelled from the country by President Sukarno, along with other correspondents of American news media.)

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—A modern 10-story department store has just been completed in Jakarta's main street. Nearby a 29-story office building is under construction. Opposite is the luxurious 15-floor Hotel Indonesia.

Jakarta is Indonesia's capital city, with a population of three million, but in many respects it looks like a worn-down village.

President Sukarno ordered monuments and high buildings despite the country's need of more urgent projects — such as housing.

His hard-pressed people accepted the argument.

But lately thousands of students have demonstrated in Jakarta streets to protest against soaring prices of essential commodities. They criticized the policies of "the great leader of the Indonesian revolution," as Sukarno likes to call himself.

Day after day, the students—with the tacit approval of the army which is engaged in a power struggle with Sukarno—shouted:

"We need rice — not monuments and big buildings!"

The students even scribbled on the walls:

"No more imports of wives and concubines."

Sukarno's third wife is Japanese.

Sukarno, in an angry speech, denounced the students' attitude.

"Monuments are equally important as rice!" he shouted.

Indonesian critics of Sukarno say that he is unaware of the reality of economic conditions prevailing in the country because his aides don't inform him fully.

Sukarno judges the situation superficially, these critics say, but fails to see what is beneath the surface.

He observed recently: "With my own eyes I saw ordinary Indonesian people buying flowers in preparation for the Moslem feast of Idu Iftitri. This alone is enough proof to kill propaganda that the Indonesia people are poor."

One liter of rice has shot to 5,000 old rupiahs. It cost 310 last June. A shirt costs 30,000, a pair of shoes 45,000.

The gap between rich and the poor is enormous. A middle class is practically nonexistent. Corruption in the government is widespread and is adopted by many civil servants to meet the increasing cost of living. Profiteers take advantage of the situation to amass fortunes.

"It will take at least 10 years for one Indonesian employee to make that amount from his monthly salary," remarked a foreigner at a nearby table.

Most of the shops in Jakarta are depleted. The goods have either been sold or are being hoarded by merchants.

Sukarno has envisioned making Indonesia a prosperous country in his lifetime. But instead of concentrating on developing and tapping Indonesia's enormous natural resources, he has embarked on repeated political ventures as a way of giving Indonesia a leading place among the world's great nations.

Sukarno recounts that the Dutch before leaving 20 years ago wrecked the palace of the former Dutch governor general which he now uses as his presidential mansion.

The furniture was broken, the glass windows and the mirrors, and even the door locks were smashed, Sukarno says.

But he has failed to repair his country.

TESTIFIES—Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense, winds his feet around a chair's legs as he testified last Monday before the Senate-House Economics Committee in Washington, D.C. One of the world's most powerful men, McNamara has rounded out five years in his cabinet job, and there's no indication that he intends to step down.

ONE OF WORLD'S MOST POWERFUL MEN

McNamara's First Five Years

By DONALD ZYLSTRA
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara—now on the job five years—has accomplished what seven predecessors were unable to achieve.

For the first time in its 18-year existence, the defense department responds almost automatically to the wishes of a single civilian.

Despite mixed and often violent Washington opinion about McNamara and his merits, on one point there is complete agreement: The department of defense is being really "managed" for the first time—positively and in great detail.

For the past three years every new session of Congress has convened with fresh determination to "show the secretary of defense who's boss."

Never a man to neglect his homework, the secretary amazes Capitol Hill committees with a seemingly incontestable array of facts and figures. These facts are carefully marshalled — to prove the B-70 advanced bomber or another nuclear-powered carrier is unneeded.

Only in the matter of voting a more generous military pay rise than McNamara favored, and in establishing an arbitrary minimum number of reserve and national guard forces, has Congress prevailed, and then perhaps temporarily.

As McNamara begins his sixth year at his Pentagon desk, congressional committees are again preparing a frontal attack on several unpopular Pentagon moves.

Betting in Washington is still heavily on McNamara in this newest battle. But many observers believe he won't win as easily this time as in the past.

As defense secretary, McNamara has not only held the job longer than any other man, he obviously plans to exceed his own earlier estimate about how long he should stay. When he entered the Pentagon in January, 1961, he considered five years the limit. He might have left after establishing a record for tenure in the job, except for the unfinished Viet Nam problem.

The U.S. ability to conduct war in Southeast Asia and still maintain virtually a peacetime economy at home is cited as further proof of McNamara's planning genius.

McNamara has been repeatedly cast in the role of unofficial White House economic administrator. At the president's direction, he recently released thousands of tons of aluminum from defense stockpiles to prevent an increase in aluminum prices.

Similar action followed to hold the price line on copper. And part of an industry-announced price increase in structural steels was rolled back earlier this month, when McNamara threatened to divert defense steel orders to producers who held the price down.

A brilliant, dedicated administrator, the defense secretary continues to behave more like the president of a big industrial corporation than as the conventional, politically sensitive head of a cabinet department. Eager to continue re-shaping the Defense Department, McNamara unreservedly transferred his allegiance to President Johnson after President Kennedy's death.

So great is his stature in the Johnson administration that many Washington observers consider McNamara the nation's second most powerful man — possibly one of three or four most powerful men in the world today.

Although he frequently is accused of trampling on congressional prerogatives, McNamara is ironically the defense secretary who has done more than any other to make the defense department meet congressional concerns about efficiency.

Unlike previous approaches to defense reorganization, McNamara's far-reaching changes have all been accomplished without asking the legislators for a single change in the law.

Before 1961, defense budgeting had become largely a process of dividing available defense funds among the three armed services. Weapons and manpower "shopping lists" submitted by the three services were financed as far as the money would stretch. Often service requests for weapons were similar and quite competitive with one another.

McNamara set out to determine the threats to U.S. security — and then to acquire weapons and forces tailored to meet them.

Whether weapons and troops are furnished by the Air Force, Army or Navy, they are considered and funded in relation to the job they do. Under McNamara, this "package approach" to defense budgeting further blurred the once rigid distinctions among the functions of each of the armed forces.

In building U.S. defenses, McNamara and his associates have drawn plans five years ahead—readjusting them yearly as Congress provides annual installments of supporting funds. Growing needs of the war in Viet Nam have required raising the defense budget and increasing supplemental appropriations by Congress.

Despite Administration attempts to promote the impression of a vigorous, progressive policy, technical leaders foresee few bold technological advances of the type that produced Titan and Minuteman nuclear-tipped missiles, Polaris missile-firing submarines and Nike-Zeus Anti-missile missiles —all developed before McNamara's arrival.

Concern with "cost-effectiveness" has promoted unusual technical caution in the Pentagon. Prolonged studies and re-studies have delayed most technological advances in weaponry—so much that some McNamara critics say he authorizes only concepts whose performance seems 99.9 per cent assured.

Technological experts like Navy Adm. Hyman G. Rickover deplore Defense Department refusal to build and test advanced concepts such as improved nuclear reactors for ships.

McNamara's civilian chiefs of research and engineering, push research in new power plants, new guidance and navigation systems and new warheads. These advanced parts can be "brought together" in new military weapon systems when needed, they insist. Most military technicians and field commanders disagree.

Although both McNamara and Johnson have voiced public assurances that the United States can support both the Viet Nam war effort and "business as usual" — in defense development and elsewhere in government, recent deferment of military housing has raised doubts about McNamara's intentions to fund other development programs.

Despite McNamara's assurances that weapons development will be continued unimpaired, along with support of the Viet Nam conflict, speculation dwells heavily on the budget fate of a Nike-X anti-missile missile system; the Manned Orbiting Laboratory in space, and a proposed new nuclear-powered Navy aircraft carrier.

Barring unforeseen developments, the Pentagon will retain McNamara's management for at least six months more. During that time the secretary can be counted on to give the same detailed attention to Viet Nam as he did earlier to defense reorganization.

If any real change in McNamara policy seems needed from now on, it's up to Congress. And the legislators haven't compiled a very imposing opposition record to date.

West led the jack of hearts, and declarer played low from the dummy and won in his hand.

South then led the queen of clubs, hoping that East held the ace and would be unable to press the attack on dummy's queen of hearts.

NO SUCH LUCK

There was no luck. West took the ace of clubs and led the ten of hearts, holding the trick.

West led another heart, and East took the king.

East returned the nine of diamonds quickly and confidently, and South resisted the normal temptation to try a finesse with the queen.

Some oponents might be crafty enough to make this diamond shift from a suit headed by the king, but South knew his customers and felt sure that East did not have the king of diamonds.

GETS DISCARDS

South therefore went up with the ace of diamonds and led a trump to dummy's king, continuing next with the ace of trumps.

Fortunately for South, the queen fell on the second round of trumps.

Declarer discarded two diamonds on the king and jack of clubs. East ruffed the next club, and South over-ruffed.

South had taken the precaution of leading the six of spades to dummy's king and of playing the seven of spades on dummy's ace.

The idea was to save the deuce of spades.

South could therefore now lead the deuce of spades to dummy's three and throw his last diamond on the last good club.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"She used to be Daddy's sister, but now she's our aunt."

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 29th, the 29th day of 1966 with 336 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter; there is no morning star; the evening stars are Jupiter, Saturn and Mars.

British - American liberator and freedom crusader Thomas Paine was born on this day in 1737.

On this day in history:

In 1861, Kansas entered the Union as the 34th state.

In 1900, baseball's American League was organized in Philadelphia.

In 1963, France vetoed further talks on Britain's entry into the European Common Market, a move which, in effect, rejected the British application.

In 1964, the United States launched an unmanned Saturn rocket which crash landed on the moon four days later.

A Thought for the Day — British statesmen Winston Churchill said: "Dictators ride to and fro upon a tiger which they dare not dismount. And the tigers are getting hungry."

TIME AND TIDE

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Knowledge Of Player Habits Can Rescue A Perilous Hand

In theory, a finesse gives you an even chance to gain a trick.

In practice, your knowledge of the oponents may tell you that the finesse is sure to lose.

If so, look for some other line of play even if it gives you far less than an even chance.

West led the jack of hearts, and declarer played low from the dummy and won in his hand.

South then led the queen of clubs, hoping that East held the ace and would be unable to press the attack on dummy's queen of hearts.

NO SUCH LUCK

There was no luck. West took the ace of clubs and led the ten of hearts, holding the trick.

West led another heart, and East took the king.

East returned the nine of diamonds quickly and confidently, and South resisted the normal temptation to try a finesse with the queen.

Some oponents might be crafty enough to make this diamond shift from a suit headed by the king, but South knew his customers and felt sure that East did not have the king of diamonds.

GETS DISCARDS

South therefore went up with the ace of diamonds and led a trump to dummy's king, continuing next with the ace of trumps.

Fortunately for South, the queen fell on the second round of trumps.

Declarer discarded two diamonds on the king and jack of clubs. East ruffed the next club, and South over-ruffed.

South had taken the precaution of leading the six of spades to dummy's king and of playing the seven of spades on dummy's ace.

The idea was to save the deuce of spades.

South could therefore now lead the deuce of spades to dummy's three and throw his last diamond on the last good club.

TV Due On Campus

NEW YORK (AP) — Televised instructions for hundreds of college students will begin among the city's colleges and universities on a cooperative basis for the first time in the spring semester. The cooperative program is a pilot project developed by the Council of High Educational Institutions in New York City.

'Militant' Priests Rebuked By Delegate From Vatican

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Vatican has taken a stand in the unprecedented faculty strike at St. John's University by letting the apostolic delegate to the United States rebuke priests who become "militant" unionists.

The Most Rev. Egidio Vagnozzi made the criticism Tuesday in a dedication speech at a Roman Catholic seminary in Boynton Beach, Fla. It was distributed to the news media later in the week by St. John's, the nation's largest Roman Catholic college, at the reqeust of an official of the Vincentian Brotherhood which operates the university.

Archbishop Vagnozzi did not mention any specific priest or priests, but his references were seen in church circles as a slap at Rev. Peter O'Reilly, strike leader and head of the United Federation of College Teachers (UFTC) local at St. John's. Sixty-nine teachers have been on strike there since Jan. 3 to protest the firing of 31 union members in a dispute over academic freedom.

"I am sure it would meet with general disapproval were priests to become militant to the inner workings of labor unions where they might exercise undue influence because of their priestly character," Archbishop Vagnozzi declared. "There are limits of fittingness and suitability which prohibit a priest from assuming responsibilities in fields which are of no direct concern of his unless expressly authorized to do so by his ordinary superior."

As to complaints that Catholic universities are not arenas of free discussion, Archbishop Vagnozzi said the teaching of anything "contrary to definitive Catholic tenets" at a Catholic university could not be tolerated.

The apostolic statement came as eight of the striking teachers broke ranks and informed St. John's they would return to classes when the spring semester begins next Tuesday.

The strike is the first by a college faculty in the history of American education.

WOUNDED PRIEST—Rev. Richard P. Morrisroe, 26, a Chicago Catholic priest wounded last August in a Hanyeville, Ala., civil rights demonstration, takes daily exercises in a suburban hospital where he is recovering. He can walk with the aid of crutches, but surgeons say they will be unable to remove eight shotgun pellets from the base of his spine. He will receive the John F. Kennedy award of the Chicago Interracial Council in a ceremony Wednesday. (UPI Telephoto)

U.S. Catholics Urged To Face Rights Furor

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — What are the rights and limits of local Catholic authorities in dealing with controversial issues such as Negro rights in Selma, migrant rights in Delano, or teachers' rights at St. John's University in New York?

A discussion of this question, wrote Rev. John Reedy, C.S.C., in "Ave Maria" magazine, should be "faced openly and as soon as possible." Because of this conflict, priests involved in social and civic concerns are being "torn by conflicting religious pressures," he wrote.

The remarks were made in reply to an "open letter" to the magazine by Msgr. James D. Dowling, vicar general of the Monterey-Fresno Diocese, criticizing the outspoken intervention of National Catholic Rural Life official Rev. James Vizzard, S.J., in the farm workers' strike diocese and "Ave Maria's" editorial backing of the Jesuit priest.

Father Vizzard had been quoted as saying that "no ecclesiastical superior has any right to forbid me to be concerned with gross injustice and destruction of human dignity just because the specific problem exists within territory under his jurisdiction."

"It is Protestant clergymen who initiated the religious support and leadership for these agricultural workers and their rights," Father Reedy said. "Courageous Protestant clergymen continue to this day to provide leadership in Delano."

Issue Notes Restrictions On Priests

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Controversy over clerical freedom of political speech and action is the subject of a Jan. 8 special issue of Ave Maria, Catholic weekly magazine, which lists 13 "silenced priests."

The 13 were restricted by various church authorities in their action or their teaching "because of some involvement in the struggle for civil rights or in what is loosely and carelessly called 'the peace movement'," the magazine said. It is published at the University of Notre Dame campus but is not connected with the school.

In an editorial, Rev. John Reedy of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, editor, said:

"Whether or not the present condition of the church represents a crisis is perhaps debatable. However, we can all agree that a 'problem situation' has emerged which demands to be handled openly and immediately."

The 13 "silenced priests" listed by Ave Maria includes Rev. William Du Bay, formerly administrative assistant in a mostly Negro parish of Compton, now chaplain in St. John's Hospital, Santa Monica.

Ave Maria said Father Du Bay was relieved from his duties in Compton after he cabled the Vatican in June, 1964, requesting removal of Cardinal James Francis McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles, for alleged failure to exercise moral leadership to curb discrimination.

Cardinal Cuts Conservative

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Rev. Gommar A. DePauw, controversial leader of the Catholic traditionalist movement, was stripped of his priestly exercise yesterday in the climax to his running battle over church doctrine with Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore.

"I hereby revoke any and all faculties previously extended to you by the archbishop of Baltimore," a letter from Cardinal Shehan said.

"Furthermore . . . I hereby prohibit you from any and all exercise of the sacred ministry."

Father DePauw has been an outspoken critic of the liberalization of the Catholic Church and has organized the Catholic traditionalist movement to restrain it. He has criticized the changes in the Catholic liturgy and has charged that the changes are "Protestantizing" Catholic worship and doctrine.

During the taping of the television program "Open End" after the letter was given him, Father DePauw charged that certain advisers to Catholic bishops in the United States are playing into the hands of Communists. He declined to identify them, but referred to them as "officials who play the Communist game."

Friendship House Sponsors Straight Talk On Prejudice

By ELLEN BRY

An organization which prides itself on its lack of organization, and on its lack of militancy in a militant area of thought, is quietly bringing better race relations.

Under the name of Friendship House, though there is no house, it is bringing together Marinites of different races and faiths to talk openly of their prejudices.

It began about a year ago, centered in the Santa Venetia-Terra Linda area, as an outlet for persons to "talk about their prejudices, their questions, mistrust," as Robert N. Jackson, one of the co-chairmen of the group explains. Jackson is one of the owners of First of California Mortgage Co. in San Rafael.

Last year about 100 meetings were held, each time in the comfortable atmosphere of a person's home where less than comfortable prejudices are brought into the open. Attendance is by invitation, so that there is a balance between Caucasian and Negroes and those of other races at each meeting.

Friendship House started with the aid of church members in central Marin, but its aims are not strictly bound to religious ideas and some who participate "couldn't care less about the church," said Rev. James C. Upshaw, pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda.

Upshaw has the heavy accent of a man not too long out of his native Georgia and is candid in admitting the prejudices with which he grew up.

The national body of the Presbyterian church took a stand on segregation prejudice and Upshaw said he had to ask himself "what I really believed. It was kicking by grand-parents and parents in the teeth. I recognized the mechanism of prejudice had blinded me."

Upshaw has taken part in many of the living room discussions whose purpose is "just to talk with other people. It is a movement among people who are interested in race relations —not agreed particularly on views."

He told of one discussion session at which a Negro told of his feelings:

"He hated whites — and he knew this—he told us this. Those of us who had never experienced what it was like to be a Negro at least could get to hear about what it was like and why he hated."

Prentiss Rayford, a medical laboratory technologist at Marin General Hospital, is the other co-chairman of the Friendship House committee. The committee meets once a month to talk of how the program is progressing but tries to keep away from the intricacies of an overly organized club.

Rayford, a Negro, takes part in discussions almost every week. "I recognized the need for an exchange of ideas," he said in explaining why he became part of Friendship House. "We have been deprived of contact."

Discussion sessions center on housing, education, employment and, as members of a discussion group come to know something of one another, the talk turns to more touchy subjects such as miscegenation. "Occasionally a person mentions that he's self conscious," Rayford says.

Friendship House has intentionally steered away from involvment with any of the civil rights groups, picket lines, taking a stand on race relations questions, Jackson and Rayford explain.

"We are doing something which really isn't being covered by any other group. Mistrust is breaking down because of these talks," Jackson said.

'Militant' Priests Rebuked By Delegate From Vatican

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Vatican has taken a stand in the unprecedented faculty strike at St. John's University by letting the apostolic delegate to the United States rebuke priests who become "militant" unionists.

The Most Rev. Egidio Vagnozzi made the criticism Tuesday in a dedication speech at a Roman Catholic seminary in Boynton Beach, Fla. It was distributed to the news media later in the week by St. John's, the nation's largest Roman Catholic college, at the reqeust of an official of the Vincentian Brotherhood which operates the university.

Archibishop Vagnozzi did not mention any specific priest or priests, but his references were seen in church circles as a slap at Rev. Peter O'Reilly, strike leader and head of the United Federation of College Teachers (UFTC) local at St. John's. Sixty-nine teachers have been on strike there since Jan. 3 to protest the firing of 31 union members in a dispute over academic freedom.

"I am sure it would meet with general disapproval were priests to become militant to the inner workings of labor unions where they might exercise undue influence because of their priestly character," Archbishop Vagnozzi declared. "There are limits of fittingness and suitability which prohibit a priest from assuming responsibilities in fields which are of no direct concern of his unless expressly authorized to do so by his ordinary superior."

As to complaints that Catholic universities are not arenas of free discussion, Archbishop Vagnozzi said the teaching of anything "contrary to definitive Catholic tenets" at a Catholic university could not be tolerated.

The apostolic statement came as eight of the striking teachers broke ranks and informed St. John's they would return to classes when the spring semester begins next Tuesday.

The strike is the first by a college faculty in the history of American education.

WOUNDED PRIEST—Rev. Richard P. Morrisroe, 26, a Chicago Catholic priest wounded last August in a Hanyeville, Ala., civil rights demonstration, takes daily exercises in a suburban hospital where he is recovering. He can walk with the aid of crutches, but surgeons say they will be unable to remove eight shotgun pellets from the base of his spine. He will receive the John F. Kennedy award of the Chicago Interracial Council in a ceremony Wednesday. (UPI Telephoto)

Cardinal Cuts Conservative

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Rev. Gommar A. DePauw, controversial leader of the Catholic traditionalist movement, was stripped of his priestly exercise yesterday in the climax to his running battle over church doctrine with Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore.

"I hereby revoke any and all faculties previously extended to you by the archbishop of Baltimore," a letter from Cardinal Shehan said.

"Furthermore . . . I hereby prohibit you from any and all exercise of the sacred ministry."

Father DePauw has been an outspoken critic of the liberalization of the Catholic Church and has organized the Catholic traditionalist movement to restrain it. He has criticized the changes in the Catholic liturgy and has charged that the changes are "Protestantizing" Catholic worship and doctrine.

During the taping of the television program "Open End" after the letter was given him, Father DePauw charged that certain advisers to Catholic bishops in the United States are playing into the hands of Communists. He declined to identify them, but referred to them as "officials who play the Communist game."

U.S. Catholics Urged To Face Rights Furor

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — What are the rights and limits of local Catholic authorities in dealing with controversial issues such as Negro rights in Selma, migrant rights in Delano, or teachers' rights at St. John's University in New York?

A discussion of this question, wrote Rev. John Reedy, C.S.C., in "Ave Maria" magazine, should be "faced openly and as soon as possible." Because of this conflict, priests involved in social and civic concerns are being "torn by conflicting religious pressures," he wrote.

The remarks were made in reply to an "open letter" to the magazine by Msgr. James D. Dowling, vicar general of the Monterey-Fresno Diocese, criticizing the outspoken intervention of National Catholic Rural Life official Rev. James Vizzard, S.J., in the farm workers' strike diocese and "Ave Maria's" editorial backing of the Jesuit priest.

Father Vizzard had been quoted as saying that "no ecclesiastical superior has any right to forbid me to be concerned with gross injustice and destruction of human dignity just because the specific problem exists within territory under his jurisdiction."

"It is Protestant clergymen who initiated the religious support and leadership for these agricultural workers and their rights," Father Reedy said. "Courageous Protestant clergymen continue to this day to provide leadership in Delano."

Issue Notes Restrictions On Priests

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Controversy over clerical freedom of political speech and action is the subject of a Jan. 8 special issue of Ave Maria, Catholic weekly magazine, which lists 13 "silenced priests."

The 13 were restricted by various church authorities in their action or their teaching "because of some involvement in the struggle for civil rights or in what is loosely and carelessly called 'the peace movement'," the magazine said. It is published at the University of Notre Dame campus but is not connected with the school.

"Whether or not the present condition of the church represents a crisis is perhaps debatable. However, we can all agree that a 'problem situation' has emerged which demands to be handled openly and immediately."

The 13 "silenced priests" listed by Ave Maria includes Rev. William Du Bay, formerly administrative assistant in a mostly Negro parish of Compton, now chaplain in St. John's Hospital, Santa Monica.

Ave Maria said Father Du Bay was relieved from his duties in Compton after he cabled the Vatican in June, 1964, requesting removal of Cardinal James Francis McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles, for alleged failure to exercise moral leadership to curb discrimination.

Friendship House Sponsors Straight Talk On Prejudice

By ELLEN BRY

An organization which prides itself on its lack of organization, and on its lack of militancy in a militant area of thought, is quietly bringing better race relations.

Under the name of Friendship House, though there is no house, it is bringing together Marinites of different races and faiths to talk openly of their prejudices.

It began about a year ago, centered in the Santa Venetia-Terra Linda area, as an outlet for persons to "talk about their prejudices, their questions, mistrust," as Robert N. Jackson, one of the co-chairmen of the group explains. Jackson is one of the owners of First of California Mortgage Co. in San Rafael.

Last year about 100 meetings were held, each time in the comfortable atmosphere of a person's home where less than comfortable prejudices are brought into the open. Attendance is by invitation, so that there is a balance between Caucasian and Negroes and those of other races at each meeting.

Friendship House started with the aid of church members in central Marin, but its aims are not strictly bound to religious ideas and some who participate "couldn't care less about the church," said Rev. James C. Upshaw, pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda.

Upshaw has the heavy accent of a man not too long out of his native Georgia and is candid in admitting the prejudices with which he grew up.

The national body of the Presbyterian church took a stand on segregation prejudice and Upshaw said he had to ask himself "what I really believed. It was kicking by grand-parents and parents in the teeth. I recognized the mechanism of prejudice had blinded me."

Upshaw has taken part in many of the living room discussions whose purpose is "just to talk with other people. It is a movement among people who are interested in race relations —not agreed particularly on views."

He told of one discussion session at which a Negro told of his feelings:

"He hated whites — and he knew this—he told us this. Those of us who had never experienced what it was like to be a Negro at least could get to hear about what it was like and why he hated."

Prentiss Rayford, a medical laboratory technologist at Marin General Hospital, is the other co-chairman of the Friendship House committee. The committee meets once a month to talk of how the program is progressing but tries to keep away from the intricacies of an overly organized club.

Rayford, a Negro, takes part in discussions almost every week. "I recognized the need for an exchange of ideas," he said in explaining why he became part of Friendship House. "We have been deprived of contact."

Discussion sessions center on housing, education, employment and, as members of a discussion group come to know something of one another, the talk turns to more touchy subjects such as miscegenation. "Occasionally a person mentions that he's self conscious," Rayford says.

Friendship House has intentionally steered away from involvment with any of the civil rights groups, picket lines, taking a stand on race relations questions, Jackson and Rayford explain.

"We are doing something which really isn't being covered by any other group. Mistrust is breaking down because of these talks," Jackson said.

Poetry, Man's Spirit Is Symposium Subject

A two-day symposium on "Poetry and the Spirit of Man" will be held Tuesday and Wednesday in Alexander Hall at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

On Wednesday three poets will speak: James Schevill of San Francisco State College poetry workshop at 9 a.m.; John Logan, a visiting professor at San Francisco State College at 10:45 a.m.; and Brother Antoninus of the Dominican Priory in Kentfield at 2 p.m.

Rev. Scott will review the day's presentations at 3:30 p.m. and the symposium will close with a panel discussion by all the participants.

STEREO HI-FI

STEREO TICKET. That's what P.G.&E. is displaying on their billboards. SEVEN CHANNELS OF STEREO SOUND is being advertised by one of the airlines. Stereo Sound—as many as from four to nine channels—can be available to you and your family at any time of the day or night without having to ride the airlines. A custom stereo home music system can provide as many as seven stereo stations in this area, and can provide stereo phonograph music, and can provide stereo taped music.

Without a doubt, music in the home can be one of the most relaxing and rewarding experiences to counteract the tension build-up of modern living. Can your family afford to be without it? Will poor fidelity equipment provide the relaxation? No it will not. Limited range or distorted sound provided by low priced units has a psychological fatiguing effect on the body. Consequently, the music system is "off" more than it is "on"; and if it is left on for long periods of time, the overall effect will not be soothing.

Stereo adds a dimensional quality to the sound. But because it is a stereo system does not mean that it is a good system. THE MUSIC SYSTEM MUST HAVE FULL RANGE UNDISTORTED SOUND BOTH MONAURALLY AND STEREOPHONICALLY before it can be classified as good.

What does it take for one of our most effective therapeutic instruments? It takes a component type FM Stereo Tuner/Amplifier and two full range speaker systems. It is the most economical expenditure for good health for the entire family. To the basic system can be added a stereo phono changer, and a stereo tape deck, and if you so desire, fancy furniture. Remember — the sound is the most important aspect. Your TICKET TO STEREO is a good component home music system. All the channels instantly at your finger tips.

How much should you spend? The minimum requirements at present are $250.00 for a quality name brand FM Stereo Tuner/Amplifier, and $100.00 for two speaker systems in cabinets. Recent price drops and additions to the line by Fisher and Scott make owning a superb sound system for the above price a reality. Can you afford to expose your family to mediocre sound? NO! Good music is healthful, and a mark of prestige.

On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

JAMES BLONDE, Secret Agent 006.95 (marked down from 007.00) — Marty Brill and Larry Foster — Colpix CPL-495:

It has been argued that it is impossible to make a successful satire of something that is itself a satire, but the recent rash of James Bond and "Goldfinger" spoofs proves that this is not altogether true.

Here is the first lp album that I have heard on the subject of spy-to-end-all-spies.

Brill and Foster are known for their answer to the original Vaughn Meader lp, which concerned itself with the intimate life of Khrushchev and was called "The Other Family." In this one, sub-titled, "The Man From T.A.N.T.E.," they answer such important questions as "Will James Blonde triumph over the mysterious Dr. Nu? And the infamous Goldfinger, and recover the missing matzoh?"

The Yiddish spoof is the basis of the album, and it's plenty corny, but usually plenty funny too.

CONCERT IN THE VIRGIN ISLANDS — Duke Ellington and His Orchestra — Reprise Stereo 6185:

A striking Rousseau-ish cover painting of the Duke in primitive island surroundings is the first thing of note about this new release from the label for which Ellington directs all jazz recording. Recently returned from this part of the Caribbean, Ellington was quite naturally struck by the exotic aspects of the area, and the result was another new composition, "The Virgin Islands Suite." Its four sections depict the picturesque islands.

"Jungle Kitty" is both a good example of the Duke's wit and also of Cat Anderson's stratospheric-height trumpet range.

A CONCERT AT TIVOLI — Music of Hans Christian Lumbye — Tivoli Concert Hall Symphony Orchestra conducted by Svend Christian Felumb — Vox Stereo STPL 512.840:

Tivoli Gardens is the internationally famous amusement park in Copenhagen that has delighted millions since its opening back in 1843. The Boston Pops-style orchestras that perform in its concert hall and sometimes outdoors in the park have also long been a tradition.

Lumbye, Denmark's version of Johann Strauss, was music director of the Tivoli Concert Hall from the time it first opened.

The 13 tracks on this new album consist of marches, waltzes, gallops and novelty pieces by the great Lumbye. Somehow it sounds much more dated than any Strauss, but it is enjoyable light listening anyway.

THE AFFAIRS OF the Sausalito Little Theater are the subject of discussion at this Chesse family gathering. Bruce Chesse, center, is directing the current production, "The Showoff," at the playhouse on Sausalito's Bridgeway. His brother, Dion, and wife, Lynne Arden, will co-direct and perform in the next production, "Death of a Salesman." Lynne Arden Chesse is the president of the Sausalito Little Theater board.

The Brothers Chesse

They Come By Their Ability In The Theater Naturally

By DON KEOWN

And with good reason.

SONS DION and Bruce have followed in their father's footsteps as actors, directors and puppeteers.

Their careers have met and mingled, and once all three took part in a stage production, Chekhov's "The Sea Gull" at The Playhouse in San Francisco. Dion directed. His father and younger brother were members of the cast.

HE RECALLS with amusement how an onlooker at rehearsal, somewhat aghast, asked Dion: "Who is that guy you keep yelling and screaming at?"

Appearances should have given the onlooker a clue. The Chesses, father and son, are very much look-alikes.

"We sound alike, too," says Bruce.

"WE ARE extremely competitive," Bruce says of his family, "and we demand a great deal of each other. We are our own severest critics. Yet we enjoy working together, and get along well."

"BEWARE OF LAMB IN IMITATION GUISE"

Beware of a Persian Lamb in cotton acetate clothing, advises the National Institute of Drycleaning. Certain imitation Persian lamb coats, jackets, and trims are giving drycleaners headaches and consumers fits.

In many cases poor adhesive has been used to attach the Persian-type fur to the background fabric. When dryecleaned, or when cleaned by the furrier method, the adhesive becomes soft or sticky. Sometimes the imitation Persian completely separates from the fabric backing.

But, adds the Institute, there is no problem with either cleaning method if the imitation Persian lamb curls have been stitched to the backing.

Manufacturers are working to solve this problem. But when shopping it's still wise to separate the curl and look for the stitching or get the store's definite assurance that this Persian lamb can be safely cleaned.

THE AFFAIRS OF the Sausalito Little Theater are the subject of discussion at this Chesse family gathering. Bruce Chesse, center, is directing the current production, 'The Showoff," at the playhouse on Sausalito's Bridgeway. His brother, Dion, and wife, Lynne Arden, will co-direct and perform in the next production, "Death of a Salesman." Lynne Arden Chesse is the president of the Sausalito Little Theater board.

The Brothers Chesse

They Come By Their Ability In The Theater Naturally

By DON KEOWN

And with good reason.

SONS DION and Bruce have followed in their father's footsteps as actors, directors and puppeteers.

Their careers have met and mingled, and once all three took part in a stage production, Chekhov's "The Sea Gull" at The Playhouse in San Francisco. Dion directed. His father and younger brother were members of the cast.

As a director, Bruce says, "Dion is harder on the family than he is on anybody else."

HE RECALLS with amusement how an onlooker at rehearsal, somewhat aghast, asked Dion: "Who is that guy you keep yelling and screaming at?"

Appearances should have given the onlooker a clue. The Chesses, father and son, are very much look-alikes.

"We sound alike, too," says Bruce.

"WE ARE extremely competitive," Bruce says of his family, "and we demand a great deal of each other. We are our own severest critics. Yet we enjoy working together, and get along well."

Both brothers have been featured in their father's television brainchild, "Brother Buzz," the

FOR 12 YEARS the children's favorite has been seen on the screen, coming from three different stations, first KPIX, then KTVU and now KGO.

Dion was Brother Buzz for eight years, Bruce for three years.

DION, a Sausalito resident, is a veteran director as well as actor, and has handled such assignments for the Marin Shakespeare Festival, Sausalito Little Theater, Playhouse Repertory in San Francisco and many others. He once had his own theater, Cellar Stage, in San Francisco. And he will be directing an upcoming Cove Players production in Tiburon.

Bruce, who lives in San Francisco, is just receiving his baptism in directing. He's in charge of the current Sausalito Little Theater production of George Kelly's "The Showoff," playing Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 through Feb. 19 at the playhouse on Sausalito's Bridgeway.

"It is," he says, "a very interesting experience. I think I enjoy it primarily because I like to work with people.

"MY THEORY is that a director has to be kind of an amateur psychologist. He must be able to deal with individuals."

His brother, Dion, and Dion's wife, Lynne Arden, incidentally, will co-direct and co-star in the next Sausalito Little Theater venture, "Death of a Salesman." She is the current Sausalito Little Theater board president.

He smiles: "Well, it would have been interesting. Unfortunately, there just wasn't a part for him in the play."

BRUCE'S ACTING background ranges from roles with Edie Adams in "Can Can" at Anaheim's Melodyland and with Pat Boone in "West Side Story" at San Carlos' Circle Star Theater to work with Marin little theater groups. Like his brother, he has been a key cog in the Marin Shakespeare Festival, starting with the role of Puck in "Midsummer Night's Dream" during the opening season "which makes me a charter member."

Bruce says he finds little theater, in some respects, a warmer, more satisfying experience than professional theater.

"It is less competitive," he explains, "and you have a better opportunity to get to know the people.

BUT HE'S looking forward to an upcoming role in West Covina in "Babes in Toyland," a repeat of the performance he did at the San Carlos theater.

His brother is an employee of the Department of Public Works in San Francisco. The father is a freelance artist.

BUT FULL-TIME or part-time, it seems there's always a Chesse involved when the curtains go up in a Bay Area theater.

And waiting in the wings, ready for careers of their own, are the two small sons of Dion and Lynne Chesse, Damon, 3, and Matthew, 4 months.

A Teaching Machine That Succeeds

Transcription Labs Prove Boon To Tam District Business Students

A "teaching machine" can do many things, performing a variety of jobs with varying degrees of success.

But one thing no "teaching machine" has ever done successfully is to replace the teacher in the classroom—even for a little bit.

The most successful instructional mechanical aid, then, is the one that lets the teacher do a better job and also keep pace with the increasing demand for quantity and quality of work.

Perhaps the prime example of this kind of teaching aid is the transcription laboratory. Each high school in the Tamalpais Union High School District—Tam, Drake and Redwood—now has such a laboratory.

THEIR GRADUAL installation was achieved over a two-year period following studies which included a summer workshop for business education teachers.

Also called a multiple station dictation system, the labs are proving a boon to business student and business teacher alike.

They offer electronic devices to help teach the marketable skills of typing and shorthand. And they permit the teacher to work more individually with students, and permit students to work more often at their own best pace.

The equipment helps develop typing skill through practice in direct dictation. A student can listen to pre-recorded tapes at varying speeds and develop the coordinated skills of simultaneously listening and transcribing directly on the typewriter.

MEANWHILE, the teacher is free to give his or her attention to other students who may need help in typing or with the mechanics of English.

Teachers believe the process encourages the slow student to advance and challenges the advanced student to reach for even higher achievement.

SOME STUDENTS want to go directly from high school to job. If they achieve minimum competence, they may, in Marin County, earn from $325 to $400 per month.

Some students want to continue in junior college or a business college to widen their breadth of potential employment or even go on to a four-year college for business administration studies.

Some students, headed for other fields in higher education, want the skills for their personal use or as a cushion for emergency or temporary earning power, perhaps while working for a college degree.

And the jobs available range from a one- or two-girl office to the large mass employers and office pool arrangements, another factor requiring diversity in instruction.

ALL THESE and other variables can be contended with much more effectively through the use of transcription laboratories.

THE CONRAD ABBETT HOME in San Rafael's beautiful Dominican section takes full advantage of the magnificent views of Mount Tamalpais and surrounding hills, and fits perfectly with the wooded surroundings. The William H. McDevitt Co. designed and built the home in the traditional style with an exterior of used brick, gray-green siding and shake roof.

THE ABBETT HOME

A Gracious House In Dominican Hills

The home of the Conrad Abbett family sits high on a hill in San Rafael's Dominican section, among tall old trees, with a marvelous view of Mount Tamalpais and the San Rafael hills.

Built by the William H. McDevitt Co. of San Rafael, the Abbetts' house is traditional with an exterior of used brick, grey-green siding and shake roof.

There is an air of quiet formality upon entering, which is belied by the charm of the mistress of the house and the friendly greeting of Caesar, the Abbetts' Great Dane.

MRS. ABBETT has combined traditional and Colonial decor most effectively. White walls and woodwork, putty colored carpeting, and areas of small-print wallpaper complement the warmth of numerous fine pieces of antique Early American furniture. Of particular note is the patina of old pewter, used as decorative accents, interesting antique prints and a handsome applewood glassfront "secretary" that shows the glow of many years of loving care.

Dominant colors in the living room are olive and gold. The formal fireplace of black marble, framed by a white mantle, is enhanced by a large gold framed mirror. This spacious room has a "glass wall" providing a striking view.

The Abbett House Blends Traditional With The Practical

A SLIDING GLASS wall brings the outdoors inside and into this warm and friendly family room of the William McDevitt Co.-built Conrad Abbett home. Mrs. Abbett can "join" her family as she works in the kitchen, separated from the family room only by a waist-high counter.

The McDevitt Co. has combined tradition with comfort and practicality in this attractive family living area. Predominantly red tile floor and warm pine cupboards used in the kitchen complement the used brick fireplace and braided rug in the adjoining family room. Comfortable furniture, old maps, framed over the fireplace, and maple tables lend a relaxing air to the family room.

In this wing there is a half bath, yet-to-be-completed guest bedroom and bath, and a two-car garage.

The generous size bedrooms accommodate the Abbetts' boys, Jeff and Greg. More than ample closet space was allowed. Colors of brown, beige and yellow serve as background for the masculine collection of sports banners and model cars of all makes, shapes and sizes.

A spacious master bedroom suite occupies one whole end of the bedroom wing. Grey carpeting and print wallpaper in green and gold are complemented by a dark green bedspread and handsome old mahogany furniture. Shades of grey and white in the master bath are echoed in the marble counter.

THE HOME was architect-designed by the McDevitt firm and built on their package plan which includes site planning, design, construction and financing, if required.

IN THE COLONIAL style kitchen with a family dining area, comfort and practicality have been blended with tradition. The predominantly red tile floor is complemented by the warm glow of pine cupboards. Mrs. Abbett's kitchen is an excellent example of an efficient and modern work center that retains the charm of older days.

Capt. Parnow Is Happy At His Work

Profile Of A Marinite

AS THE COMMANDER of the Marin-Golden Gate Bridge area for the California Highway Patrol, Capt. Theodore F. Parnow, facing camera, finds his desk work somewhat less exciting than the old days riding a patrol car. But still, his duties are far from being routine
(Independent-Journal photo)

By BOB COPPOCK

Grabbing a man about to jump from the Golden Gate Bridge is just part of the routine of a Marin member of the California Highway Patrol.

Capt. Theodore F. Parnow has prevented several suicides, but looking back over his career with the patrol, he said many more remarkable things have happened. Tuesday he will have served 25 years with the patrol.

Parnow is commander of the Marin-Golden Gate Bridge area for the CHP. Tied to his desk as captain, he said he misses being on the road.

"The most interesting job is sergeant," he explained. "You're on the road, and you're directly involved with everything happening on the beat.

"But even now it's never routine. There's something different every day. Almost everybody who comes in has some kind of a problem."

Parnow's grandfather was a San Francisco policeman, but the grandson intended to become a chemist. Born in San Francisco on Dec. 17, 1916, he attended Polytechnic High School there and then San Francisco City College, majoring in chemistry.

HE WORKED his way through college as a salesman for Western Auto stores. He planned to transfer to the University of California to take chemistry, but took the exam for the California Highway Patrol as a financial backstop.

He joined the patrol Feb. 1, 1941, thinking he would work long enough to have money enough to stay at U.C. But he never left the patrol, except for the armed services in World War II.

During the war he worked in counter-intelligence for the Second Air Force of the U.S. Army.

ON APRIL 26, 1947, he married Mary J. Grealish in San Francisco. The couple has four sons, James, 16; Michael, 13; Thomas, 10, and Gregory, 6. James is taking a college preparatory course at Marin Catholic High School, and the others are at St. Rita's Parochial School in Fairfax.

Parnow's first job with the patrol was on the Golden Gate Bridge, which unit then also handled traffic as far north as Alto. It was then he first came to know Marin County well and to want to live here.

With promotions came transfers, however, and Parnow said his most exciting assignment was being in charge of the patrol as a lieutenant in Plumas and Lassen counties, starting in the winter of 1951.

ONE OF THE worst storms in the history of the Sierra blocked Highway 40 and snowbound the City of San Francisco streamliner. All transcontinental traffic was funneled over what is now U.S. 40 Alternate, then a two-lane road through Plumas County.

He said the road had never been meant to handle the traffic that tried to use it, especially during a blizzard. Patrol cars were lost in the snow, and finally even that road had to be closed.

Later on, in the spring, the melting snowpack caused some of the area's worst floods, and that autumn the area was also hit by some of its worst forest fires.

PARNOW, WHILE he was there, learned to live in the high country, and still returns to the Sierra for trout fishing when he can. He calls that his one hobby, other than playing with his sons.

In 1953 he was made commander for the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, and when the similar post in Marin County opened up, Parnow asked for it, coming to Corte Madera in 1954.

He and his family moved into a home at 7 San Gabriel Court, Fairfax, where they still live. He was preceded in Marin by several relatives, however.

HIS MOTHER, Mrs. Madeleine M. Parnow, lives in San Rafael, as do two sisters, Barbara Parnow and Mary Parnow, and two brothers, William Parnow and Robert Parnow. These brothers are co-owners of Custom Builders of Marin.

Another brother, Frank Parnow, lives in Alameda.

Parnow has been active in local civic activities, serving for several years as a director of the Marin County United Crusade and for the past two years as the chief of marshals of the Marin Tournament of Stars at Peacock Gap.

He is chairman of the law enforcement citizens committee for the College of Marin, which recommends courses to be offered men wishing to become policemen.

HE IS ALSO on the executive committee of the Bay Area Traffic Executives Council, and a member of the Marin, Bay Area and California State peace officers associations and the California State Employees Assn.

He attends St. Rita's Church in Fairfax and belongs to the Catholic Youth Organization sports teams. Also, in sports, he is a player agent for the Fairfax-Sleepy Hollow Little League.

A Republican, Parnow, as a state employee, has avoided activity in partisan politics, but he said he expects regulations to change soon, allowing more political activity.

LOOKING AHEAD, Parnow said Marin is due for much worse traffic than it has now, with much longer delays, especially for commuters. He said all the problems of traffic in Los Angeles will be found in the San Francisco Bay Area in the next ten years.

For himself in the future, Parnow said he would be happy to stay where he is, but at 49 promotions are still likely.

"I can advance to administrative positions," he said. "The pay is better but the job doesn't have much appeal to the man in the field."

IN THIS corner of the living room of his Larkspur Canyon home, artist Dickens Bascom stores and sometimes plays 10 different musical instruments. He is seen here beating out discordant notes on an instrument of his own invention. Bascom took what was once an autoharp from the dumps, stripped it down, then added a magnificently carved baseball bat and some feathers. He plays it by beating the strings with curtain hangers. Dickens Bascom: An Artist And His House

He's Made A Mansion Over In His Own Distinctive Image

By STEVE COOK

Standing there among the redwood trees high in the Larkspur Canyon, the old three-story structure presented a gloomy, grey facade. Most persons looking for a home to rent would have seen nothing but a cold winter in the broken windows, drafty walls and large, damp, empty rooms.

"I really want to make a big thing here," he thought, "and do something for this house."

IN THE TWO years since he signed the lease, this somewhat eccentric young man has made the house over in his own image. From ceiling to floor, throughout all three levels, the building reflects Dickens Bascom — his thoughts, his moods, his preferences.

For Bascom, who aspires to recognition as an artist, the house represents the sum of two years work. Everything he has crafted, sculpted or painted is now an intrinsic part of the building.

With a fertile imagination, the instinct of a pack rat and an insatiable drive to "make things," Bascom has furnished the building as an artist creates an oil painting—carefully adding layer after layer of oils, building for the finished product.

THE YOUTH lives alone with two pet monkeys, working long hours on his art every day. Almost a recluse, he leaves the house only to scrounge for materials in dumps and vacant houses.

He has made few friends; his obsession with his work allows little time for that. Few of his creations have ever left the building because, to Bascom, they are just components of the larger work of art—the house. To him, a house guest is more than someone to entertain. The guest is a person who can see and appreciate what he is doing.

HANGING FROM the living room ceiling is what is certain to be the visitor's first impression of the art of Dickens Bascom—a macabre mobile made of a dismembered human skeleton.

Once it was probably the prized exhibit of a medical professor. A year ago it was rescued from the blade of an insensitive bulldozer in the Larkspur dump. Bascom, starved for art materials, gathered it up and took it home.

Bascom lives on $20 a week, a contribution from parents who are disappointed with the life he has made. This money along with the rent, also paid by his parents, is enough to keep the artist and his monkeys in food and shelter. He must, however, depend for art materials on the discards of a wealthy society.

Gesturing at the densely furnished living room, Bascom says: "The house, all three stories, was empty when I got here. I scrounged. I went to the dumps every day, before they closed. When people move out and I hear about it, I go over and pick up the things they left behind.

"Then there's my gang—three neighborhood boys about 10 years old. They do a lot of the scrounging for me now. When they see something laying around, they bring it to me or tell me where it is."

A CLOSE examination of the paintings, tables, windows, floors and ceramics about the house indicates another facet of Bascom the artist—his inventiveness. Experimenting for two years at the workbench in the corner of his living room, Bascom has found a potential, unrecognized by most artists, in a resin known as epoxy.

Epoxy is a fast-drying, adhesive substance, sold in some drug stores as glue. Its most common use, Bascom says, is for patching cement.

Some artists have used it to glue stones into mosaic patterns or in jewelry work. Bascom spreads it on windows, floors, table tops, canvas and clay—then mixes in paints, something he does not think anyone else has tried doing.

"IT IS A weird substance," he says. "It has a high gloss and holds true colors. If I put it on a piece of clay, it saturates the clay and dries in 24 hours, hardening the clay better than a kiln would. And, it holds colors so much truer than glazing.

"You have to study for years to be able to put a glaze in the kiln and have it come out the true color you want."

Bascom can make a hard-gloss, multicolored table top or floor in 24 hours. He spread the substance on his kitchen floor one night, poured in blue and white paint, spread it until he got the right design, then let it set 24 hours. The next evening, he had a new, hard as tile, kitchen floor.

BASCOM HAS never taken an art course and critics might say that his work shows this. He works by trial and error, adding colors or different forms when the mood strikes. He made a mosaic top for a table he found in the dumps. Instead of covering it completely with stones, he inserted a small puzzle at one corner so that anyone sitting there would have something to do.

He did not like school. He spent three of his high school years at the San Rafael Military Academy, then ran away at age 16. He had no money and returned to his home in Oakland a day later. His parents enrolled him in Oakland High School, where he graduated a year later.

"I started at San Francisco State College the next fall," he says, "but I couldn't make that at all, so I ran away for good. I just never seemed to fit in school, not at any of those places."

BASCOM BECOMES an angry protector of his art when someone suggests that it might improve if he went back to school and studied art:

"I am an artist and I didn't have to go to art school to be one. All I have to do is make something. It's impossible to describe what it feels like to make things that are good. Nobody needs art school for that. Anything that is made is art, a creation.

"I made this table. It was what I wanted to do. I'm satisfied, and I didn't have to go to art school to do it."

Almost as eye-catching as the art in Bascom's house is the collection of 10 or more instruments in one corner of the living room. These include vibes, drums, a clarinet, cello, guitar and one instrument he made himself. They are not there just as furnishings for the house, Bascom says: "I play them fluently."

THE INSTRUMENT he made himself was once an autoharp. This, too, he found at the dump. He stripped it down, added a magnificently carved baseball bat and feathers for decoration and mounted it on a stand. With it, he produces a series of discordant notes by beating the strings with curtain hangers.

When Bascom began building his house of art, he did it strictly for himself. Within the privacy of those grey walls, he could work the hours he wanted making the things he wanted. But now his attitude is changing.

As philosophers question whether there is a sound when a tree falls in a forest and no one is there to hear it, Bascom wonders if anything he has done is worthwhile if there is no one to see it.

"I'D LIKE people to see what I can do, what I make," he decided. "I'd even like to be famous, sure, and make some money. I'd like to prove to my parents there are people who like what I make. Some day, I would like to have people come to me for my art. They would tell me what they want and I would make it for them."

And so, Dickens Bascom began to poke his head out of his Larkspur Canyon environs. He has made two hesitant attempts to communicate his art to the outside world. As he expected, they did not meet with startling success.

"One day I piled some of my stuff into a friend's car and took it to three San Francisco museums—the De Young, Legion of Honor and Modern Art Museum. I thought I'd just take the stuff in and they would tell me how much they liked it. They wouldn't even look at it. They said why not come back in a couple of years."

HE WAS slightly more successful when he took a few ceramics and a painting and entered them in a small exhibit at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley. He sold nothing, but a woman told him she liked some of the work and agreed to exhibit two pieces of ceramics in the Spanish Store next to Brown's Hall.

Perhaps one reason why he sold nothing at the exhibit was the price he attached to his work. There was, for example, the paired hand and foot, molded in clay. The exhibit card read:

"Example of psychedelic mutation of a hand and foot with added cracks. Price $200 for the set of two."

"I JUST PUT a whole bunch of money on them," he said. "I don't know what it's worth. It's just a piece of clay, but I put a lot of work into it."

Bascom is nearly finished with the house he began to fill two years ago. He is not sure what he will do when the house is complete, but is considering moving to another dwelling and starting all over.

He filled a nine-room flat in San Francisco before moving to his present project. He hopes this building does not meet the same fate as the flat.

"I just barely got it filled before it and other buildings along the block were condemned," he said.

Dickens Bascom: An Artist And His House

He's Made A Mansion Over In His Own Distinctive Image

By STEVE COOK

Standing there among the redwood trees high in the Larkspur Canyon, the old three-story structure presented a gloomy, grey facade. Most persons looking for a home to rent would have seen nothing but a cold winter in the broken windows, drafty walls and large, damp, empty rooms.

Bascom saw an opportunity.

"I really want to make a big thing here," he thought, "and do something for this house."

IN THE TWO years since he signed the lease, this somewhat eccentric young man has made the house over in his own image. From ceiling to floor, throughout all three levels, the building reflects Dickens Bascom — his thoughts, his moods, his preferences.

For Bascom, who aspires to recognition as an artist, the house represents the sum of two years work. Everything he has crafted, sculpted or painted is now an intrinsic part of the building.

With a fertile imagination, the instinct of a pack rat and an insatiable drive to "make things," Bascom has furnished the building as an artist creates an oil painting—carefully adding layer after layer of oils, building for the finished product.

THE YOUTH lives alone with two pet monkeys, working long hours on his art every day. Almost a recluse, he leaves the house only to scrounge for materials in dumps and vacant houses.

He has made few friends; his obsession with his work allows little time for that. Few of his creations have ever left the building because, to Bascom, they are just components of the larger work of art—the house. To him, a house guest is more than someone to entertain. The guest is a person who can see and appreciate what he is doing.

HANGING FROM the living room ceiling is what is certain to be the visitor's first impression of the art of Dickens Bascom—a macabre mobile made of a dismembered human skeleton.

Once it was probably the prized exhibit of a medical professor. A year ago it was rescued from the blade of an insensitive bulldozer in the Larkspur dump. Bascom, starved for art materials, gathered it up and took it home.

Bascom lives on $20 a week, a contribution from parents who are disappointed with the life he has made. This money along with the rent, also paid by his parents, is enough to keep the artist and his monkeys in food and shelter. He must, however, depend for art materials on the discards of a wealthy society.

Gesturing at the densely furnished living room, Bascom says: "The house, all three stories, was empty when I got here. I scrounged. I went to the dumps every day, before they closed. When people move out and I hear about it, I go over and pick up the things they left behind.

"Then there's my gang—three neighborhood boys about 10 years old. They do a lot of the scrounging for me now. When they see something laying around, they bring it to me or tell me where it is."

A CLOSE examination of the paintings, tables, windows, floors and ceramics about the house indicates another facet of Bascom the artist—his inventiveness. Experimenting for two years at the workbench in the corner of his living room, Bascom has found a potential, unrecognized by most artists, in a resin known as epoxy.

Epoxy is a fast-drying, adhesive substance, sold in some drug stores as glue. Its most common use, Bascom says, is for patching cement.

Some artists have used it to glue stones into mosaic patterns or in jewelry work. Bascom spreads it on windows, floors, table tops, canvas and clay—then mixes in paints, something he does not think anyone else has tried doing.

"IT IS A weird substance," he says. "It has a high gloss and holds true colors. If I put it on a piece of clay, it saturates the clay and dries in 24 hours, hardening the clay better than a kiln would. And, it holds colors so much truer than glazing.

"You have to study for years to be able to put a glaze in the kiln and have it come out the true color you want."

Bascom can make a hard-gloss, multicolored table top or floor in 24 hours. He spread the substance on his kitchen floor one night, poured in blue and white paint, spread it until he got the right design, then let it set 24 hours. The next evening, he had a new, hard as tile, kitchen floor.

BASCOM HAS never taken an art course and critics might say that his work shows this. He works by trial and error, adding colors or different forms when the mood strikes. He made a mosaic top for a table he found in the dumps. Instead of covering it completely with stones, he inserted a small puzzle at one corner so that anyone sitting there would have something to do.

He did not like school. He spent three of his high school years at the San Rafael Military Academy, then ran away at age 16. He had no money and returned to his home in Oakland a day later. His parents enrolled him in Oakland High School, where he graduated a year later.

"I started at San Francisco State College the next fall," he says, "but I couldn't make that at all, so I ran away for good. I just never seemed to fit in school, not at any of those places."

BASCOM BECOMES an angry protector of his art when someone suggests that it might improve if he went back to school and studied art:

"I am an artist and I didn't have to go to art school to be one. All I have to do is make something. It's impossible to describe what it feels like to make things that are good. Nobody needs art school for that. Anything that is made is art, a creation.

"I made this table. It was what I wanted to do. I'm satisfied, and I didn't have to go to art school to do it."

Almost as eye-catching as the art in Bascom's house is the collection of 10 or more instruments in one corner of the living room. These include vibes, drums, a clarinet, cello, guitar and one instrument he made himself. They are not there just as furnishings for the house, Bascom says: "I play them fluently."

THE INSTRUMENT he made himself was once an autoharp. This, too, he found at the dump. He stripped it down, added a magnificently carved baseball bat and feathers for decoration and mounted it on a stand. With it, he produces a series of discordant notes by beating the strings with curtain hangers.

When Bascom began building his house of art, he did it strictly for himself. Within the privacy of those grey walls, he could work the hours he wanted making the things he wanted. But now his attitude is changing.

As philosophers question whether there is a sound when a tree falls in a forest and no one is there to hear it, Bascom wonders if anything he has done is worthwhile if there is no one to see it.

"I'D LIKE people to see what I can do, what I make," he decided. "I'd even like to be famous, sure, and make some money. I'd like to prove to my parents there are people who like what I make. Some day, I would like to have people come to me for my art. They would tell me what they want and I would make it for them."

And so, Dickens Bascom began to poke his head out of his Larkspur Canyon environs. He has made two hesitant attempts to communicate his art to the outside world. As he expected, they did not meet with startling success.

"One day I piled some of my stuff into a friend's car and took it to three San Francisco museums—the De Young, Legion of Honor and Modern Art Museum. I thought I'd just take the stuff in and they would tell me how much they liked it. They wouldn't even look at it. They said why not come back in a couple of years."

Putting Down Evil

Looks like he's done it again. The author of "Thirteenth Apostle," a blockbuster of some years ago, has churned out another grandiose mammoth exhorting virtue and putting down evil.

This time he takes as his theme a timely premise: Man's technology threatens to outstrip his humanity. But with brute banality Vale mangles the life out of this idea and presents the reader with a towering mixture of sawdust and soap opera.

Floundering around in all the verbiage is our hero, the scientist who has at last made a great breakthrough and now owns the patents on processes to de-salt the ocean. Being an idealist, as well as being ideal in all respects, he does not dodge the responsibility of this great advance; on the contrary, he intends to direct personally its use so man will obtain maximum results. Spurred on by his even more ideal wife, he boards the train to seek financing in New York.

Well, you just know there is evil abounding down here below and sure enough old enemies and powerful conspiracies try to trip him up. With a series of clumsy flashbacks the author attempts to fill in his hero's early life and entanglements, as well as provide backgrounds for everyone else who shows up on the long, long way.

Nor does he mind stopping the action, creaky as it is, for prosey ruminations on man, and nature, and prehistoric slime sort of things. In fact, he does so with embarrassing frequency.

The sentences roll on and the adjectives pile up as the good guys get more lovable and the bad guys more contemptible, and the reader more comatose.

This pretentious nonsense is a kind of sub-literature, which seems to sell in volume on the strength of being profound (it must be important, it weighs pounds!) and somehow spiritual. Few people will ever actually plow through the whole punishing length of this book, but the evidence is that they will buy it. In record-breaking numbers, no doubt.

ANYONE CAN GROW ROSES by Cynthia Westcott, D. Van Nostrand, 220 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Dr. Cynthia Westcott's book first appeared in 1952, and now it has been issued in its fourth edition, testifying to its popularity with rosarians.

Popular Gardening Magazine called it: "The A to Z of rose culture in every day language by one of America's authorities . . ."

Dr. Westcott might well be called THE American authority when it comes to plant pathology. She left the staff of the New Jersey Experiment Station to become the country's first professional "plant doctor" in private practice. For more than 25 years, she practiced both preventative and curative "medicine" in some of the East's finest gardens. Now retired, she continues to lecture and write, and to serve as chairman of the research committee of the American Rose Foundation.

She has updated her successful rose book for this new edition, giving the readers the benefit of the additional experience and knowledge she has acquired in the 13 years since it was first published. Information on newly developed rose varieties has been included. New chemicals are also listed and discussed.

It is a readable and practical manual. And fortunately for Californians, climate is less a factor in rose culture than in the growing of most plants, so that virtually all of Dr. Westcott's advice and information is applicable to our area.

CHINESE FOLK MEDICINE by Heinrich Wallnofer and Anna Von Rottauschner, Crown Publishers, 184 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

For the general reader it is a disjointed collection of historical anecdotes which unfortunately fails to show clearly how the assumptions which underline Chinese medicine differ from those upon which Western "scientific" medicine is built.

For a physician this work, one of whose authors is a physician, gives an insight into a different stream of medical history and practice. For doctors, this opportunity to see how medicine has developed in so different a culture may help them to broaden their perspective on the changing philosophic bases of Western medicine.

For the person who feels a sense of loss because a country, China, with whom the United States has traditionally been friendly, now regards us as a mortal enemy, this little book provides another often overlooked piece in the jigsaw puzzle which is China, against the day when our two countries may once again be friends.

It also suggests that we not be too patronizing about our superior scientific past and present. It is interesting to note that the Chinese doctors were using anesthetics effectively for surgery in the second century A.D. Sixteen centuries later European surgeons (or barbers) were still hacking limbs off without anesthesia.

This work opens a door on a little known subject. It does not open that door very wide, but many readers will find even a fragmentary peek interesting.

If you are interested in the ethnology of the American Indian you know by now that first person narratives are rare in this field.

Our literature about him reflects our own general attitude and role toward him.

This publication, however, is different. It consists of autobiographical reminiscences of a member of a very prominent Winnebago family, presented in rough chronological order in the first part.

The Winnebagos of Nebraska were a war-like tribe. Less savage than the Southeastern tribes, they nevertheless believed that honor came to a man through death on the battlefield.

However, this is the counsel given on child rearing: "If you have a child and it is naughty, do not strike it. . . .If you hit him you will merely put more naughtiness into him. It is also said that women (mothers etc.) should not lecture the children, that they merely make the children bad by admonishing them." (It seems we may have been blaming the wrong people for permissive education.)

Contemporary Critic And Cultural Scene

By DON KEOWN

Susan Sontag is the young critic whose work in Partisan Review, Book Week, Evergreen Review, Film Quarterly and other journals has stirred considerable interest, particularly in the ranks of what is sometimes called the neo-intellectual circles.

Now she has put together a collection of those essays written over a period of four years under the title of her lead article, "Against Interpretation."

First, there is the diversity of her background and interests. She writes with competency of literature, films, the theater and the general relationship of culture to society.

Her selection of subjects often sets her apart. She is inclined to turn her attention to artists and works otherwise neglected.

Her approach to criticism is highly individualistic. Her interest lies not so much in strengths and weaknesses of a specific artist or work of art, as in the broader picture of their relationship to the cultural tastes and needs of today.

More than anything else, Miss Sontag is contemporary. She views society and its artistic endeavors with the immediacy of today. She reflects the society of this moment in her emphasis upon taste and style. Her thinking is invariably provocative and fresh, piercing superficiality to explore less apparent meanings and nuances.

The effectiveness with which she expresses her thinking varies. She can be sharp, concise and precise. She can also be unnecessarily wordy and repetitious, almost tedious, as she is in her lead article, when, it seems to us, the dustjacket proclaims her point of 14 pages with equal clarity in a single sentence.

The collection includes her most publicized piece on the meaning of "camp," something of a world record for length and complexity in definition, but amusing. Elsewhere her subjects include a defense of Jack Smith's controversial movie "Flaming Creatures," commentary on Hochhuth's play "The Deputy," analysis of Albert Camus' "notebooks," discussion of the theories of Nathalie Sarraute on the novel, an excellent piece on science fiction movies, devastating criticism of two Shakespearean productions, a study of the relationship of film to novel, an explanation of the appeal of "happenings," an exposition on the general theme of style, to name only a few.

Despite the sometimes involved and prolonged discussions, and despite a certain smug and arbitrary tone (only partly dissipated by the critic's disclaimer of infallibility in her introduction), the book is an interesting one, the significance of which goes well beyond the boundaries of strict artistic criticism. In focussing her keen perceptive faculties upon the theater, the cinema and literature, Miss Sontag also turns a great deal of light upon the more general facets of a fast changing society.

NOVELIST Robin White is the editor-in-chief of Per Se, a new quarterly from Stanford University Press, to make its debut in March. Circulation will be limited to charter subscriptions only, and no advertising will be solicited.

Sleuths & Suspense

Z FOR ZABORRA by Eva-Lis Wuorie, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 188 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

How long will the public appetite for spy thrillers continue?

Indefinitely, no doubt, as long as they are as good as the first 95 per cent of this one.

In her third effort at this genre, Miss Wuorio has again put her cosmopolitan background—Finnish-born, Canadian-reared, African and European-employed—to remarkable use.

Twenty years and a good many pounds after her World War II service as an Allied agent, Toria Walden finds herself again drafted for an intelligence mission. Involved is the security of the vital hot line linking heads of state of the East and West. Her adventures begin in a British hospital and end behind the Iron Curtain in a Polish castle.

Throughout most of the book Miss Wuorie maintains a hard, convincing realism with believable characters and sustained suspense. Unfortunately, her conclusion borders on the fantastic and is completely at odds with the remainder of her story. But so good was what has come before that the reader is inclined to forgive her this inconsistency.

A BOOK THAT HELPS

Do You Know Which Plants Are Poison?

Quite often we are asked about books that will provide thorough information concerning common poisonous plants.

A new publication is available that gives a clear and detailed explanation of where poisons are found and lists varieties of garden, hedge and wild plants that are potential dangers to health.

The book is "Deadly Harvest," by John M. Kingsbury (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, New York).

KINGSBURY IS associate professor of botany at the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University. His book is the most thorough treatment of the subject for the general reader that we have seen.

Not only does Professor Kingsbury describe the chemical structure of plant poisons, but he tells about their physiological effects on the body.

His aim is to campaign for better understanding of poisonous plants and to inform the public so that fewer poisonings will occur.

THE BOOK IS well-illustrated with sketches of poisonous plants.

Kingsbury lists among the most common dangers poinsettia, bulbs of Star-of-Bethlehem and narcissus, daphne berries, wild spurges, the leaves and underground rhizomes of wild and cultivated iris, the seeds and pods of wisteria that have created serious gastrointestinal disturbances in children who have eaten them.

Another dangerous item to have around the house, he says, is the shiny red and black precatory beans often used for jewelry.

IT WILL SURPRISE many cooks to know that the sunburned spots and sprouts of potatoes contain a poison called solanine. Peel these items away carefully before cooking. He also says that spinach eaten in very large quantities has inhibited the absorption of calcium.

The leaf stalk of rhubarb is fine, but the blade contains dangerous amounts of oxalic acids. Apple seeds, the pits of cherries, peaches, apricots and some varieties of almond also should be avoided, he cautions.

To insure safety, Kingsbury suggests that the housewife (and others in the family):

1. Learn the poisonous plants in the neighborhood and know them by scientific name if possible.

2. Impress upon the children never to eat any unknown garden or wild plant, herb, shrub or tree. Never make medical preparations from them. (Always keep dangerous prunings, clippings or garden cleanings away from livestock.)

3. In any case of suspected poisoning, call your physician and be prepared to tell him the name of the plant involved. Save evidence that might help him identify the plant, including plant parts taken from the mouth.

Dr. Kingsbury reports that there are about 300,000 species of plants on our earth and that 700 of these have caused loss of life or serious illness to man or animals in this hemisphere.

When a case of poisoning is suspected, Kingsbury advises: Call your physician and call him fast. Better to be safe, even if embarrassed, than dead.

Gardening Page

GARDENERS' CHECKLIST

- Complete your pruning of fruit trees, roses, hydrangeas, etc., if not already done. Exceptions are spring-flowering trees and bushes, and frost-damaged plantings, which should be left unpruned until late February.
- All dormant spraying should be completed.
- Berries, grapes, artichokes and many other vegetables can be planted now.
- Mulch roses with a good humus builder.
- Start thinking about your summer bulb plantings which will be going in soon—gladiolus, dahlias, tuberous begonias, iris, callas, cannas, etc.

THE BOOK PAGES

Contemporary Critic And Cultural Scene

By DON KEOWN

Susan Sontag is the young critic whose work in Partisan Review, Book Week, Evergreen Review, Film Quarterly and other journals has stirred considerable interest, particularly in the ranks of what is sometimes called the neo-intellectual circles.

Now she has put together a collection of those essays written over a period of four years under the title of her lead article, "Against Interpretation."

First, there is the diversity of her background and interests. She writes with competency of literature, films, the theater and the general relationship of culture to society.

Her selection of subjects often sets her apart. She is inclined to turn her attention to artists and works otherwise neglected.

Her approach to criticism is highly individualistic. Her interest lies not so much in strengths and weaknesses of a specific artist or work of art, as in the broader picture of their relationship to the cultural tastes and needs of today.

More than anything else, Miss Sontag is contemporary. She views society and its artistic endeavors with the immediacy of today. She reflects the society of this moment in her emphasis upon taste and style. Her thinking is invariably provocative and fresh, piercing superficiality to explore less apparent meanings and nuances.

The effectiveness with which she expresses her thinking varies. She can be sharp, concise and precise. She can also be unnecessarily wordy and repetitious, almost tedious, as she is in her lead article, when, it seems to us, the dustjacket proclaims her point of 14 pages with equal clarity in a single sentence.

The collection includes her most publicized piece on the meaning of "camp," something of a world record for length and complexity in definition, but amusing. Elsewhere her subjects include a defense of Jack Smith's controversial movie "Flaming Creatures," commentary on Hochhuth's play "The Deputy," analysis of Albert Camus' "notebooks," discussion of the theories of Nathalie Sarraute on the novel, an excellent piece on science fiction movies, devastating criticism of two Shakespearean productions, a study of the relationship of film to novel, an explanation of the appeal of "happenings," an exposition on the general theme of style, to name only a few.

Despite the sometimes involved and prolonged discussions, and despite a certain smug and arbitrary tone ((only partly dissipated by the critic's disclaimer of infallibility in her introduction), the book is an interesting one, the significance of which goes well beyond the boundaries of strict artistic criticism. In focussing her keen perceptive faculties upon the theater, the cinema and literature, Miss Sontag also turns a great deal of light upon the more general facets of a fast changing society.

NOVELIST Robin White is the editor-in-chief of Per Se, a new quarterly from Stanford University Press, to make its debut in March. Circulation will be limited to charter subscriptions only, and no advertising will be solicited.

Sleuths & Suspense

Z FOR ZABORRA by Eva-Lis Wuorie, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 188 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

How long will the public appetite for spy thrillers continue?

Indefinitely, no doubt, as long as they are as good as the first 95 per cent of this one.

In her third effort at this genre, Miss Wuorio has again put her cosmopolitan background—Finnish-born, Canadian-reared, African and European-employed—to remarkable use.

Twenty years and a good many pounds after her World War II service as an Allied agent, Toria Walden finds herself again drafted for an intelligence mission. Involved is the security of the vital hot line linking heads of state of the East and West. Her adventures begin in a British hospital and end behind the Iron Curtain in a Polish castle.

Throughout most of the book Miss Wuorie maintains a hard, convincing realism with believable characters and sustained suspense. Unfortunately, her conclusion borders on the fantastic and is completely at odds with the remainder of her story. But so good was what has come before that the reader is inclined to forgive her this inconsistency.
